Re: Grand Jury Subpoena

Dear Mr. [redacted]

Pursuant to the enclosed grand jury subpoena, you are required to produce all documents described in the subpoena at the time and place indicated on the subpoena. Alternatively, you may comply with this subpoena by delivering the requested documents to Special Agent [redacted] of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. You may contact him by telephone at (202) 324-9326. The records should be accompanied by an affidavit, signed by the records custodian, stating that the records produced represent all business records in your care, custody and control which comply with the subpoena. If documents have been withheld from production, the affidavit should describe the withheld documents in detail and reflect a detailed basis for withholding the documents.

IN AND FOR THE COUNTY OF LOS ANGELES

JERALD G. SCHUTTE, Plaintiff, v. CYNTHIA GALE WATSON, aka CYNTHIA GALE, aka CYNTHIA WATSON, and DOES 1 through 10, inclusive, Defendants.	CASE NO. WEC115193 COMPLAINT FOR TEMPORARY RESTRAINING ORDER, PRELIMINARY AND PERMANENT INJUNCTION, AND DAMAGES; (CC 3333, 3422, CCP 526, 527, FINANCE CODE 952); BREACH OF FIDUCIARY DUTY; FRAUD 0602 AF

COMES NOW THE PLAINTIFF, JERALD G. SCHUTTE, who alleges as follows:

1. Plaintiff is, and at all times pertinent to this litigation was, as resident of the County of Los Angeles. Each of the acts herein complained occurred within the West District of the above entitled Court, the bulk of the acts occuring within the confines of that certain real property commonly known was 12100 Wilshire Boulevard, Los Angeles, California.

2. At all times pertinent to the instant litigation, plaintiff has been licensed by the California Department of Real Estate as a real estate salesperson. In conjunction with his pursuit of his profession as a licensed real estate stales agent, plaintiff maintains certain savings and checking accounts at the Wilshire and Bundy branch of the Bank of Santa Monica.

3. Defendant Cynthia Gale Watson, also known as Cynthia Gale, also known as Cynthia Watson, is, and at all times pertinent to this litigation was, a resident of the County of Los Angeles. Said defendant is also licensed by the California Department of Real Estate as a real estate sales agent.

4. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of the defendants sued herein as DOES 1 through 10, inclusive, and therefore sues these defendants by such ficitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their ture names and capacities when ascertained. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants is responsible in some mannner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that plaintiff's damages as herein alleged were proximately caused by their conduct.

5. Beginning in July 1986 and continuing until approximately January 1, 1987, plaintiff and defendant Cynthia Gale Watson entered into an oral agreement whereby plaintiff agreed to pay to said defendant the sum of $2,000.00 per month as a draw against future commissions in order to procure her assistance in monitoring and expediting the processing of certain escrows. Plaintiff paid each of these draws against commission as and when they became due.

6. On or about January 2, 1987, certain real estate transactions closed and said defendants received those commissions and fees due her, less the amount of draws against commission that had previously been advanced by plaintiff. Thereafter, said defendant determined that she no longer desired to receive draws against future commissions and plaintiffs stopped paying the same.

7. On or about April 1, 1987, plaintiff and defendant Cynthia Gale Watson entered into a verbal agreement whereby in consideration of her assisting him in locating properties and monitoring and expediting escrows, said defendant would receive ten (10) percent of any real estate commissions earned by plaintiff, as and when received by him. In performing these duties, said defendant became aware of all aspects of plaintiff's business dealings, including the location, identity and amount of each of his bank deposits and accounts. Further, she was privy to all of his confidential information concerning business, financial and banking contacts; she functioned as his office manager; and she balanced his checkbook, made his deposits and prepared his disbursements. By virtue of this relationship she became the fiduciary of plaintiff. She had ~~signature authority over his accounts~~, keys to his office and residence, and access to the most personal, confidential and private information pertaining to him.

8. Also, during the time period of June 1986 until May 1987, plaintiff, because of the personal and trusted relationship between himself and defendant Cynthia Gale Watson, guaranteed certain of her consumer credit obligations, including the installment loan for the purchase of her personal vehicle.

9. On or about May 2, 1987, defendant Cynthia Gale Watson, unilaterally terminated her business and personal relationship with plaintiff. However, in terminating her relationship with plaintiff, said defendant retained keys to his office, mail box and residence, as well as computerized passes both to the parking structure in plaintiff's office building as well as his office.

10. On or about May 15, 1987, plaintiff sent to defendant Cynthia Gale Walson check number 486 drawn upon his account at the Wilshire and Bundy Branch of Santa Monica Bank. The amount of the check was not filled in and it was the plaintiff's specific intent, which was communicated to said defendant, that the amount was to be filled in as and when certain escrows were completed, and that she would be compensated for any finder's fees, commissions or other compensation due to her, including the ten (10) percent of the fees earned by plaintiff as and for her compensation as his assistant and office manager.

11. After sending the check to defendant Watson, plaintiff became concerned that she might not be trustworthy concerning her possession of a signed check with no amount filled in. Therefore, he personally contacted Kerk Brown, the manager of his branch of Santa Monica Bank. Mr. Brown informed plaintiff (in error) that a stop payment notice could not be placed upon the check because the amount was blank; plaintiff was informed by Mr. Brown that the bank could essentially treat the check as a "draft", thus requiring plaintiff's approval before it was negotiated, if plaintiff would send written notification to that effect to the bank. Attach hereto as Exhibit A, and incorporated by this reference, is a true and correct copy of the correspondence of plaintiff to the bank dated May 25, 1987.

12. Since separating her relationship with plaintiff, defendant Watson has entered the office of plaintiff during other than normal business hours and has rifled his desk and files; she has contacted his bank under the guise of being a creditor investigating the availability of cash in his account; and, without permission, she has entered his residence, searched his personal belongings and generally made her presence known, although plaintiff was not present at the time, in order to harrass, vex and annoy plaintiff.

I.

FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION

(For injunctive relief against all defendants)

13. On or about June 12, 1987, defendant Cynthia Gale Watson, or those acting in concert with her and identified herein as DOES 1 through 10, inclusive, called Santa Monica Bank and through some contrivance were able to ascertain plaintiff's bank account balance. Thereafter, later during the afternoon of the same day and knowning that plaintiff was unavailable because of business commitments, said defendants inserted the amount of $8,100.00 on the aforementioned check and presented it to plaintiff's bank for immediate credit to the account of defendant Watson.

14. For whatever reason, and despite its promise, Santa Monica Bank failed to notify plaintiff that the subject check had been presented. Plaintiff remained unaware of this fact until

June 17, 1987, when he was notified by the bank that several of his checks were being returned because of "non-sufficient funds."

15. Plaintiff has attempted repeatedly to contact defendant Watson since she terminated her business relationship with him in May 1987. However, she has moved from her place of residence, and her telephone and answering service have been disconnected. Plaintiff has been informed that she maintains a postal box in Hollywood, to which he has written, but she has refused to communicate with him.

16. On June 17, 1987, plaintiff prepared and posted to the aforesaid postal box a letter demanding that plaintiff rescind the negotiation of the above referenced check. Plaintiff has refused, and continues to refuse, to reverse this transaction. True and correct copies of said correspondence are attached hereto as Exhibit B and incorporated hereat by this reference.

17. On June 19, 1987, pursuant to the provisions of Section 952 (b), of the Finance Code of the State of California, plaintiff prepared and delivered to Santa Monica Bank his declaration under penalty of perjury concerning his adverse claim to the monies held in the account of defendant Watson. Pursuant to the provisions of said code section, the bank has "frozen" the sum of $8,100.00 for three court days, which period will expire at midnight June 23, 1987.

18. By letter executed under penalty of perjury, a true and correct copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit C and incorporated hereat by this reference, plaintiff has been notified that absent a court order, the subject funds will be released to defendant Watson as of 10:00 a.m., June 24, 1987.

19. Defendants' wrongful conduct, unless and until enjoined and restrained by order of this court, will cause great and irreparable injury to plaintiff in that the subject funds are part of the operating capital of his business; and further, in that defendant Watson is itinerant, has no permanent residence in the State of California, is without assets sufficient to satisfy a judgment, and is without any steady employment or income. If allowed to gain possession of the subject funds, defendant Watson will convert and squander the same and thus plaintiff will have no adequate remedy at law.

20. As a proximate result of defendants' wrongful conduct, plaintiff has been damaged both in his business and property. In addition to the loss of use of the sum of $8,100.00, he has incurred banking charges for returned checks and loss of good will in a sum presently unascertained; plaintiff will seek leave of court to amend this complaint when said sum is ascertained. Defendant Watson has no right, title or interest to any of the money that she has unlawfully converted to her own use and benefit.

II.

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION

(Breach of Fiduciary Relationship against defendant Watson)

21. Plaintiff repeats and repleads the allegations set forth in paragraph 1 through 20 as though fully set forth hereat.

22. By virtue of their business relationship, the sharing of private, confidential information, and plaintiff's agreement to share ten (10) percent of his commissions in exchange for defendant Watson performing certain business functions for plaintiff, plaintiff and defendant Watson had a fiduciary relationship.

23. By virtue of said fiduciary relationship, defendant Watson owed plaintiff duties of loyalty, trust and confidence. Defendant Watson breach her fiduciary relationship with plaintiff by misappropriating his funds, in the amount of $8,100.00 for her own use, benefit and enjoyment, and by failing to inform plaintiff of her intent to secretly misappropriate said funds from his bank account.

24. Plaintiff has been damaged in his business and property in a sum presently unascertained, but at least in the amount of $8,100.00, representing his inability to use funds which were rightfully his, and further, in the damage to his reputation and good will in that he has had checks returned because of "non-sufficient funds."

III.

THIRD CAUSE OF ACTION

(Constructive Fraud against all defendants)

25. Plaintiff repeats and repleads the allegations set forth in paragraph 1 through 24 as though fully set forth hereat.

26. Despite having voluntarily accepted the trust and confidence reposed in her by plaintiff with regard to plaintiff's funds in the above-described bank account, and in violation of this relationship of trust and confidence, defendant Watson, and those working in concert with her, abused the trust and confidence of plaintiff by withdrawing the aforesaid sum from the bank account of plaintiff for defendant's own personal use. No part of these sums have been returned by defendant to plaintiff, despite plaintiff's demand therefore.

27. Defendant did the acts herein alleged with the intent to deceive and defraud plaintiff, and defendant attempted to conceal the fact that she had withdrawn the funds from plaintiff's account by timing her withdrawal to coincide with his deposit of a substantial sum to his account, so that it would not be readily apparent to him that the withdrawal had been made.

28. Plaintiff in fact placed confidence and reliance in defendant and reasonably relied upon defendant in view of their economic relationship and further in that she had previously function as his assistant and office manager.

29. As a result of the fraud of defendant as herein alleged, plaintiff has been damaged in the sum of at least $8,100.00.

30. In doing the acts herein alleged, defendant acted with oppression, fraud and malice, and plaintiff is entitled to punitive damages according to proof at time of trial.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendants, and each of them, as follows:

AS TO THE FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION

1. For an order requiring defendants to show cause, if any they have, why they should not be enjoined as hereinafter set forth, during the pendency of this action;

2. For a temporary restraining order, a preliminary injunction, and a permanent injunction, all enjoining defendants, and each of them, and their agents, servants, and employees, and all persons acting under, in concert with, or for them from using or benefitting from the use of plaintiff's funds in the amount of $8,100.00, currently held on deposit in the name of Cynthia Gale Watson, in account number 05-490-022, at the Wilshire and Bundy branch of Santa Monica Bank;

AS TO EACH CAUSE OF ACTION

3. For damages in the sum of $8,100.00, plus damages in such further sums as may be sustained and as are ascertained before final judgment herein;

4. For costs of suit herein incurred;

5. For such other and further relief as the court deems proper;

AS TO THE THIRD CAUSE OF ACTION

6. For punitive or exemplary damages according to proof at time of trial.

Mr. Kirk Brown, Manager
Santa Monica Bank
Wilshire and Bundy Branch

Dear Kirk:

In reference to our conversation of last week concerning an outstanding check written on my account, 05 486 157, I am writing this letter to formally request you let me know when the check comes through for payment so that I may transfer funds and budget accordingly.

The check number is 486, payable to my assistant Cynthia Gale, in an amount that is to be determined upon the completion of her task. As she cannot be reached at this time, I may not have the amount before the check is processed.

Thank you for your help in this matter. I look forward to seeing you at our formal opening, Friday, June 12th from 4:00 pm - 7:00 pm.

Sincerely,

Jerald G. Schutte

EXHIBIT A 18

June 17, 1987

Ms. Cynthia Gale
1765 N. Highland Ave. #336
Hollywood, California 90028

Dear Cynthia:

I was in the office today, making out a check to you for the Ron Clark escrow referral fee. I wanted to include it with several other "presents" I was going to give you on your birthday. However, before I was able to finish I received a call from Adventure Flights confirming you and your "husband" Dave's reservations for the Paris Hot Air Ballon ride Thursday morning. The reservationist wanted to make sure you got home before your "husband" so as to erase her message and not ruin his "birthday surprise". Having that call come here was an extremely sick and mean thing for you to do, considering what we supposedly meant to each other, my feelings for you now, and the fact that this was the birthday present you never give to me. I was going to pass the message on to your service when I discovered you had disconnected your number.

Despite this, I still wanted to send the check and the birthday presents which I had spent so much time on this spring. However, my sentiments were obliterated not more than an hour later I was informed that several checks were bouncing on my account at Santa Monica Bank. When I inquired I was told you had written a check and taken 90% of the funds ($8,100). The final straw was finding out that you did this while we were having our open house upstairs, apparently just before you went to Northridge to ransack my house. No wonder your schedule prevented you from attending!

Enough is enough, Cynthia. All I have asked you to do for the past three weeks is to call me and to diffuse this situation, to retify the amounts your feel you are owed and to go on with our lives. Instead, I have been emotionally raped, intellectually insulted, and economically burdened by the way you have handled this.

I have gone out of my way to try to understand you and the needs you have. I have repeatedly offered to help structure a financial situation which would allow you to pursue your acting career without financial burden, including simply giving you money. Had you returned any one of my calls, or shown any interest in resolving this situation intellgently, I would have worked out whatever was needed to make things economically viable for you and to schedule payments for whatever you feel you are justified in receiving. But you have consciously chosen to ignore all these efforts to let our relationship quietly resolve itself, so that we could move on. Instead, I have received lies as to your reasons for leaving, silence to my requests for help after you left, flippant indifference in entering the office and my home at will while I was gone, culminating in the unauthorized withdrawl of funds about which you have refused to meet and discuss.

Cynthia, you are not a stupid person. You know how much I care for you. You are also a sensitive person. And I refuse to believe you would consciously lie to, cheat, abuse and hurt another human being, let alone one for whom you professed so much feeling and emotion. If you have new needs and wants now, so be it. But don't let that destroy others' lives because you cannot confront yourself.

I am sorry I have been forced to submit the attached notification. However, please read it and let's resolve this in an amiable way. We will both profit far more in the long run.

-Jerry

P.S. You could have everything you want, if you would only be honest with those around you. For God's sake, Cynthia, get your act together before it's too late.

NOTIFICATION TO CYNTHIA GALE

You have not communicated with me since the day you left as to whether you are returning to the business (indeed, you told Betty you were coming back in 30 days, and, as evidence, have kept the keys, parking and building pass, not to mention visiting the office in the middle of the night). Nor have you confirmed or denied, since you left, whether you wanted to continue our day arrangement to receive 10% of my commissions, in exchange for helping me.

According to our conversation in mid-April, We agreed you could keep 100% of the Ron Clark referral fee ($1,234). We also agreed that in exchange for you helping with general office brokerage, that you would receive 10% of every commission dollar I make. You said you were not sure about it because you did not know how much time you would be here each day, but agreed it would be fair and that I would hire a temporary to fill in for any hours you were not here each day. We agreed to try this for ninety days (from mid-April), after which we would review the arrangement. Two weeks later, you left. You not only never helped; you never even bothered to pick up the phone to understand the status of any of escrows--despite repeated attempts to communicate with you.

For your information, beyond the Ron Clark referral fee, no escrows have closed since you left. The John Mohr transaction will close on July 1st ($26,000 in commissions), the Huntington Beach escrow was formally cancelled (in part because we could not supply them the information in a timely manner). The Sacramento property was rejected (I am still trying to rescue it, but am not succeeding). Beyond that, I have no other accepted offers. Therefore, if our agreement is still in effect, you are entitled to $1,234 at this time, approximately $2,600 when the John Mohr escrow closes on July 1st, and 10% of any other escrows that consummate before July 15th.

I have stood ready to talk with you and to resolve this situation any way that makes sense, no matter what the outcome, if only you would communicate with me. However, you have not communicated and, therefore, your unauthorized withdrawl of the $8,100 from the business account, without notification, is tantamount to embezzlement and has put me in jeopardy on several economic fronts.

While I am sorry it has come to this, I must take action to get your attention and to resolve these issues:

> If you do not get in touch with me by 5:00 p.m. Monday, June 22, 1987, to reverse your deposit, and to sign a mutually acceptable agreement as to when and how the monies owed to you are to be paid, I am going to pursue legal action to freeze the funds in your account and file a restraining order against you for your activities.

If you still refuse to act as a responsible adult, and continue to manipulate this situation without notification or communication, I will be forced to seek other legal avenues to resolve this.

This correspondence may constitute legal notice; please do not ignore it. I will expect to hear from you during the next 72 hours. Office (213) 820-8828; Home (818) 993-1282; Beeper (213) 729-2328.

JERALD G. SCHUTTE, Plaintiff, v. CYNTHIA GALE WATSON, aka CYNTHIA GALE, aka CYNTHIA WATSON, and DOES 1 through 10, inclusive, Defendants.	CASE NO. WEC115193 EX PARTE APPLICATION AND MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT THEREOF FOR TEMPORARY RESTRAINING ORDER AND ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE RE PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION; CERTIFICATION OF NOTICE DATE: June 24, 1987 TIME: 8:30 a.m. DEPT: "R"

Plaintiff, JERALD G. SCHUTTE, hereby applies for a temporary restraining order directing that Santa Monica Bank refrain from releasing to defendant CYNTHIA GALE WATSON, and her agents, servants, employees, and those working in concert with her, and each of them, the sum of $8,100.00 held in her account number 05-490-022 at Santa Monica Bank, which sum was misappropriated from the bank account of plaintiff, and an order to show cause why a preliminary injunction should not be granted enjoining defendant and her agents, servants, employees, and those acting in concert with her, and each of them, from withdrawing or utilizing said funds during the pendency of this action. This application is made on the grounds that absent an order of this Court, defendant will take receipt of and dissipate the funds which are the subject matter of this litigation, and on the further ground that great and irreparable injury will result to plaintiff before the matter can be heard on notice. This application is based on the verified complaint on file herein, and on the attached memorandum of points and authorities.

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

Plaintiff herein, Jerald G. Schutte, seeks equitable relief of this court in the form of temporary and preliminary injunctive orders of this Court directing that Santa Monica Bank not release certain funds that were misappropriated from his bank account by a former business associates, and, which funds are now on deposit in the account of that business associate, defendant herein, Cynthia Gale Watson.

As is shown by the verified complaint on file in this action, defendant Watson was a business associate of plaintiff for nearly a year. Occupying a position of trust and confidence, she became aware of all of plaintiff's private business and personal affairs. They had entered into an agreement whereby defendant would have received ten (10) percent of real estate commissions and fees earned by plaintiff in exchange for assisting him in his real estate sales activities. However, she terminated this relationship unilaterally and suddenly.

As a measure of good faith, and in an attempt to maintain ameniable business relations, plaintiff sent defendant a check that he had sign, but for which he had not filled in an amount, with the understanding that the amount would later be filled in and he and defendant Watson would settle their account upon the close of certain outstanding escrows.

Defendant checked plaintiff's account balance on a periodic basis, and, finding that he had a balance in excess of $8,500.00, without warning filled in the amount of the check as $8,100.00, and negotiated the check at plaintiff's bank, with an immediate posting of the cash received to her account. As is shown by Exhibit C to the complaint, a letter signed under penalty of perjury, unless enjoined by this Court, Santa Monica Bank will have no choice but to release the subject funds to defendant as of 10:00 a.m. June 24, 1987. As is further shown by the verified complaint, plaintiff would thereby be severely and irreparably injured in that defendant would dissipate and squander the funds, would absent herself from the State of California, and plaintiff's remedy at law would be totally inadequeste.

II.

INJUNCTIVE RELIEF IS APPROPRIATE WHERE A JUDGMENT WOULD OTHERWISE BE RENDERED INEFFECTUAL

Code of Civil Procedure section 526 sets forth several grounds for injunctive relief. Subparagraph 1 provides for such relief when it appears from the complaint that the plaintiff is entitled to the relief demanded and such relief consists in restraining the commission of the act complained of. Here, that act is the misappropriation of funds by a fiduciary.

Subparagraph 2 provides that injunctive relief is appropriate is the unrestrained continuation of the complained of act would lead to waste, or great or irreparable injury. And, subparagraph 3 provides for injunctive relief "[w]hen it appears, during the litigation, that a party to the action is doing, or threatens, o is about to do, or is procuring or suffering to be done, some act in violation of the rights of another party to the action respecting the subject of the action, and tending to render the judgment ineffectual."

Plaintiff would submit that injunctive relief is appropriate on all three of the aforementioned grounds. Plaintiff's rights are severely injuried by the misappropriation of his funds and there is grave danger that if the funds are released to defendant by Santa Monica Bank, the vitality of any judgment entered would be severely compromised, the asset wasted, and plaintiff would suffer a grevious loss and injury to his business.

III.

SECTION 952 OF THE FINANCE CODE CONTEMPLATES INJUNCTIVE RELIEF IN CASES SUCH AS THE ONE PRESENTED

Section 952(b) of the Finance Code provides as follows:

If at any time, either before, after, or in the absence of the filing of an affidavit by the adverse claimant, the adverse claimant procres and serves upon the bank at the office at which the deposit is carried or at which the property is held a restraining order, injunction, or other appropriate order against the bank from a court of competent jurisdiction in an action in which the adverse claimant and all persons in whose names such deposit stands or for whose account such property is held are parties, the bank shall comply with such order or injunction, without liability on its part.

In the present case, plaintiff served upon Santa Monica Bank the affidavit specified in subparagraph (a) of the statute. Said affidavit was served on the bank on June 19, 1987, and remains in effect for three court days, until the opening of the bank at 10:00 a.m. on June 24, 1987.

Unless the court issues its order directing that Santa Monica Bank not release the funds claimed by plaintiff, in the amount of $8,100.00, to defendant Cynthia Gale Watson, the funds will forever be gone and plaintiff will be without an adequate remedy at law. As is shown by the verified complaint, defendant leads an itinerant lifestyle, has had little or no credit, has no assets, nor permanent residence in California, and does not have full time gainfull employment. Thus, without injunctive relief, any judgment that plaintiff might receive may be totally worthless.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, plaintiff respectfully urges that this Court issue the prayed for order.

Dated: June 24, 1987

Respectfully submitted,

Carl E. Kohlweck

CERTIFICATION RE NOTICE

I hereby certify that on June 22, 1987 and June 23, 1987, I attempted in good faith to inform defendant of the time and place the foregoing application for a temporary restraining order would be made, by telephoning her at the last known telephone number known to plaintiff, a telephone answering service. However, plaintiff apparently has had the telephone answering service discontinued since at least June 17, 1987, the time that her misappropriation of the subject funds was discovered. As recorded message is now played on the answering service that the number is no longer functional.

I certify under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

On reading the verified complaint of plaintiff on file in the above-entitled action and the memorandum of points and authorities submitted therewith, and it appearing to the satisfaction of this court that this is a proper case for granting an order to show cause and a temporary restraining order, and that unless the temporary restraining order prayed for in the complaint is granted, great or irreparable injury will result to plaintiff before the matter can be heard on notice,

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the above named defendant appear in Department R of this court, located at 1725 Main Street, Santa Monica, California 90401, on June 29, 1987, 1987, at 9 AM .M., or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, then and there to show cause, if any she may have, why she, and her agents, servants, employees, and representatives should not be enjoined and restrained during the pendency of this action from engaging in, committing, or performing, directly or indirectly, any and all acts through which she would take possession or control of the sum of $8,100.00, currently on deposit in her account number 05-490-022 at Santa Monica Bank, Wilshire and Bundy Branch, which sum was deposited from the accounty of plaintiff, Jerald G. Schutte;

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED THAT pending the hearing and determination of the order to show cause, the above-named defendant, and her agents, employees, representatives, and all persons acting in concert with her or participating with her, shall be and they are hereby restrained and enjoined from engaging in or performing, directly or indirectly, any and all acts that would, as a practical matter, lead to the withdrawal or encumbrance of the aforesaid sum, including the assignment of any right to said sum;

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Santa Monica Bank shall hold for safekeeping the sum of $8,100.00 from account number 05-490-022, and shall not honor any demand, disbursement instruction or similar action without further order of this court, pending hearing on the order to show cause;

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that copies of the complaint, memorandum of points and authorities, and this order to show cause and temporary restraining order shall be served on defendant not later than June 26, 1987, 1987.

Dear [redacted] & Joan!

I hope that what I have done doesn't interfere with a wonderful and happy wedding. You have both been so wonderful and kind to me. To take me into your home as if I were a member of your family. You are truly beautiful people. Thank you from the bottom of my heart.

Sincerely

Chuck

① — From one of the foreign accts [redacted] rec'd $425,000

② On [redacted] foreign BK acct at Banque SCS Alliance in Geneva, w/ his name + hers + "Foundation Tonelle" listed c/o ? why — what is the connection

para 3, pg 2: He explained the cost aid is supposed to be for import of US goods for development of products, and support of these products.

para 4, pg 2: [redacted] stated he did most of the substantive work since they came fr. the Pentagon/military side. FMF did not exist at that time - only FMS. b6 b7C para 15, pg 5 (per my notes + recollection)

[redacted] said [redacted] called him a week after the search warrants, said he didn't want [redacted] to be surprised, said not to [redacted] what the search. " " there was a bigger investigation in Egypt, [redacted] was concerned it may be related to the foreign agents registration (act).

The 3 wks deal was correct also tho (there were 2 events) b6 b7C para 12, pg 5 " [redacted] asked ~~who~~ stated ~~Contr~~ not ~~did~~ ~~was~~ P+Co have any involvent in Sale of any items by Contrans to Kuwait. He did not know if Contrans had any side deals w/ other countries, at least none he was aware of. He could not imagine any situation where [redacted] would manage 99 million swiss francs related to contrans, if it were true.

The Stingers were produced by General Dynamics, a client of NT Co. Pakistan was instrumental in getting the Stingers to ~~Pakistan~~ Afghanistan thru Pakistan. NT Co negotiated Pakistan's. But [redacted] says everyone pretty much knows now that the Stingers were a CIA deal. At NT Co. They agreed to never get involved in any CIA deals b6 b7C

The contract for Gen Dynamics was handled by [redacted] and they [redacted] Gen Dynamics sold F-16 to Morocco + Egypt and M-1 Tanks.

Para 7, pg 3. add it was N+Co. That was resp. for lobbying to get unspecified cash aid or cash transfers to Egypt for the first time to balance the expenditures w/ Israel's aid. He said the funds were hard to trace and had been the subject of discussion as to where the money went. Egypt would call wanting to know where the paymt. was. So N+Co would call around. It was sometimes a check carried by a US. or Egypt. official if they happened to be on their way to Egypt. Usually, it comes from US Treasury to the Amer. Embassy in Egypt then to Egyptian Treasury - could be done many ways.

Reviewed ankram agreement.
- Knew Kamel F. met 2-3 meetings about gen. bus. relations - short, more cordial than once bef.
- Probe [redacted] + Fattah
- Type Bus 1991 award { (value of the contract) b6 b7C
w/ Egypt melting - mgr. overall upgrade of Egyptian Romeo Sub marine w/ US Govt (Boom already knew about it) Fattah advise as to what roll Booz would have - mgmt support.

pymt { mgmt dfo. ctr. in Egypt for gov't.
F n F
Fattah Would also advise what mite look for in future - not hardware - svcs. type

Ankram wk'd w/ EDO
& i. facilitate getting you thru agent Rolls, transp, tell who must present quality to

In Egypt only need agent if comm'l.
So Ankram is not agent - mktg. consultant [pay agents fee] we only pay consultng fee

(3) Recently, 6 wks ago, Bumped into [redacted] on airplane

- No pymts contingent on contracts
- if success w/ new Bus, W/ have plan for exploring

- Mi Abou Ghazalla - met during Ankara visit; not discuss direct. w/ him [redacted], Kamel, GAZ, self - Kamel was ill, more social than bus. (thought GAZ + Kamel were social)

- not sure he was in the room.
- no one said Kamel had Mi contact in EOG or in military - knew he was Ret'd Army officer, never mentioned

- Contract to Booz awarded competitive

b6
b7C

Contacts: FMS
US Air Force + Egyptian Air Force - and Booz (not his contracts)

(not aware of any finc'l arrangement)

(4) [redacted] ~~not~~ talked w/ [redacted] phone after death ask if he would still repres Ankara - he said it's an. possibility, no arrangements or Bus deals w/ [redacted]

FMF - contract - agent w/ Arkan from corp profits

Invoice to Egypt - approve/disap
EOG to DOD agency - midwest
Ftemp'd by/ US gov't.

why need Arkan - to deal w/ life over there diff. to get around if never been there, life suppt + FD what they see as future + pos. interest w/in Egypt,
But they not participate in wk itself.
only tell kind of approach for contract not write proposal etc.

Bakshish / not that problem in Egypt.

(In other countries pay Agent + agent facilitates)

Visa + driv. licence thru Egypt Navy.

EPO in DC - is joke do nothing to help you set up business in Egypt.

Boeing does inform EPO that going to Egypt and they advise Egypt.

contract w/ Arkan prior to Raytheon contract.
* would do.

- no one told them had to pay EOA etc
- agreement is that Arkrom w/ abide by all laws etc.

- Arkrom provides apt in Alex, Cairo from Arkrom - Rents

- Visits by Arkrom.
- Secretary + Rents - pd sep. w/ Arkrom contract w/ Arkrom (4, 5th one hired)
- Deals w/ [redacted] in Alexandria.
  no one is in Cairo that deals w/ them.

Met [redacted] once (never mohamed) in Cairo.

what going on. hearings write up,
Walk Halls – of House + Senate – more so than St Dept + DOD.

Met w/ staffers; daily Mtgs only w/ pers there

Not for 5-6 yrs one on one w/ congressman — was [redacted]

[redacted] Lobby for level of AID - more
- against efforts for less aid
- policy restriction (til Egypt gets freedom) never assisted Egypt w/ the spending that sometimes if someone helped out - if close across (they were not, in reality - Egypt got aid. if mil, — Col. Amin; Econ side — not recall b6 b7C

If Co had trouble in Egypt w/ a contract Congressman could call + ask to help + tell Egypt the Cong. is a friend of [redacted] — contractor (small co.)

one div. of G. E. not pd for old contract.
- they called [redacted] got him to offer to cut 15 mill. for aid unless pay G.E.

to keep Set Israeli + Egypt.
Bad - parody for Gov't Egypt - since camp David / accord. only not to. finally got a 65 mill (over 200/300) increase

Kamel in office once in awhile
- knew of him - because Dens talk - old friend had 0 nothing to do w/ what Shea did.

- not client of N+Co - law client to be understd.
- no idea what they did.
- thought Tatel, agent in Cairo for Bus. to do Business in Egypt. assumed. U.S. Because he come here.

- Maj Bus discuss. - no.

b6

- Went to Morocco, Jamaica a few times with [redacted].
- only time asked to deliver something.
- Ghaeda & [redacted] were carousers, drinking buddies, bosom buddies, NOT aware of fin. relationship.

- personal finances — sometimes [redacted] had problem w/ balancing check book

- Not awae of overseas accounts. She had to type of lists & doesn't remember names. Fidelity in Boston all other local, no Missouri, DC & MD only.

- She handled the IRS filing she knew how much he made. $180 K for a long time.

- he would get a check from law firms & one from Neill & Co. Neill & Co 10K a month

- Not aware of handling finances for Fattah or Ghazala.

- Never heard one bad things about Ghazala until after she left. Staffer on the hill out of Charlie Wilson's office.

- The firm lobbyed Wilson's staff. Doesn't know a person.
- No rumors about [redacted] making payoffs.
- Denis had no time to deal with office problems.
- He was very good to her when she had personal problems. b6 b7C
- She thinks he wasn't that stupid
- She heard those rumours that [redacted] pd. kickback ever before the INV. Washington was in awe that he could hold the contract for so long

- Fattah + Ghazala were buddies. Not aware of fin. relationship. Fattah paid for the cruise, he had travel business

- C.W. - knew through [redacted], Wilson, Kamel + Ghazala were the only ones w/ [redacted] direct line.

- "good time" Charlie - knew [redacted] - Wilson never came to office. Maybe once to xmas party. She went to fundraisers, the best, for C.W.

- [redacted] flew them to Lufkin, TX - Dry county. [redacted] all flew together. Guilty affair, Ann Richards was guest speaker. Private party at his house

b7C

- NO FIN. relationship between Wilson + [redacted]. You could put [redacted] Wilson, Ghazala + Fattah you would swear they were joined at the hip. Gave [redacted] leather bomber jackets in pretty tan.

- She met [redacted] only the once at his house. Unsure if [redacted] had dealings with.

M. Int – always did him favors. [redacted] was always available. Morocco & McCormick go hand in hand.

– [redacted] worked for LSC, computer firm. Helped get her green card – Gladson was a pathetic person, killed himself,

– She met him for a drink once.
– related to [redacted] in some way. He was a thorn in everybodies side. Never did anything she heard.

b6
b7C

– unaware of $25K Warfield.
– Did not talk to [redacted]

– She called [redacted] & he would ask [redacted] if he would pay to consult with an attorney. He was patronizing, did not ask her to call after the meeting

– no romantic relationship with [redacted] – Doubts he had romantic relationship in DC, not aware of any women he had affair with.
– Not Charlie, yes Fatah. Whenever he came here, Cairo in 1985.

Dec. 1985 to June 86 — w/ Kamel. (Also inv. w/ [redacted] believed he had some money. Didn't know who his clients were. Supposed to go shooting with the guys in Texas. No banking.

- Wouldn't be surprised if Fattah handled the bribes. [redacted] did not trust alot of people, only 2 were [redacted] to Kamel. Loyalty runs very deep to [redacted]

Re: Subpoena of Records

To whom it may concern:

The Department of Justice is conducting in the District of Columbia an official criminal investigation of a suspected felony. As part of this investigation, it is requested that your [redacted] as directed by and in compliance with the enclosed grand jury subpoena.

If you desire, you may comply with this subpoena by providing copies of all the requested documents to [redacted] Special Agent, Federal Bureau of Investigation, U.S. Department of Justice, P.O. Box 3269, Falls Church, Virginia 22043, prior to the return date specified in the subpoena. To do so, you must provide a notarized affidavit certifying that a thorough search has been conducted for all documents (checks, microfilm, microfiche, computer records, etc.) within the scope of the subpoena, that copies of all documents located are being produced, and that the originals of all documents produced will be maintained by the [redacted] and not destroyed.

letter is accurate :: there must have been a mtg —

Clearly meals mtg in W's apt
& Mtg at Corp headquarters in Zurich
Mtg w Stuelling — & others Remembers entertaining, & being entertained by Wilson — on various occasions

Must have been talks leading up to letters he wrote

Wouldn't surprise him if he broached commission idea —

[He ~~suggested~~ we are looking for someone to testify]

Q— would he be willing to come to DC & testify at our expense Yes if his testimony would be significant

He never said the/K & didn't know how much we paid

Briefed Wilson re guns (he knows the guns) — told W. that these guns could be broken down & carried by mules — W. explained guns were needed to shoot at Russian helicopters —

[redacted] chased lot of deals - not pan out had social + political connections - to open doors
" knew Pres. of Pakistan, ministers of Pakistan
" set up meet w/ Union Texas Petroleum
" used to go to Saudi Arabia
" had noon T.V. show - how she met people

[redacted] knew Wilson when he ran for state office

T.C. - [redacted] + CW went to Pakistan - see if maj. could get add'l support when came back from Pak. - she called everybody she knew to get help

b6
b7C

J.C. - knew the people in Egypt - arranged contracts for weapons

[redacted] talked + [redacted] about need for weapons had client - Oerlikon who sold weapons

9/29/83 ltr - meeting in Charley's office + draft from Oerlikon don't know what was discussed in Charley's office ← [redacted] had relationship w/ Oerlikon
" suggested [redacted] get a commission if deal came about [redacted] tried to get help for Afghan rebels

Meeting in DC after return from Pakistan - she met w/ some expert in DC who suggested they use some WWII weapon

[redacted] not aware of meeting in CW office assumes [redacted] was there based on letter

10/17/83 re XYZ Co, Panama commission agreement · for to [redacted] while on vacation in Hiltonhead by [redacted] [redacted] reviewed + suggested some changes - he faxed back to [redacted] possibly - or called he w/ changes

[redacted] would have discussed commission w/ [redacted] said there was a commission to be paid " was getting some commission - works as a commissioned salesman for Oerlikon [redacted] knew [redacted] socially first. - then knew he was associated w/ Oerlikon

b7C

[redacted] was dating C.W.

1/1/83 - memo to [redacted] sending T.C. to finalize agreement

[redacted] wanted to go - it was decided T.C. would go assumes T.C. + [redacted] discussed who would go could be [illegible] prepared & sent from [illegible] office - T.C. not party [redacted] firm [redacted] can only speculate that C.W. brought in T.C.

" believes based on his knowledge of things that T.C was a nominee for C.W + the 50/50 comm. split was really going to C.W + [redacted] although [redacted] said she + T.C. were splitting 50/50 comm.

[redacted] believes C.W. intro. [redacted] to arms expert

[redacted] didn't want [redacted] to put together any formal documents assuring she would not get cut out of the comm. deal. She said everything taken care of

b6

750 Tank deal - assumes C.W. got T.C. involved in deal w/ [redacted]

w/ Pakistan officials tells about tanks Pakistanis needed repaired + some country had ability to retrofit tanks [redacted] probably called C.W. + he suggested T.C.

Nothing happened w/ tank deal

assumes T.C. drew up agreement

Never had any dealings w/ T.C. befor C.W. affair - [redacted]

" liked T.C.

April 1996 [redacted] sent copy of ~~subpoena~~ request sent/served to [redacted] by U.S. govt. of invest. re J.C. & C.W.

[redacted] responded no objection to supplying info. but to send copies of documents supplied U.S. gov. to him about $800! production cost

[redacted] heard J.C. contested the request thru [redacted]

[redacted] gave [redacted] copy of previous req. to read & understand what invest. is about.

11/1/83 telef - assumed J.C. was going over to work out commission agreement.

[redacted] would send out letters she prepared using [redacted] name on occassion - [redacted] would call [redacted] secretary to send out letters

[redacted] - Texaco employee - former [redacted]

11/1/83 Telef could be one that [redacted] prepared & sent out under [redacted] name

- 12/2/83 ltr to [redacted] from [redacted] about commissions

don't know why they did it this way (sent to seeker) if J.C. was handling agreement

DH knew anything before '94 + incl. and what was 'our' section had sen

Destroyed if crim. Div had review

If doc. wasn't on log, should have been on log before destroyed

- had sen envelope before but never saw contents
- doesn't believe she shredded
- Do not shred envelopes

[redacted] - Org-Crime div. store some things in this SCIF - there was an envelope for OC that wasn't touched

Storage was getting full; they checked w/ GG - GG told [redacted] again
- orig inst. anything '94 and prior + anything this div. had seen prior

b7C

Would have known not to shred this doc. in envelope w/ [redacted] name on it because just being held for him.

DH had most recent stack of stuff - pulled fr. drawer, checked off on log and shredded.

May have broached subj. a week or two prior and Fri 28th reconfirmed and Sat. 29th came in. But storage space limited for a while prior ~~and~~ has access to SCIF since in this position a ~~little over~~ almost 2 yrs

5/21/40 577-54-9911 civil div. first 3 yrs.

- enters SCIF as req'd. - w/ code word mail.

all doc's going into safe (code word mail) must be logged Log on yellow legal pad as long as been here, but now have computerized program 3 secretaries have access to.

May store items for other indiv @ one of supervising instr. - the 3rd party

AP pulled docs from 2nd drawer
- compare to log
- depending on date would put in pile to be shredded + mark on log - shredded
Instructions - anything dated before 6/30/96 - shred unless it has/is yet been reviewed
- If something not on log would record on new log.

- Doesn't remember what doc. looks like, but opened a lot of envelopes looking for date and shred.
- did not do check to determine if been reviewed
- AP did second drawer

- doesn't know anybody in section

Assumes she destroyed because opened a lot of envelopes + also because of date - she shredded a lot of '94. - doesn't remember a lot of '96" started - 1975/1976 - handle finding out where programs were that he was interested in Army / Navy / Air primarily Pittsburg

Zurich wanted to introduce defense guns to U.S. - thru Contraves Zurich - Radar & fire control - guns by Oerlikon - (known as Oerlikon gun) primarily DOD - Large prime defense contractors didn't do much in Congress - did limited w/ PA congressman - Doug Walker

John Murtha
- give brochure - tell what doing - w Co. Swiss ownership - not much leverage - example of trying to acquaint Army w/ his system - Air Defense System w/ Raytheon - Sparrow missile - Contraves built controlling radar - skyguard - never bought by anyone in US. - Egypt may have bought -

Contraves - tried very hard to sell things to Egypt thru Contraves Italiana - did sell some system - retired in 1988 - 1 man operation - 300 N. Lee - to Fairfax to King St. - took over Balberde - moved it to Crystal City - to do work for Pilatus - small observation plane shared crystal city office w/ Contraves -

Last 3 or 4 - Oerlikon - had over [redacted] who did same thing - [redacted] left 1985/86 - retired - didn't get along - when he left he talked for Oerlikon interest - if wanted test for gun - would go to [redacted] & see if could work out - go to airshow - Paris / Farnborough - good friend - met - visited plant 2 or 3 times - came to US - good but distant - not involved too much w/ him - got closer w/ them in last few years [redacted] b6 b7C [redacted] better able to demonstrate [redacted] - Gen. Mgr. - of Contraves Italiana - dealt more w/ sales [redacted]

in some public document - published by trade publication -

CW - pushed idea - to give Afghan better weapons - specifically Oerlikon & others - was told can't remember from who - identified who we were - invited him to a party at Mayflower - company party - celebrating something - not in friendly setting -
DOD chose Oerlikon to go on DVAD
Division Air Defense

seemed to be quiet into - then common knowledge believe CW visited Oerlikon or Contraves Italiana surmise CW & [redacted] connected - same thing of making weapons available in an unusual way - thinks [redacted] may have been involved in similar things - piecing things he heard together

b6
b7C

surmised US paid for weapons thru - intelligence agency -

Charles - woman - never saw or heard of any payoffs

- assume [redacted] was paid -
- [redacted] never heard
- [redacted] heard thru [redacted] - wrote military doctrine - Swiss would do things that were unknown to them -

AOATS - happy when happened that US bought - Martin developed - once Canada bought - radar built in built plant in Canada Italy - in Canada - economi - very little interaction - didn't like - chosen to run division -

Denkbar hired a lawyer - with DUAD gun - presumably won't need lawyers/lobbyist if he's there -

[redacted] - Zurich

Contraves Goertz when joined - dvi Contraves Zurich - Oerlikon Bohle

asked to change to Contraves US - not while there - or just before left changed to Contraves US or Contraves Inc.

needed to find investors - industry partners -

- called [redacted] - b6 b7C

State Sen - El Paso

knew of him Wagoner Carr - Speaker of House - Atty Gen. of Tx, also knew him personally - 2 or 3 times exchanged small leases while in Land Div. in Endevco in Ft. Worth basin - Christie Gas Transmission - always looking for deals - not unusual in oil business -

- 1985/86/87 -

hierarchy - structure of Endevco - had too many chiefs w/ too many perks - country

(½ billion year revenue) → Endevco do all bldg & managing - he could put up $ also maybe willing to take over Endevco - (Dallas)

he had been Valero in San Antonio targeting huge - $5 billion year

if successful he would be Pres. of Co. - attractive offer - unfriendly hostile takeover - did not notify for approx 1 mo.

(Cty companies) publicly traded co. - ½ stock owned institutional - other ½ .75 to exec. 25 outside industry players - buy outside industry & common market offer exec. good price - between $3 & 5 - offering $4 or 8 a share in process let them know [redacted] wanted to buy Endevco - they checked into [redacted] - [redacted] & Pres. & Chairman met - knew he was going to clear house b6 b7C

QUESTIONS FOR [redacted]

1) Obtain info re his background, i.e President of Texas Meter & Device, and his relationship to Wilson (brother-in-law).

2) Who is [redacted] and how did you come to know him?

3) When was the first time Wilson borrowed money from you? How did that come about? What did Wilson want the money for?

4) Did you have the money to loan him? Where did you get it? How did [redacted] get in the picture?

5) How long did Wilson need the money for? What arrangements were made for repayment of the loan. Was interest to be paid?

6) When [redacted] gave you the money to give to Wilson, did you sign a note? Was it interest bearing? Why would you obligate yourself for a $35,000 loan at twelve and a half percent interest for Wilson? Why not cut out the middleman?

b7C

7) Why was the note renewed after one year? Did you discuss it with Wilson before it was renewed? Who brought up the fact that the year was up and the loan was due and payable?

8) Who produced the first loan agreement; you for Wilson or [redacted] for you?

9) After the second year was up did you inquire about the loan again? Did [redacted] talk to you about it? Did Wilson talk to you about it?

Apr 10, 85

10) Six months later Wilson needs $100,000. What was that for? Did you have the money to loan him? Where did you get it? How did [redacted] get involved?

11) Why use a line of credit from [redacted] like a guarantee? Didn't you think Wilson would pay you back? Why would [redacted] pay for Wilson if Wilson couldn't repay the loan?

12) Why wouldn't [redacted] loan him the money directly? Did you ever ask Wilson or [redacted] Are you aware of the EIGA reporting rules?

13) What is Pine Tree Resources Inc.? How did you learn the stock was available? Who asked you to purchase the stock from Wilson?

14) Until it was offered to you for sale, did you know Wilson owned stock in Pine Tree?

15) Why did [redacted] give you an irrevocable offer to purchase that same stock (on the same day you bought the stock)?

16) Whose idea was the irrevocable offer?

17) What did Wilson tell you Pine Tree was? What did [redacted] tell you Pine Tree was?

18) Did they give you anything so you could determine what the value of the company was? What did they purport the value of the company to be? As a prudent investor what steps did you take to assure it was a sound investment?

Did you seek advice from your account? Your stock broker? Why/Why not?

18a. How did you arrive at the cost to you to purchase the 25% of Pinetree stock?

18b. Did you know that Pinetree carried a $50,000 loan receivable where it had loaned $50,000 of the $60,000 [redacted] loaned Pinetree? Why not?

37) In [redacted] 1987 financial statement it lists stock in closely held corporation at $68,000. What stock is that for? If it's for Pinetree why only $68,000 [redacted] paid $85,000 to CW for the stock)? Why is there no payable to CW for the balamnce owed ($95,000) for the Pinetree stock? b6 b7C

19) What assets did Pine Tree Resources Inc. own? If you were paying $180,000 for the stock didn't you do some checking on the value of the company? Who determined the price and how was $180,000 value set for 25% share?

Who were the Stockholders?

What were your discussions with Wilson (everything we say is about [redacted] - shouldn't it be discussions with Wilson - it is his stock!!!)

Did Wilson or anyone act or speaking for him ask you to buy Wilson's shares in Pinetree (Whether to help him out (vice it is a good deal) ex. needed funds quickly, etc. if so who/why?)

19a) Why was this the only stock you purchased outside a broker?

20) Where did you get the money to pay Wilson for his stock? If you were going to turn around and sell it to [redacted] why get involved?

23) Was Pine Tree a profitable company or was it heavily in debt?

How did it earn money?

23a) What is Eastland Gas? How was Pinetree related to Eastland? What was your share of the debt in Eastland?

If it owned 50 % of Eastland Gas & Pipeline, did you know this ahead of time? Did you check out Eastland?

Did you inquire who were the other 50% owners of Eastland?

(Do you know [redacted] Who owned Christie Gas Transmission a 32% owner?)

Who were they? Did they know Pinetree was 50% partner?\

Why didn't you just join the Eastland partnership - why go through Pinetree? Did you ask that?

23b. Why did you give some of the stock to your children (was that at Wilson's suggestion?

24) How did you arrive at the sales price when [redacted] agreed to buy? The deal was for what you paid Wilson plus 9%. If you paid Wilson $180,000 how did you come to sell your share to Christie for $440,000?

Who is [redacted] Why was his share $0?

b7C

38) How did you decide what to sell the stock for? What were the discussions you had with [redacted] Wilson, [redacted]? (Workpapers shoe telcall between [redacted] Sales price is $250,000 not $405,000 plus $35K loan forgiveness.

21) Who brought up the idea of forgiving the $35,000 note you had with [redacted] as part of the deal? (Not part of original workpapers)

22) Did you agree with [redacted] or Wilson that when you resold the stock to [redacted] he would increase the price so you could pay off the $100,000 note? Was that a factor in the sale?

22a. Did you know that Pinetree had outstanding loan receivables. Specifically $50,000 to Wilson? What happen with that? Were you consulted?

39) What was the difference between liquidation of Pine Tree and sale of Pine Tree to [redacted] (Stock sale - $250,000 -$180,000 = $70,000 profit or liquidate $250,000-$180,000-$70,000 = LTCG on liquidation. It appears the sale price now as "FMV of partnership distribution which is "new" basis in partnership of $250,000)

40) Why did [redacted] have no knowledge of Wilson selling 25% to [redacted]

41) Last page of workpapers "no capitalization in pipeline 100% financed", "minimal capital $1,000", "FMV of the Ltd P/S interest - probably-0-" Liquidate Pinetree then sale.

43) Show letter of 1-9-91 from [redacted]. He suggests that you retype it on your letterhead and send to him. Why? This was for a deal that closed in May 1988? What discussions surrounded this? (This letter is clearly calling it a stock sale instead of a liquidation.)

25) How many workers worked at Pine Tree or Eastland on a daily basis? Did you ever view either operation; Pine Tree or Eastland Gas & Pipeline? What was the income of either company?

26) Do you know [redacted] Who is he and what is his relationship to Wilson? [redacted]

27) What is Hill Country Resources? What was Wilson's involvement in that? [redacted]

What is Town Lake Project? What is Wilson's involvement? [redacted]

b6
b7C

28) Did Wilson do anything to earn a commission on that property?

44) In 1983 you purchased and quickly sold Kentron stock? How did you know about the stock. What is the company? Did you research it, or did Wilson tell you about it?

Did you receive insider information about a possible government contract or a contract with another company? (Tanks?)

Otherwise, why was it all in your name, yet you notified your accountant that one-half of the sales was Wilson's. Explain?

Whose name was on the stock? Why did you give one-half to him? and when?

Who handled this deal? How was the actual money handled? Did Wilson give you money for any of the stock? Did he instruct you to hold it in your name?

(I thought Pinetree was the only stock handled differently)

Why was this all done this way?

43) What is [redacted] Commercial Investments, Inc.? For whom does it hold investments?

Has it been used to hold any present, past or future earnings for Wilson?

29) Was Wilson involved in any deals with [redacted] in which he earned a commission? no idea

30) Was [redacted] involved in selling weapons to any country? Was Wilson involved with these sales? no idea not to his knowledge 31) Was Wilson to receive any part of the commissions?

32) Did Wilson or [redacted] ever tell you that Wilson earned commissions but that they needed you to funnel the commission money to him? NO

33) Did Wilson or [redacted] ever approach you about buying his townhouses in Washington D.C.? NO 33a) Explain the Pine Tree trailer/office? Why did you get involved in that? Did you make money, break even or lose money on that deal? Where did you get the money to buy the trailer?

34) Have you told Wilson about your subpoena? What did he tell you about the investigation? What did you tell him and/or did he tell you, after the first time you received a subpoena? b6 b7C

35) Has he or anyone else ever suggested what you should tell investigators if questioned?

36) Who is paying for your attorney?

42) Discuss middleman and exposure for money laudering.

43) What other stock/ventures betw [redacted] / Wilson none

44) what else are you holding [redacted] / JC - nothing

45) When we receive all the Swiss records are we going to find your name in them also?

46) How [redacted] make $

47) Eastland Shrs.

48) POA for CW? NO

- Believes eventually will get the $ back "in the buy + buy".
- guarantee - not to get stuck w/ stock if goes bad. [redacted] not ask for it - it was offered.
- CW said he'd get a guarantee for J.C. Believes he call JC + asked if willing
- CW looked at it like a good deal - nothing in - CW good salesman.
- [redacted] not a target unless lies - correct.
- Ltr 5-11-87 [redacted] accept offer
- price - CW said need $180K. - that was the price - w/o guarantee prob wd not have done it But sounded like good deal + wd not make money.
- The offer to buy back establishes the price.
- never asked why $180K
- CW never said what he invested.
- Why not pay $180 in full.

b6
b7C

- not sure why Installmt - prob. not want to pay all at once + CW not need all at once. Believe it was oral.
- JC said new co would get figures when ck put them together
- [redacted] acct? - don't recall his advice.
- Stocks Broken - didn't ask.

- had pipelines + land leases prior to Bumpmore
- only CW + [redacted] for Pinetree
- not know how Eastland fits in - thought Eastland
- Knew P/T was party Eastland not know how large
- Initially thought P/T owned gas lines til got 1st stmt re Eastland mirgn. that [redacted] put Mirgns lines in.
- P/T owned int. in P/T ~~and~~ Eastland Mirgns
- that JC put up mirgns as his investm
- [redacted] talk to JC asks stmts By end 87 got sense.
- so [redacted] decided to "take us out" - because insistent on gut. info - never rec'd.
- purchase May 87 (1st ck)
- after 1st of '88 JC folk about buy out
- 1st CW $60K - 25K - 40 + $5 = Installmt - 4 ck to 95K over 5-6 mos.

8/17/63 - State legislature in Texas - close relationship - like brothers -

JC - met briefly in Austin days - in legislature too - never been close to him - see at functions for Charlie - social occassions - which went to Round Rock called to rest for lunch -

JC/CW - close friends -

84 - small political contributions knew made a little money needed to borrow some money - at time probably said specifically what for - recollection-creditors + taxes - pay out of own pocket told Charlie didn't have $35,000 JC loaned him $ - JC said he might pay [redacted] - b6 b7C had note from CW

- subsequently renewed -
- said would be repaid - have not been repaid -

- 12½ prime rate - sent check + letter -

based on his signature - no note no collateral -
- he felt obligated - deposit

Charlies - sent to Admin Asst - [redacted] b6 b7C

[redacted] got form note from InterFirst Bank - had see. type in info & sent up check don't recall of sent note & check seperately - called CW - said note due - JC or CW called & said note would be renewed rolled interest over into new note - at new interest rate in relation to prime interest rate -

- wasn't happy - CW had financial problems - did not get back signed - sent followed up to get signed - CW kap hazzard - never got

decided not going to get paid - sent note back to him - called & said he'd pay - pay me when you get money

10/19/86 - CW says no $ - called JC & JC called him - said CW not paying - JC did not press - when you get $ pay me - never got $ saw or called - asked for $100,000 for taxes & bills - imagine balked - JC gave letter of credit -

obligated for 100,000 felt get $ back - more obligation if treated as that later talked about Pindaree - good venture - would make $ - 3/86 formed - just before or after they did it - sounded like good venture - JC good in field - venture was to buy small pipelines from big co's that weren't needed - buy at distressed prices - link them & connect to major line

had had to pay interest - CW said don't have it - will pay you interest - send interest - called - didn't have it - lectured for years -
- once a month - expressed unhappiness to wife - CW says going to pay you as soon get $ - renewed letter once - sounds like good deal CW - little while later CW offered to sell interest in Pinetree - had 500 shares - bought 250 knew JC reputation - called JC verbally told of business plan - toy company - lost on that deal

10/11/87) - got numbers
10/31/87)
- bought 5/7/87 - first installment talked to [redacted] & CW - sounded reasonable b6 b7C deal - new deal didn't have didn't get tax return - don't recall if asked for it.

reluctance to make investment -
I would buy - guarantee

risk limited - reasonable deal - security - wouldn't get stuck -

CW said can get guarantee from JC - called & asked if guarantee - got in writing - if good deal why don't you buy - don't recall answer - CW said good deal not a target - accepted his offer

how decide on price - needed $180,000 don't - reasonable from description - without guarantee wouldn't have done it - usually check it the price - from guy who owns other half offers to buy + % of that price - never asked - $180,000 how he arrived at price -

forget how arrived at installments - he didn't need all at once - just oral agreement - as to how to purchase

asked to see books - new - will give as soon as get

mentioned to acct. - can't recall what said - toy store - Corpus Christi - early 70's be investor - no active role - told had some pipelines & land leases - in process of buying more -

Eastland - deal Joe had -

- Pinetree owned part of Eastland - initially thought Pinetree owned leases - when got statements - was told put Eastland & Mungus into co.

kept asking for no. & info - particularly at end of 87 - got tense - one reason JC wanted to buy out - kept asking -

- 5/87 purchase first of 88 -

CW - $60,000 - 4 installments said he wanted	25,000

to be paid this	40,000
way - every	55,000

5 or 6 mos.

(8)

can't recall if borrowed or used stock invest. money - borrowed most of it - Inter First - First Republic -

$40,000 renewal 3/31/88
10/29/87 $5,000
2/2/88 $40,000
8/16/88 $40,000 - paid by renewal paid $110,925.14 4/12/88.

put up stock in Assignment as collateral

40,000
5,000
40,000
25,000
} notes owed

at time often when bought stock would borrow $ to buy - put other stock as collateral one $40,000 in Pine Tree - & $25,000 probably is -

CW called - JC had made offer to buy us out - don't recall CW paid #s offer was $405,000 - plus 35,000 for die by JC - don't recall after first of year - looked had statements - paying over book value

he said thought it was worth - had brought more stuff - JC was bullish - would get him he prob. brought up $35,000 loan forgiveness - knew complaining couldn't get info. - getting anxieties - JC was tied of dealing w/ him - not contingent on anything - assumed [redacted] still can't pay - talked about it - mark paid & sent to him - he recognizes debt - principal debt was mortgage due & he owed taxes - inquired as much as I could - b6 b7C vices - heart problems - taken heat for him - apologized - explanation man investigated & Charlie name came up - interested re his relationship w/ JC - what's this about - said don't know - what's the story - trying to prove something on JC & me - what's that? I don't know aims deals - got my records - have pressed for details - he says we shouldn't talk about it - CW said never had foreign bank acct - after IRS subpoenaed records - shouldn't see FC - just at social function - never told him about aims deals - one lump sum - probably wrote down after agreed so he would know

- made last installment at time of sale - paid off

4/13/88 - paid off 100,000 CW loan
4/12/88 - " " 110,000 loans

- 20% went to kids - $440,000 sale for tax purposes

- $310,359.88 total owners equity - for Eastland / Mingus looked at it as Pinetree

when got statements asked what is Eastland business - main asset of Pinetree

sent Eastland - because east. is principal asset of Pinetree -

JC sounded like this was Texaco - CW says done well - assumed Pinetree wholly owned Eastland thought Pinetree was growing Co. -

[redacted] - JC said running some of the properties - [redacted] - b6 b7C

- SC always said going great - Eastland - did not know of loans - did not know or think was obligated - asked JC at time got 1/88 financial statement Interallcange - just a bank - cost basis - worth more than that - on cash flow basis worth more than that - did not know Pinetree loaned CW $50,000 - or that if Pinetree owed $60,000 to anyone - assumed going to get paid - got all these bills can you wait - marked paid & sent thinking intimidated - called said will pay - paid off at own volition - paid off other notes

never was asked to hold $ - knows nothing of Swiss banks - closely held corp

dropped 12/88 Statement

$168,000 - only thing can think of is Pinetree - re preparer + act fund does computation dropped off 100,000 decided not collectable

don't know how many employed - Moore operating Pipeline - don't know how many at Eastland or Pinetree he or JC - don't recall who brought up - don't recall ever getting anything in writing - just his word - don't recall following up on it - gift of stock to children - no cond. w/ CW re reason or before doing 1099 - sent all in his name - reissued because of kids -

JC said needed to be liquidation + then purchase instead of straight sale didn't affect his taxes - JC wanted to handle as dissolution & assignment instead of straight sale

always assumed he & CW got same deal never discussed -

~~no sure if assume~~ talked to [redacted] when bought - definately on sale b6 b7C don't recall discussion re sale price at $250,000 with acct. - know wife is supposedly wealthy - knew JC made lot of $ - assume had a few million began to wonder when read newspaper article - thought

JC wanted acknowledgement that they received money - 1/94/91 letter -

Kenton - looked at it bought - Fred Bostwick talked to him at Paine Webber - didn't recall ever having owned it - I

- Initial Public Offering Date -

CW gave me stock tips - didn't take up on - this may have been one that he did - vaguely recall - looked at it - he bought it - suspect he said boy died -

92 - CW's mother died -

1/92 - $35,000 - must have loaned him some money - don't recall

[redacted] no not aware of CW + JC buying any land - never asked to hold seems to have settled down -

- never seen financial statement on CW -

Motor Home - Leased to Congressional Office - Leased to Fed. gov't -

no POA for CW -

[redacted] Commercial Invest - holding co - b6 b7C

when bought 1978 Texas Meter - bought stock of Texas Mtr & Device - in 1986/87 converted to Sub Chapter S Corp - could not have subsidiaries -

Texas Meter & Device wholly owned by Texas Meter & Mobile Home
- does not hold anything for anyone - assumed it was back in time assumed they had other business dealings things don't know - none of his business - asked some probing question - don't know everything - somewhere in that period - when not getting #'s - really concerned - after bought stock - #'s not forthcoming -

- would not have been surprised if they had other business deals - done nothing wrong / no foreign accts. -

Former International Lobbyist Denis Neill to Report to Federal Prison

Denis Neill, formerly a high-powered foreign aid lobbyist in Washington, will report to the Federal Medical Center Prison in Lexington, Kentucky later this month. Mr. Neill was convicted in March of tax fraud and was sentenced on June 19 to 15 months in prison and one year of "supervised release." In addition, Mr. Neill was fined $200,000 and will be required to reimburse the government for the costs of his incarceration as well as his house arrest.

Mr. Neill and his brother James were both indicted for tax fraud and evasion last year for work related to a former Egyptian client of Mr. Neill's. His brother was acquitted on all charges, but Denis Neill was convicted by the Washington, D.C. U.S. Federal District Court for filing a false tax return and reports to prison on September 28.

Mr. Neill was an Assistant Administrator for Legislative Affairs at the Agency for International Development (USAID) prior to becoming a lobbyist. His company, Neill and Company, represented such countries as Egypt, Jordan, Kenya, Jamaica, and Pakistan. Neill and Company went out of business in 1994.

Because of the amounts of money involved, Mr. Neill faced federal sentencing guidelines which were as much as six times the usual sentence. Judge Joyce Hens Green used her discretion and sentenced him to 15 months. Sources familiar with such sentences say that he will likely serve only "a year and a day." In addition, Mr. Neill will be under "supervised release" (a form of house arrest) for a year after his release. He was also fined $200,000 and is required to reimburse the government for the costs of his incarceration as well as his house arrest.

Mr. Neill's lawyers petitioned for him to be sent to Kentucky, rather than Cumberland, Maryland as originally planned, because he could not be guaranteed serving in minimum security in Cumberland and he also suffers from a heart condition which can be better monitored in Lexington.

Egyptians See Islam Ending Corruption

Distrust of Government Nourishes Militance

By Caryle Murphy
Washington Post Foreign Service

CAIRO—As he maneuvered his taxi past donkey carts and jaywalkers in the dusty southern Egyptian town of Aswan, the driver declared himself an admirer of President Hosni Mubarak. But then, after a pause, he added that he did not understand why the government will not run its affairs by sharia, or Islamic law, "like in Saudi Arabia."

"There are people in the government who are corrupt and who steal money," the driver said. "But under sharia there isn't anything like this, because the person who steals has his hands cut off. And someone who murders has his head cut off."

For decades, ordinary people in this vast country of nearly 60 million have taken it for granted that many of those who rule them from cosmopolitan Cairo are feathering their nests with public funds. If these were normal times in Egypt, the government might be able to go on ignoring this public assumption, continuing its relaxed approach to punishing official malfeasance.

But amid a nearly year-long violent campaign by Islamic militants bent on toppling the government, commentators here warn that the perceptions of widespread official corruption are nourishing the popular appeal of the Islamic opposition.

The militant Islamic Group, which has attacked government officials, Christians and tourism as part of its effort to replace Egypt's secular government with an Islamic state, cites corruption as a reason for imposing Islamic law.

The issue comes up early in conversations with Islamic Group supporters. "There are two classes in Egypt, and one class has all the money," said a lawyer sympathetic to the group. "Don't get me wrong. I'm not speaking of communism. Islam doesn't prohibit different groups from having money.

"But at least let's define the way these people get this money, so that the source of this money is Islamically legal—so it's not coming from giving people bribes," he said.

While Mubarak is widely regarded as personally free of such wrongdoing, his critics accuse him of failing to move openly against those in his administration and ruling National Democratic Party who are widely believed to be involved in shady dealings. This perceived attitude and the legal bureaucracy's lethargic pursuit of allegations are creating the wrong impression, critics say.

A former military officer who contends the growth in the number of Islamic extremists is due to "poverty, corruption and scandals," said: "We must clean Egypt, change ministers who are corrupt and put some of them in jail as an example to others. Then the government will be able to [eliminate] the reasons or the pretexts that facilitate the recruitment of these people."

Even the most basic government services here often require the payment of a "tip"—called baksheesh. The public has shown tolerance for such petty corruption, aware that it is impossible for a lower-level state employee's minuscule salary to support a family.

What bothers most, many Egyptians say, is sophisticated corruption at the upper levels of government.

EGYPT, From A10

"There is general acknowledgement among all people that corruption has spread in a startling manner, and it is affecting and weakening production performance and the Egyptian economy," wrote Tahseen Bashir, a former spokesman for the late president Anwar Sadat, in an open letter to Mubarak last September.

Bashir charged that this "produces a kind of monopoly where the state is able to distribute favors and graces to its supporters, who reap great fortunes as a result" and "are given all necessary permissions and required licenses."

Many Egyptians blame such corruption on the ruling party's long hold on power. The National Democratic Party has governed Egypt since Gamal Abdel Nasser's Free Officers' revolution in 1952 and has close ties to the military.

"Corruption isn't limited only to Egypt," retired high court judge Yehia Rifai said. "But no doubt about it, corruption exists here—and blatantly, because of inflation and military rule and the lack of real freedom and liberties."

"People are getting more angry" about it, he added, citing a protest by people left homeless by an earthquake here last October, in which demonstrators demanded fair distribution of the millions of dollars in relief pouring into Egypt from the outside.

The quake, which killed 560 and left more than 150,000 homeless, further heightened public impatience with official corruption after revelations that an apartment building that collapsed, killing 72 people, had several illegal floors and that its owner had been cited previously for building code violations.

"It is the responsible bodies' willingness to look the other way that is of most help to the criminals of construction," wrote Rose al-Youssef magazine, noting that even without an earthquake, houses collapse daily in Cairo.

Prosecutor General Ragaa Arabi, in an interview shortly after the earthquake, was vague when asked how many people had been prosecuted for taking bribes related to the building industry.

"There have been cases in various districts in which people complained about engineers . . . asking for bribes from owners to lie," he said, "but these are limited occurrences, and it only deals with bribes in giving licenses, and not in the building process."

Even when the Egyptian press, which lacks a tradition of investigative journalism, does point to alleged corruption, the charge is usually met by a wall of official silence, journalists said.

"You raise the issue, and nothing takes place to correct it," a senior editor of a major newspaper said. "You don't get an answer to what is raised. I tell you that you are a thief and you don't answer. You just leave it. You don't even sue me for defamation. That's the problem."

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 25, 1993 A5

Firm to Pay $3 Million For Diverting U.S. Funds

Reuter

A California company pleaded guilty yesterday to charges of defrauding the federal government in connection with the sale of military equipment to Israel, the Justice Department said.

It said National Airmotive Corp. of Oakland agreed to pay $3 million to the government as part of its guilty plea in San Francisco.

From 1985 until 1991, the company repaired and serviced aircraft engines for Israel under contracts funded by the Defense Department.

The Justice Department said the company, former Israeli air force officer Rami Dotan and others conspired to divert about $1.5 million of the funds for unauthorized uses.

''In the past, the impact of natural disasters - drought, flood, pestilence, and disease - was the prime factor, the momentum, behind the emergency needs,'' says Charles Gladson, the top Africa official for the US Agency for International Development (AID). Today, the main cause for hunger in these four nations is war, he recently told US congressional panels.

However, it added, the foreign parent of the issuer unconditionally guarantees the securities and gives security holders the right to proceed directly against the parent if the subsidiary defaults.

Debt Offering

Counsel to Hanson PLC, an English company that is also a reporting company under Section 12(b) of the 1934 Securities Exchange Act, asked for the no-action position in anticipation of a debt offering by Hanson Overseas Finance B.V., a Netherlands company. Hanson Overseas is an indirect, wholly owned subsidiary of Hanson PLC created in 1980 as a finance subsidiary for Hanson, counsel said.
It sells its debt securities and lends all or substantially all of the offering proceeds to Hanson or other subsidiaries in the Hanson group. Hanson Overseas does not have any independent operations other than acting as a finance company for the Hanson group and holding cash and cash equivalents sporadically.

Hanson Overseas proposed registering its debt securities on Form F-3 under the 1933 Securities Act, counsel said. Its parent company, Hanson, would unconditionally and fully guarantee the securities. Hanson's Overseas' obligation to make payments on the debt securities would be limited to amounts received from Hanson or other members of the Hanson group in payment of intercompany loans. The limitation on Hanson Overseas' obligation will not affect Hanson's guarantee to make all payments on the Hanson Overseas' debt securities when the payments are due.

Omit Financial Data

Hanson and Hanson Overseas asked for the staff's concurrence that they could omit financial information about Hanson Overseas -- including the ratio of earnings to fixed charges -- from the Form F-3 and any other registration statement filed for Hanson Overseas for future, similar offerings of debt securities with the parent's unconditional guarantee.

Further, counsel asked for no-action relief if Hanson Overseas does not file periodic reports under Section 13 or 15(d) of the '34 Act once the Form F-3 becomes effective.

The no-action request noted that the relief requested is consistent with relief granted in prior no action letters granted from 1986 through 1992. The most recent letter cited was one issued to the Bass Public Limited Co. and Bass America Inc., available Feb. 11, 1992.

Staff Response

The staff agreed not to recommend enforcement action if Hanson Overseas does not include in its Form F-3 registration statement for the proposed offering of debt securities Hanson Overseas' financial statements and financial information, including the ratio of earnings to fixed charges. The staff also said it would not object if Hanson Overseas does not file period reports under '34 Act Sections 13 and 15(d).

The no-action positions are conditioned on the fact that Hanson Overseas is wholly-owned by Hanson, that Hanson's guarantee is a full and unconditional guarantee, and that Hanson Overseas does not have any independent operations.

Hanson companies which have not yet filed accounts for last year include two - Morebeat and Hanson Overseas Holdings - which feature heavily in the corporate reorganisations which are characteristic of Hanson.

Outside experts have attributed the reorganisations, which often involve the juggling of assets and profits through a legion of offshore shelf companies, to an elaborate tax avoidance scheme though the company disputes that this is their primary purpose.

Martin Taylor, deputy chairman of Hanson, said that accounts for Morebeat and Hanson Overseas Holdings would become available shortly.

The shadow and the substance

THE origins of Egyptian theatre have been the subject of much debate: has it been influenced more by shadow theatre and Karaghoz or by Western drama? Today this debate is closed. For more than half a century theatre has been fully integrated into Egyptian social and cultural life, and playwrights, directors and actors today, like their counterparts elsewhere, have other preoccupations. They are concerned with problems of modern theatre and forms of production, the relationship between the latter and traditional and popular theatre, the question of freedom of expression in relation to the State, urban theatre and rural theatre, and so on.

Here I should like to give a brief account of the first of these problems, that of modern theatre, taking into account the link which exists between experimentation with forms inspired by Western theatre and those derived from the Egyptian and Arabic cultural heritage.

Egyptian theatre, has been characterized by two conflicting trends since the 1960s, a period during which theatre has experience d a remarkable flowering. The first trend is inspired by Western formal experimentation and trends such as the theatre of the absurd of Ionesco and Beckett, while the second draws its inspiration from Egyptian and Arabic stories and popular drama.

The "Pocket Theatre' created by Saad Ardash in 1962 and the "Avant-Garde Theatre' founded a few years later both encourage experimental work, but the more traditional National Theatre and the "El Hakim Theatre' also support bold productions.

These theatres have staged Tewfik el Hakim's Ya Tale'e El Shagar (You who climb the tree), a first attempt at Egyptian "theatre of the absurd', and El Farafir (The Fledglings) by Yusef Idris, in which the author brings together Western theatre and traditional forms by taking his two main characters from the Egyptian shadow theatre. In El Ardehalgui (The Public Writer) and El Wafed (The Outsider), Mikhail Romain evokes the absurdity of life through characters who shun reality and sink into a kind of paranoia. Alfred Farag was one of the first playwrights to draw inspiration from the Arab cultural heritage. His well-known trilogy the Barber of Baghdad, Ali guenah and Tabrizi and The Letters of the Judge of Seville have had a strong influence on the new Egyptian theatre. Farag is an innovator in the sense that he adapts old tales to modern times; he handles language and dialogue with great skill.

These playwrights produced their main body of work during the 1960s, and left their mark on that decade. There are also a number of talented young directors who have contributed to Egyptian theatre the knowledge and experience they acquired in Europe.

The development of Egyptian experimental theatre is largely due to such directors as Saad Ardash, Karam Metawe, Galal el Sharkawi and Ahmed Zaki. Their different approaches to their work have brought great diversity and richness to Egyptian theatre.

UNESCO Courier (c) 1988 IAC

While social theatre was the dominant trend in Egypt in the 1960s and formal experimentation was relatively limited, the 1970s saw the birth of a more aesthetically advanced theatre. Certain forms, such as "poetic theatre' and 'epic theatre' enjoyed a heyday. Salah Abdel Sabour, whose The Tragedy of El Hallaje had enriched "poetic theatre' as early as 1963, produced Leila and the Madman and After the Death of the King. Drawing inspiration from the Arab cultural heritage, Chawki Khamis brought a new dimension to epic theatre. Already perceptible in The City of Masked Men and Love and War, this epic dimension reached its apogee in Sindbad directed by Ahmed Zaki, a play in which the chorus and not the individual hero plays the leading role.

Fawzi Fahmi's The Virgin of Rachid is also a work of epic theatre, but here the language used by the author is of paramount importance; it is akin to the language of poetry, although it does not respect all the rules of poetry, and is close to the literary language, though lacking its rigidity.

The experiments carried out in modern Egyptian theatre thus reflect the current preoccupations of their authors. Today a period of pure experimentation seems to be over and to have given way to a less esoteric, more popular form of theatre.

The Associated Press, December 16, 1990

It was reported two weeks ago that Iraq obtained the 300-page technical study
;ade by the Minneapolis-based defense contractor in 1984 for $$100,000 in a deal
'ith IFAT, a Swiss arms broker.

Pentagon sources told the Star Tribune last week that they are investigating :oneywell to determine whether one of its executives sold plans for a ring laser 'yroscope to IFAT in 1984.

The device, which employs lasers and mirrors, can be used to guide aircraft
:s well as missiles. It is considered the heart of Honeywell guidance systems.

Weapons experts speculate that the Iraqis would employ the technology with missiles loaded with either chemical weapons or explosives such as the fuel-air explosive.

Iraq also has been working on a nuclear bomb, intelligence sources say.

Honeywell acknowledged that investigators from the Defense Technology Security Administration met with company officials Tuesday to discuss the bomb study and other possible sales to IFAT. Pentagon officials asked the company to look for documents that would indicate whether plans for the ring laser gyroscope were sold to IFAT.

HEADLINE: Despite denials, Egypt's secret nuclear effort may not be dead

BYLINE: By Christopher Drew, Chicago Tribune

DATELINE: WASHINGTON

In the late 1980s, an Egyptian military officer, Col. Ahmed Hussam El-Din Yossef Khairat, bought a small amount of unprocessed uranium in France while directing efforts to acquire parts for a medium-range ballistic missile that Egypt was developing with Iraq and Argentina.

Khairat had the uranium analyzed by a laboratory in Europe and, using a telephone facsimile machine, sent a copy of the results to a well-known Egyptian-American rocket scientist, Abdelkader Helmy, at his home outside Sacramento.

Khairat previously had paid Helmy $1 million to serve as his secret U.S. operative in a scheme to smuggle sensitive U.S. missile technology to Egypt. And he wanted Helmy's advice on how this uranium could be enriched to provide material for a nuclear ...

... U.S. intelligence agencies seriously underestimated the scope of Iraq's nuclear arms program before the Persian Gulf war, another group of analysts cautions that a secret Egyptian nuclear program could still be going on.

Helmy has said he did not know if Khairat, who could not be reached for comment, was acting under orders from high-level Egyptian leaders when he purchased the uranium, former U.S. officials said.

But they said Helmy also has told investigators that Egypt's defense minister in 1988, Abdel-Halim Abu Ghazala, personally controlled nearly every other aspect of Egypt's role in the missile development program, raising the possibility that he sanctioned Khairat's search for the uranium.

1991 Chicago Tribune, August 4, 1991

Helmy said Khairat also told him he was hoping to have the uranium enriched to weapons-grade material in Pakistan and was looking to buy more uranium.

According to Helmy, Khairat bought 100 kilograms of uranium, but it is not known if Khairat succeeded in getting the uranium enriched. If he did, experts ay, that amount of uranium would have provided Egypt a tiny portion of the material needed to detonate a nuclear warhead.

Yet it is unclear if top U.S. officials ever raised the issue of the uranium purchase with ...

... Pentagon officials said it was Egypt's desire to have a far more powerful missile than the basic Scud, a vintage Soviet design with a top range of only 71 miles, that prompted it to join Iraq and Argentina in the project that Khairat and Helmy were working on.

This so-called Condor II missile was meant to be able to hit targets at distances of 600 miles or more with much greater accuracy than most Third World missiles.

Helmy has told U.S. officials that, besides trying to create a nuclear warhead for the Condor, the participating countries also tried to develop warheads containing chemical weapons and fuel-air explosives, which break into a mist in the air and create a huge inferno.

Khairat, using the alias Dr. Hussam Yossef, set up offices in European cities and began searching the industrial world for the sensitive technology needed to make the venture work.

Helmy, 43, told the House Ways and Means Oversight Subcommittee in April that he had known Ghazala, the Egyptian defense minister, since childhood, and he began providing advice to him and Khairat in 1984.

Helmy said his involvement with the program escalated in 1987, when he joined Khairat and several others in what became the failed attempt to smuggle strategic material out of the Baltimore-Washington International airport aboard an Egyptian C-130 military transport plane.

A criminal complaint filed by the U.S. attorney in Sacramento in 1988 charged Khairat, under his false name, with smugggling charges similar to those against Helmy.

But U.S. officials were unable then to arrest Khairat, who they believe is now living in Egypt. The State Department said the U.S. has no power to bring him to trial because the extradition treaty with Egypt does not apply to the types of charges that he faces.

Helmy's appearance at the House subcommittee hearing in April also marked the only public reference by U.S. officials to Khairat's uranium purchase. It came when a former Customs Service agent, David Burns, answered "yes" when Rep. Richard Schulze (R-Pa.) asked if Helmy had told him about the purchase and "the Egyptian effort to develop a nuclear warhead."

... Thury, a Milland Drive resident who contends the gaping cracks in the walls of his basement were caused by the bulkhead work. "But they really came to pan for gold and leave. They don't care about the people who live here."

Members of Northport Marina Associates, the joint venture between Carlyle Northport Development Corp. of Manhattan and North Unity Corp. of Great Neck that is expanding the marina, say just the opposite is true.

"We are doing our best to address residents' concerns. But when you come into an essentially residential area and do something commercial, people are not used to it and you get a bit more friction than usual," said Robert Walsh, vice president of Northport Marina Associates.

Walsh, who is supervising the project, looked out the window of his makeshift office at the marina and smiled. Below him, several giant cranes scooped gravel into 30-foot-high mounds at the water's edge. Beyond the bent necks of the machines, dozens of ...

... piles of wood, steel and debris strewn across the property, the marina is far from beautiful these days. But even strident foes of the expansion concede it looks better now - and will look better still after renovations are complete - than it did when Northport Marina Associates bought it in 1986 from Northport Holding Co.

At that time, rats roamed the site, and vagrants camped out in boats abandoned on shore. Residents spoke of nighttime drug dealing and violence.

"This hasn't been the smoothest construction project ...

... line and becomes a yacht club, and you are pushing yourself further and further over that line," Hamburger told Walsh at the meeting. "It sounds more and more to me like a club."

Another concern is Walsh's admission that the 20 partners of Northport Marina Associates - none of whom lives in Northport - are considering turning the marina into a "dockominium," where boaters buy slips and hold the marina in group ownership like a condominium.

'After the property is developed, they will split their profits and go their separate ways," predicted ...

To go with the upscale look, the owners, Northport Marina Associates, have changed the marina's name from "Northport Marina" to "Britannia Yacht and Racquet Club."

The slips will be sold once renovations, costing $ 30 million to $ 35 million, are completed, possibly by Memorial Day, said Kim Kimmel, who is organizing the sales. He ...

Initially, residents were pleased about ...

... I don't think they're going to sell all those slips at those prices right away. That'll be five or ten years down the road," Nolan said. "In the meantime, they'll rent them."

... Fierstein & Sturman, had for years owned hotels that were operated under Holiday Inn franchises.

By January 1979, Walter and Sturman had already set up two corporations, L&M Walter Enterprises Inc., and Bayfield Enterprises Inc. They also had created Marina Associates, a general partnership to develop an Atlantic City casino.

When the partnership was struck in early 1979, the plaintiffs bought the outstanding shares of L&M, while Holiday Inns bought the outstanding shares of Bayfield. The two corporations held an equal share in Marina Associates, which by then had begun developing the 12-acre site. The partnership also agreed that a four-member executive committee consisting of two appointees from L&M and two from Bayfield would be formed to oversee the partnership.

Originally, the parties agreed that L&M would manage the construction and ...

... work order from village trustees last night to force the club to repair damage to their waterfront property they say was caused by the construction.

Kenneth Harris, of Milland Dr., said he and his neighbor, Steven Amodeo have had discussions with Robert Walsh, vice president of the Northport Marina Associates, and Northport Mayor Peter Nolan for months about sinkage on their waterfront property they say was caused when the marina dredged the area in front of their property.

... on his East Hampton house.

The Britannia Yacht and Racquet Club in Northport, which has 310 slips, is another marina for which an ownership plan was filed with the State Attorney General in 1990.

In that case, the plan collapsed because the owners, Northport Marina Associates, had to file for protection from creditors under a Chapter 11 proceeding to avoid foreclosure by Citibank, which had financed the project.

A REORGANIZATION plan is expected to be filed within one to three months, said Scott Levine, a partner of the Platzer ...

SECTION: NEWS HIGHLIGHTS: Export Financing.

TITLE: EXIMBANK, AID SIGN INTERAGENCY PACT ON NEW CENTRAL AMERICAN INSURANCE GUARANTEE FUND.

TEXT:

The United States took the first step toward implementing a new $300 million export guarantee fund intended to spur trade with Central America Dec. 19 with the signing of an interagency agreement between the U.S. Export-Import Bank and the Agency for International Development.

Congress approved the five-year program in the fiscal year 1985 continuing appropriations resolution, but imposed a $300 million ceiling on loans during the year (1 ITR 514, Oct. 24, 1984). In addition, the Administration is required to request funding on a yearly basis.

Early Criticism

The insurance program was the only major recommendation approved by Congress from the so-called Kissinger Commission recommendations made earlier last year (20 ITEX 542, Jan. 17, 1984). Also included in the original recommendations -- but not approved by Congress -- were a privately run Central American Development Organization, security assistance funds for police training, and additional foreign aid funds earmarked for agricultural reform programs.

Commenting on the new program during a recent conference on the Caribbean in Miami last month (1 ITR 770, Dec. 19, 1984), Washington foreign affairs consultant Denis M. Neil suggested that chances for the success of the Eximbank-AID program are questionable. Not only do the U.S. agencies have to agree on the program's operations, but U.S. businesses and firms, as well as the countries involved, must become familiar with it and promote it within their own borders, he said. It is a lot to expect between now and the end of fiscal 1985, when the funding runs out, he cautioned.

Neil suggested that standard application procedures through the regional central banks take at least 60 days to complete. The governments and the companies, at this time, simply do not seem interested enough in making it work, he said.

Press ALT-H for Research Software Help; Press ESC for the Utilities Menu

(C) BNA, Inc., International Trade Reporter, January 2, 1985

Eximbank's Rodriguez, in comments to BNA, dismissed that criticism. Intensive talks are under way with all the central banks in the region, she said. The central banks and U.S. commercial institutions are hard negotiators, she admitted, but pointed to similar programs in the region already in existence which should make the process easier. Eximbank has revolving fund arrangements with El Salvador, Guatemala, and Honduras, so the new program should not be that unfamiliar for them, she suggested.

From 1980 to 1983, U.S. exports to the region fell 16 percent. In the first eight months of 1984 -- compared to the same period in 1983 -- they rose some 12 percent. The trade credit insurance program is expected to generate further increases in U.S. sales, both agencies agreed.

Citizens of Manhattan are now seeking comfort in the soothing words of George Tamaro, who in 1967 oversaw the construction of the outer wall of the World Trade Centre foundations that support 1,250,000 tons of concrete and steel. ''They are robust buildings, structurally,'' he reassured an anxious public. An ordinary car bomb could not knock the building ...

... not for a past that they never consider anymore.

All these people in the World Trade Center pounding down stairs and through smoke depended on a building that can withstand a bomb.

"They are robust buildings, structurally," George Tamaro was saying yesterday. He is 56 now. At age 30 he was in charge of building the outer wall of the World Trade Center foundation.

... 107th floor said they felt and heard the blast and then, in what seemed to be almost immediately, breathed smoke.

But then all those tens of thousands of people used staircases that did not shake and were part of a building that did not move.

The man who understands this is George Tamaro, whose mark on his times are the outer walls of the foundation for the World Trade Center buildings. The outer walls were called the bathtub. Tamaro then was on the Port Authority engineering staff. He now is with Mueser Rutledge, consulting engineers in Manhattan. He spent yesterday in his home in Leonia, N.J., reading about the explosion and taking out his old building records to reinforce his memory.

The outside ...

A large part of the land was filled in and had a high water content from the river across the street. Cave-ins would have been likely and any temporary shoring up of foundation walls would have slowed actual construction.

So George Tamaro was put in charge of building the bathtub. There would be a trench built all around the perimeter of the land to be excavated. This trench would go from Liberty Street to Vesey Street and from West to Greenwich Streets, a distance of 3,400 feet. The trench Tamaro supervised was three feet wide and 70 feet deep and was filled with bentonite slurry. A slurry is a mixture of water and a powder - in this case, bentonite, a fluffy, expansive, gray, clay volcanic ash. The slurry had the consistency of pea ...

The television show "Inside Edition" announced Friday it plans to air an interview with the woman next week, showing footage of the woman switching personalities.

Inside Edition reporter Janet Tamaro said the show decided to use the interview after consulting with the woman, her mother, Mrs. Reeves and counselors about the consequences of revealing her identity.

"We were willing to do it any way all of them were willing to do it - any way they wanted," Ms. Tamaro said. "We really left it up to them to decide."

HEADLINE: Arming for Peacetime: Egypt's Defense Industry Today

BYLINE: Michael Dunn, Editor

HIGHLIGHT:
Egypt has been at peace with Israel for eight years now; it is a decade since Anwar Sadat's trip to Jerusalem. The third major defense show to be held in Cairo, the second officially-sponsored one, opens this month. Editor Michael Dunn offers an update on Egypt's defense industry, its problems and prospects.

The defense industry which services the world's 15th-largest armed forces assembles trainer aircraft and helicopters, armored vehicles and missiles, but also makes televisions and bedsheets, and bakes bread.

1987 Defense & Foreign Affairs, October, 1987

Egypt has been at peace with Israel since 1979, and despite occasional tensions with Libya, with which it fought a small border war in 1977, the country has been essentially at peace. Its armed forces, now down to some 466,000, have been reduced in size from what was ...

... establishment has ventured into many areas involving civilian production, not unlike the Chinese Army; there is some conflict with the private sector over the Egyptian military factories' efforts to produce commercial products.

But the commercial side is only a small part of Egypt's defense industrial base, which is expanding. Egypt's defense industries began in the British ays and began to blossom in the Nasser era, took on new life as Egypt sought to re-establish its inventory after Anwar Sadat broke with the Soviet Union, and has hit a new stride in the era of Defense Minister Field Marshal Muhammad 'Abd al-Halim Abu Ghazala.

Egypt's defense posture today is much more varied than in the past. With the peace with Israel, there is no longer a single clear-cut enemy. Of its neighbors, only Libya is openly hostile, and Egypt has resisted the temptation reportedly offered by the US) of a strike at Libya. Egypt continues to provide a sort of defense umbrella to the Sudan, but Sudanese-Egyptian relations have been strained since the coup against Ja'far Numeiri and the warming of ties between Tripoli and Khartoum.

None of this should be taken as meaning that Egypt has no defense concerns. Located where Asia and Africa join, Egypt must defend the Suez Canal and the key approaches to it, and guarantee secure passage through the Red Sea, especially with Saudi Arabia's Navy increasingly preoccupied in the Gulf. As the largest and best-armed Arab state, Egypt has been a major supporter of Iraq in the Gulf war, providing arms and equipment and, rumor insists, some advisers and perhaps pilots, though this is denied.

One lesson Egypt's defense planners learned from the Nasser era was to avoid overreliance on a single supplier and to concentrate on building up one's own domestic production. When Sadat threw the Soviets out, Egypt was almost exclusively armed with Soviet equipment. While the Chinese were of some help in providing spares and replacements, the period of suspended relations between Moscow and Cairo was a period in which large quantities of equipment was unusable. Reverse engineering and retrofit with Western equipment has rescued some of it; better ties with Moscow may now be providing long-missing spares.

While Sadat tilted Egypt heavily towards the United States, he did not commit Egypt exclusively to US equipment. Far from it. Egypt now has its first complete squadron of Mirage 2000s flying, alongside the US-provided

F-16s. Its trainer aircraft are the Brazilian Tucano and the Franco-German Alpha Jet, both assembled in Egypt. Egypt's inventory includes, at the moment, equipment from at least the following suppliers: the US, Soviet Union, UK, France, Italy, China, West Germany, Spain, Romania, South Korea, Switzerland, Sweden, and probably more. Diversification is one credo of Field Marshal Abu Ghazala's acquisition policy; local involvement, whether assembly, spares or components manufacture, or full licensed production is another.

Egypt manufactures a wide range of equipment of various kinds, including some of its own design. Increasingly, the purchase of a foreign system is often determined by the extent to which some Egyptian involvement will ultimately be possible. This has not been available for all systems; assembly of the F-16 remains on the wish list but is not likely to be imminent, though Egypt does plan to assemble the Mirage 2000. Its Mirage buys, however, have been plagues with financing problems and delayed as a result.

In recent years Egypt has vastly increased its local assembly and/or production of foreign-designed systems, and has also moved ahead with several systems of its own design; recently its locally reverse-engineered and then upgraded version of the Soviet SA-7 shoulder-launched SAM, the Saqr Factory's 'Ayn al-Saqr, entered full production.

Press ALT-H for Research Software Help; Press ESC for the Utilities Menu

This year Egypt will be displaying new systems and announcing new procurement decisions at the Cairo Defense Exhibition, now being held every three years.

Egypt's economic problems (See "Mother of the World", Page Eight) have led to some cutbacks in the defense field, particularly in purchases from countries where credits or grants were not available. Although current Egyptian purchases from the US are under FMS grants (or foreign credits) rather than loans, Egypt still has a heavy debt obligation for its early, pre-Camp David military credits from the US, many of which came due after 10 years. Of Egypt's $ 40-billion in external debt, $ 9-billion is military debt.

DEALS ON HOLD

AT THE MOMENT, major new defense deals are on hold. Credits are frozen and budgets tight, as part of the general austerity. Except for those US deals being paid for through forgiven FMS credits, there is little room for any major projects, just small, peripheral deals or individual sales. This may change -- Western suppliers are hoping it will -- if Egypt's economic straits ease. Meanwhile there are a number of new projects still going ahead, but expansion is limited for now.

Press ALT-H for Research Software Help; Press ESC for the Utilities Menu

Yet Egypt has been actively engaged in many projects to acquire new equipment and upgrade or retrofit old. It has been actively building up its navy, despite budget limitations. (See the interview with Michael Stanfield on Page 31.) It has sought innovative new ...

... true hybrid air defense vehicle, the Nile 23. It has several tank refit projects under way, with US and British companies seeking to upgrade Soviet T-54 tanks. The Soviet T-55 is already undergoing retrofit in Egypt, with British Royal Ordnance 105mm guns being added at Factory 100.

But Egypt's long-term tank problem has raided controversy this year, largely because of premature and inadequate publicity. Egypt has, for years, sought to, first, achieve a tank overhaul and repair facility for its US M-60 series tanks. This would, it is hoped, be able to mature into an assembly and, eventually, production factory for main battle tanks. This factory, ...

... 200, at Abu Zaabal in the Delta, is being built at Abu Zaabal north of Cairo by General Dynamics with the local National Service Projects Organization. Factory 200 should be ready for its first overhaul work next year.

Egypt hopes that Factory 200 will someday produce Main Battle Tanks; Abu Ghazala has made little secret of the fact that the General Dynamics M-1 Abrams is his preference (though, Britain, France, Brazil, and possibly West Germany are still possible ...

... Abu Ghazala has also spoken of possible M-1 cooperation with Turkey, which also has a major MBT requirement.

This hope to someday build the M-1, combined with the fact that US Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger had approved in principle the sale of the M-1 to Egypt and also approved discussions between Egypt and General Dynamics about possible future assembly or even licensed production, sparked a new controversy in the US this year. Although the possibility of M-1 production is not new -- Minister of State for Defense Production Gamal al- ...

... Egyptian local production of M-1 tank was imminent, instead of a possible option for sometime in the 1990s as both Egyptian and US discussants envision it. Local assembly of the M-1 could cost $ 2-billion, eating up Egypt's FMS funds; under current US policy, these funds could not be used for the Egyptian component of the project anyway, though the US seems amenable to allowing more aid money to go into local production.

In fact, the M-1 project is still a rather remote one, merely an option being discussed. But the story injected the idea into US political controversy at the very time when the US was insisting that Israel could not afford to build the Lavi fighter with US aid money. That Egypt, similarly, could not afford to spend all its aid money on building the M-1 was obvious; what was not so obvious was that no one considered the M-1 project an imminent deal, but a project for the next decade. For the first time since Camp David, there was Congressional opposition to an arms sale to Egypt: a sale not even proposed.

It is also important to remember that because of financing and other problems, deals with Egypt often take a long time to achieve. Delivery of the Mirage 2000s was delayed, and assembly of the Mirage is still in the future. Westinghouse negotiated and competed for many years before the Egyptians decided to order and build locally the AN/TPS-63 radar.

One reason for Egypt's emphasis on domestic production is the capability of exporting locally produced equipment. Like almost all defense industries except Japan's, Egypt needs the hard currency of foreign sales. In addition to seeking licensed production of systems, it seeks the right to export Egyptian-assembled systems to regional markets. It assembled the Embraer Tucanos for Iraq, for example, and is said to have rights to regionally export locally-assembled Mirage 2000s someday, when that project is fully realized. At one point, when the Soviets were refusing to send arms to Iraq, Egypt exported $ 1-billion worth of arms, mostly equipment of local manufacture or out of

Along with extraordinary debits of @5.6m as a further cost relating to the move to the Ni-Tec plant in Dallas, Texas, and @2.73m in redundancy payments, below the line costs totalled @10.93m, partially offset by a @8.2m transfer from reserves.

Sir Frank Cooper, in his first annual statement as chairman, says the board ...

The redundancy costs (which might have been better placed as an exceptional) relate to Alvis, factory relocation is part of the total $16m cost of sorting out Ni-tec in the US and the provision for listed investments is a write-down against a near 5 per cent holding in Westland -- a saga that does not bear repeating here. After such awful figures it is possible that this year might see some recovery although the first half is bound to be dull as Ni-tec in the US, having swung from a @2m profit to a @2m loss last year, will not break even on a monthly basis till early in 1986. BODY:
... profits for the last full year, United Scientific Holdings has slipped further in the opening six months of the current year, reporting a decline of more than @1.5m to @5.36m for the period ending March 31.

There have been more problems at the Ni-Tec plant in Dallas, Texas, where night telescopic sights are made. Delays in completion of the new facility resulted in greater disruption to production than had been anticipated, and costs relating to this have been included in an extraordinary charge of @1.62m (nil).

In the accounts for 1983/84 the directors said that the cost of the Ni-Tec move had been accounted for in full with a @3.64m debit below the line. They also then expected a better result for the current year, and stressed the strength of the order book. This is unchanged at the midway stage at @163m.

There will be further costs incurred at Ni-Tec in the second half, during which time the facilities will become fully operational.

Turnover for the period under review -- the group is an arms company -- fell sharply from @64.28m to @49.94m. Sir Frank Cooper, who became chairman last April, says that the fall was due to reorganisation and lower vehicle sales at Alvis, its armoured car manufacturer, as well as the Ni-Tec troubles.

Sir Frank adds that apart from Ni-Tec all group companies have traded profitably during the first half, and that this should continue. Several major contract opportunities, including those for armoured vehicles, are expected to be brought to a conclusion shortly.
Production of night-sight tubes has re-started at Ni-Tec, and the current order book there is at a record level. Furthermore, says Si Frank, Ni-Tec is now competing fo the U.S. requirement.
A contract award is expected about the end of the year and would guarantee production continuity for the new factory through to the end of the decade.

He adds that group trading and profits in the second half should exceed that of the first. The ...
... at least close to last year's @12m. If it then wins a couple of large orders, for U.S. night vision or the MCV80 for Alvis, its longer-term growth will be rather more secure. In the meantime, the disruption at Ni-Tec, with the concomitant extraordinary costs, will continue this year and Ni-Tec's profits will not come through until next year. The prospective p/e of over 11 on yesterday's price of 170p seems reasonable enough, but the shares will look cheap if USH does win a major order.

WHO COULD DOUBT that something significant is taking place in the balance between the world's major powers? For the first time in more than a decade, a US Government is taking strategic initiatives and is taking -- or re-taking -- control of its own strategic destiny across almost the entire global spectrum. Only by strategtic action, rather than reaction, has any of the major powers taken any advantage in the post-World War II era, and the strategic benefits to the US of former President Richard Nixon's China initiative spelled this out clearly. Apart from that, initiative in the past two decades has lain with the USSR, and the advantages have been disbursed accordingly.

President Ronald Reagan's international strategic initiatives have been many, and they have, predictbly, caused grave concern to the USSR. But these initiatives culminated with the November proposals of the United States for a major reduction in the nuclear threshhold in Europe. The move was both a viable military proposal -- potentially lowering the economic cost of maintaining the balance in that theateras well as reducing the potential for European conflict to escalate -- but it took the almost unprecedented step of giving the United States a political/psychological advantage in the East-West confrontation for the first time in years. No wonder the USSR reacted so unfavorably to the proposal by Washington, which would have eliminated the Soviet SS-20 MRBMs and the US Cruise and Pershing II missiles from Europe.

Thus from no matter which political perspective the US initiatives over the past year are viewed, there can be no question but that the balance is changing in grand strategy terms. Does this necessarily lead closer to conflict? Not in itself. Is conflict closer? Well, if it is assumed that international conflict moves in heavy -- if not entirely predictable -- cycles, then it must also be assmed that we also move toward future conflict. The question is whether or not the recent moves pave the way for making the conflict more survivable, or limitable, and the answer is probably yes, for essential balance of forces generally eliminates initiatives which lead to over-whelming military victory. In stalemate lies survival, perhaps. As this writer has said for serveral years, the trend toward superiority must eventually -- and in the forseeable future --lead into space. Here, the US Space Shuttle has shown its potential. But Soviet initiatives of a similar, although less public, nature should not be ignored. It would hardly be surprising if the USSR, with its extensive experience in manned orbital spaceflight, had not already committed a loworbit anti-satellite manned space conflict vehicle into being, if not into orbit.

THIS EDITION IS the first since we held the Cairo Conference on Strategic Directions in concert with the Cairo Military Exposition, CMECO '81. Much of the issue is devoted to covering that affair. It was an exciting event for us at Defense & Foreign Affairs: never before have we witnessed a more successful trade show and conference in the military sphere, despite the limitations in the size of the Cairo affair. We're looking forward to CMECO '83 and hopefully, the same warm welcome from the Egyptian people.

Apart from the unstinting support of the Egyptian Minister of Defense, Gen. Abu Ghazala, and his officers, a number of executives proved that they understood what the defense industry and the Egyptians were seeking when they sought to stage the show. Particularly significant in this regard were Kamel al-Fattah and Dr. Hisham Issa and the staff of Ankram Office in Cairo; Bob Asher, Bill Jensen and Jeanette Anderson at the Aeromaritime office in Washington DC; H.E. "Skip" Heydt, who roved the world servicing CMECO clients; the Aeromaritime staff in Paris and Rome; and Dr. Michael Dunn at the D&FA office in Washington DC. Working with both the Egyptian Government and CMJECO the latter being the former US Deputy Under-Secretary of Defense for Research and Engineering (Procurement).

It was surprising that this team, who had never before organized a trade show, were able to so successfully achieve their objectives with CMECO '81. Congratulations! It was well worthwhile.

BODY:

It is significant that the primary objective of the Cairo Military Exposition and the Cairo Conference on Strategic Directions was not commercial; the organizers thought that they would lose money. The objective was to be able to expose Egyptian military officers at all levels with the broadest possible range of new military technology without the cost or time delays of sending huge delegations abroad to inspect factories and products. The only answer was to bring the technologies and experts to Egypt.

Prime mover in this, after Egypt's dynamic Minister of Defense, Gen. Muhammad Abdel Halim Abu Ghazala, was a former artillery brigadier, Kamel al-Fattah, chairman of Ankram Office, which deals in defense materiel. He enlisted the aid of Aeromaritime, another defense and high technology material company, and together they formed the Cairo Military Exposition Company. Defense & Foreign Affairs was enlisted to provide the conferencing and other services.

The fact that the specific objective was to educate and familiarize as many officers as possible with the available technologies, and to stimulate debate and discussion in the area of technology transfer, coupled with the stated Egyptian objective of modernizing the Armed Forces, stimulated exhibitor and speaker interest in a market jaded by the staging of "trade fairs" for purely commercial reasons.

But the affair could not have been as smoothly successful without the constant atrention over many months of the general manager of the Heliopolis Sheraton Hotel, Mr Karl Foerster. In a city normally plagued with accomodation problems, Foerster ensured that businessmen were accomodated with a minimum of fuss. On top of that, however, he also provided a variety of other services which have marked the Heliopolis Sheraton as almost certainly the most professionally run -and most pleasant -hotels in the Middle East and Africa, and among the best in the world.

Significantly, the show turned out to be a financial success, not only for the organizers but also for many participants. And during the unforeseeable drama which surrounded the death of President Anwar al-Sadat, CMECO '81 served as a reminder that the Egyptian Armed Forces were determined to proceed with their course of modernization and deterrence.

CMECO '81 reflected well on Egypt as well as on all the organizers of the show. It also could not have gone ahead without the ongoing support of President Husni Mubarak who was prevented from personally attending because of the period of mourning for the late Pres, Sadat.

BODY:

FEW THINGS EXCITE the imagination as much as the awakening of a nation. Dreams of past glories are lackluster by comparison with the aspirations of a great tomorrow. To participate in realizing of these aspirations -- and to witness the bursting forth from the chrysalis -- is, perhaps, the motivation of many people involved in the strategic decisionmaking process of their countries. Watching the transformation of Egypt has been fascinating since the departure of the monarchy and the British several decades ago, but particularly since President Anwar al-Sadat's dramatic visit to Jerusalem and the start of a new period of peace. It is sincethen that the strategic orientation of Egypt has changed, and with this change has come new priorities in defense planning and procurement; new roles for the Armed Forces. Significantly, and through an unforeseeable train of events, Egypt's Armed Forces have in recent months acquired a new Minister, Gen. Muhammad Abdel Halim Abu Ghazala, a distinguished former artilleryman and intelligence chief who served for several years in Washington during the crucial Camp David peace negotiation period. Defense & Foreign Affairs was fortunate to be able to interview him -- for the second time this year -- in Cairo, for this special edition.

Gen. Abu Ghazala made some significant revelations in his interview: about the diversification of procurement sources, about plans to make the Armed Forces self-sufficient even in food production, and about his ideas on educating the emerging generation of officers in the significant new technologies. It was for that reason that Gen. Abu Ghazala was the guiding light behind the Cairo Military Exposition for which this edition is published, and the concurrent Cairo Conference on Strategic Directions organized by Defense & Foreign Affairs. Within a matter of months, Gen. Abu Ghazala has put his dynamic mark onto Egypt's new peacetime Armed Forces, giving it a function and renewed morale at a time when it lacked -- for the first time since 1948 -- a clearcut role.

The Exposition -- CMECO '81 -- therefore has a clearcut task and an audience of Egyptian and other invited officers who are pointedly interested in using the event, including the Conference, to learn as much as possible. It is rare indeed that a "trade show" such as this can achieve such an objective. Perhaps for this reason the show was a sell-out: every available booth was taken; every speaker slot in the Conference filled. Thousands of extra copies of this Special Edition have, by request, been despatched to serve as the official guide and program of CMECO '81. We were delighted that this publication should have been chosen, naturally, and that Defense & Foreign Affairs should have been called upon to organize the professional conference accompanying the Exposition.

The physical organization of the event has been undertaken by a specially-formed company, the Cairo Military Exposition Company, based in Cairo, and it is this organization which undertook the transformation of Artillery House, Heliopolis, into a trade fair location. Their effort was massive: two major pavillions were built in the months leading up to the affair, and significant work was undertaken on Artillery House itself. The leading light behind this was CMECO's chairman, Kamel M. Abd El-Fattah, himself a former Artillery Brigadier, and now also head of Ankram Office, a firm intimately involved in the Egyptian -- and Middle Eastern/African -- defense industrial scene.

Kamel El-Fattah's task was made possible by a trans-Atlantic link with their US partner in CMECO, Aeromaritime. From the Aeromaritime office in McLean, just outside Washington DC, CMECO vice-president Bill Jensen coordinated a worldwide effort to bring to Cairo those firms who could show the Egyptian Armed Forces the things they asked to see. In Cairo, where patience and a skill at bureaucratic procedure are never unrewarded virtues, Jensen had a counterpart who was able to piece things together "on location": Dr Hisham Issa, a vice-president of CMECO and Ankram. The third vice-presidential leg was assumed by H. E. "Skip" Heydt, who brought extensive defense marketing experience to bear, complementing the skills of his colleagues. At D & FA, Dr Michael Dunn coordinated the mass of listings and Arabic translations. It's been rewarding.

The United Nations revealed charges Thursday that five critics of U.S. chrome imports from Rhodesia, were themselves breaking the U.N. embargo against the white white-minority Salisbury government.

The Associated Press, February 10, 1977

A report released by the U.N. secretariat said the Soviet Union, East Germany, Czechoslovakia, Romania and Bulgaria have been violating the embargo by secret trade with Rhodesia through Swiss firms.

The Soviet Union and Romania were said to have denied the charges.

In Salisbury, Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith confirmed Thursday he is considering a test of black opinion, possibly a referendum, to determine which black nationalist leaders command the greatest following in Rhodesia.

Smith spoke at a news conference after returning from talks with South African Prime Minister John Vorster in Cape Town. He said there was a general consensus" in his views and Vorster's on Rhodesia.

The U.N. report was prepared by the Security Council committee of the whole, which meets privately to check on compliance with the council's 1965 and 1968 orders banning trade with Rhodesia and transport of Rhodesian goods.

The report said Britain "informed the committee that Michelle Enterprises Pvt Ltd., of Salisbury, a Southern Rhodesian trading agency, was conducting regular trade with state trading organizations the U.S.S.R., Czechoslovakia, Romania, Bulgaria and the German Democratic Republic East Gerhany.

The Associated Press, February 10, 1977

"The information indicated that Michelle Enterprises Pvt, Ltd., exported tobacco and other agricultural commodities from Southern Rhodesia and, in turn, imported chemicals, metals and agricultural requirements from Eastern Europe.

"The trade was reputedly conducted via three Swiss companies, Comaisa S.A., obatrade S.A., and Centrex S.A. , all in Geneva, hwich existed solely to rovide a seemingly legitimate cover for a major sanctions - breaking perations," the U.N. report said.

The committee said Soviet and Romanian representatives on the panel had categorically denied that any such trade existed with the trading organizations n their countries."

It also said that, at the time the report was prepared, "the committee was till considering what action to take."

The other Communist countries accused are not on the committee because they o not belong to the Security Council.

The United Nations still uses the name Southern Rhodesia even though it is utdated. Northern Rhodesia long ago became Zambia.

HIGHLIGHT:
The Government-controlled part of Egypt's defense industrial sector now employs 70,000 people, and takes a on tasks of growing complexity. It is now an active earner of foreign exchange through its exports, and it saves considerable amounts of the country's foreign reserves by providing major portions of the national need at home. The man who has guided this evolution for the past decade is the Minister of State for Defense Production, Gen. Gamal el-Sayed Ibrahim, who spoke with us in Cairo.

BODY:

Minister el-Sayed, can you start by giving some introduction to the Ministry of Military Production: what it does, and some background history?

The Military Production is carried out by about 26 companies, specialized in military production. Some of them are with us [the Ministry], and nine are with the AOI [Arab Organization for Industrialization]. There are also workshops under the Defense Ministry. The companies employ about 70,000 people; that includes AOI. Their output capacity is about E@1.8-billion, but we're working under this capacity at present. So there is still room to grow.

These companies work as an integrated group, whether here at the Ministry of Military Production, or at AOI, or in Defense. We integrate along many axes. That means that we are a group which has its own foundries, our own engineering companies, our own speciality chemical companies, our own electronic and electrical companies. So, we do most of the things we need at home (in Egypt).

We started building the military industries in the early 1950s, before there was a major industrial base in the country. Our first production was in 1954; that was small arms ammunition. So we're about 35 years old.

We now produce all the ammunition needed -- in all calibers -- by the Egyptian Armed Forces. We produce all our own small arms in Egypt, from pistols and rifles to submachineguns and light machineguns. We also produce medium caliber guns, our own artillery and we produce the guns for our tanks.

AOI produces missiles, including surface-to-surface systems and anti-tank missiles, and some surface-to-air, like the Sakr Eye. We do it all here: the fuses, the propulsion material, the metal parts, and so on.

Of course we're also building 80 percent of the Tucano [under license from Embraer, of Brazil] at AOI. We also make components for the Alpha Jet, and for the Gazelle helicopter, and for many other aircraft.

We're also producing almost 90 percent of the communications systems used by the Egyptian Armed Forces; HF, VHF, line-of-sight equipment and so on. We are doing gap-filler radars now with Westinghouse, and we're also working in computers and electronic warfare systems.

This gives you an idea of what we're doing in Egypt.

You've been Minister of State for Military Production for nearly a decade now . . .

Well, yes, nearly a decade. It be a decade next May.

When I came to the job it was with the view that no defense force will take products from their own factories unless those products are good. No soldier will carry a weapon which has not been properly developed.

The Ministry of Defense is our customer, and we have to work hard to keep them satisfied.

We have moved from just producing the ammunition and weapons to building the platforms, as well, sometimes on armored vehicles. We have put the ZU-23 [23mm anti-aircraft artillery] -- which is an old gun system which we now build entirely in Egypt -- into a new system in cooperation with French companies. We are working with Thomson-CSF and Electronique Serge Dassault on two mobile versions which combine ground-to-air missiles and the ZU-23 gun systems on the same platform, integrated with radar and electro-optical systems. These are extremely modern and sophisticated systems. One is the Sinai 23, on which we are working with Serge Dassault, and the other is the Nile 23 with Thomson.

We have upgraded the 23mm anti-aircraft gun system with the Contraves Gun King system for very high accuracy against low-flying aircraft. We have also mounted our 122mm gun system on armored vehicles. We have also upgraded out T-54 and T-55 tanks with a 105mm gun. That (105mm) gun is completely built here under license from Britain.

So we're working in two areas: one involves making very up-to-date systems here, and the other involves upgrading existing systems. The T-55 tank, for example [acquired some 20 years ago], has a very good silhouette, and we have been able to modernize its ammunition, its gun and powerpack, and so on, so that it can still serve for another 10 years as a very up-to-date tank. This, for us, is a very worthwhile project because a new tank today costs between $ 2- and $ 3-million.

We have modernized some of our old aircraft, such as the MiG-21, and older ships for the Navy.

Well, of course, Egypt pioneered much of the field of retrofitting and transformation of Eastern bloc equipment . . .

Yes, by reverse engineering and so on. We are reverse engineering, we are updating, and we are developing systems. Anything to keep our systems going. And to be able to sell them.

Your major client -- for the factories of the National Directorate of Military Industries and AOI -- would be the Egyptian Armaments Authority?

Well, the Armaments Authority is at the head of it all. But every director of a (military) department has a responsibility (in procurement), but the Armaments Authority must find the money; must allocate the budget.

What would be the approximate export sales of Egypt's defense industries at the moment?

We have good sales abroad, whether directly through our factories or through the Ministry of Defense. But, of course, the factories exist primarily to help Egypt's own security, although we do extend our products to friendly countries. We don't sell just for the sake of selling, and of course the Government must approve all defense exports.

But we also make products for the Egyptian civilian sector, and this is working out very well for the economy of the country. We use our presses and facilities and so on to produce civilian goods on a regular basis. We have entered into a joint venture, for example, with Johnson Wax. Our chemical factories provide some of the ingredients. Saudi Arabia is also a partner in this. We also provide most of the components for locally-built water pumps, for agricultural equipment, and many other things to support the economy.

The civilian work helps us to maintain a stable workforce during the troughs in defense work.

Egypt, a couple of years ago, signed, with the United States, a Memorandum of Understanding on mutual defense procurement policies. Have you started to take advantage of this, to try to get contracts with the United States?

We are trying. New fields are always difficult, and the US market is one of the most difficult because it is open to all competition. The learning curve to get into the US market is a slow one. Of course, we can go into subcontract work with US firms and in this regard we are competitive because our labor rates are not so high.

At the rate of the dollar right now -- about two-and-a-half pounds to the dollar -- our workers, who have an average salary of about E@350 a month, are earning the equivalent of about US$ 150 a month. Nobody in the US would work for those kind of wages, but here the average is around E@250 to E@350. So even the Far Eastern countries cannot compete with us on labor rates.

So we're trying to determine those areas with a high labor content, because that is where we would be most competitive. We've been working with companies like General Dynamics, and GTE. By going into the US market in this way, we will be under pressure to meed deadlines, and to achieve quality levels. This will help us to grow up in that market.

There has been considerable discussion lately about the three other Arab states -- Saudi Arabia, Qatar and the UAE -- who were original shareholders with Egypt in AOI coming back into the Arab Organization for Industrialization. Is this likely to change the way the AOI works or bring about any other changes?

No, the AOI factories already works for the entire Arab world. If the other Arab states resume their position in AOI, it won't affect it except to make it better.

Egypt is negotiation for a fourth batch of F-16 fighters, and already Egyptian factories make some F-16 components for General Dynamics. Is there any possibility that Egypt could assemble, or build, some of the fourth batch F-16s?

I don't think that this is being discussed. Definitely we could do parts of the project. We can certainly repair and maintain the aircraft, but it is a very advanced aircraft. I haven't heard of any plans to assemble the F-16 here.

Assembly means an assembly line, and an assembly line is the start of a production cycle. Technically it could be done, but economically it would require a greater number of aircraft than the fourth batch of F-16s.

But you would be looking at offsets for the F-16 and other projects?

The idea of offsets is a good one, but I don't know that it is fully accepted in the United States. We are trying this route. To us it means a great deal in the transfer of technology, among other things. We have already done this in small areas, and we are now trying to broaden our offset work.

On the M1A1 tank, which Egypt is acquiring, what percentage of the system do you eventually hope to build here?

I don't want to complicate matters on the M1 right now. But, for example, we do have a gun factory which is very well equipped, and out tank factory will be among the most modern in the world and planned in cooperation with the US. We are already supporting all of our East bloc tanks, for example. I think we have worked out a program with the United States [on the M1] which I think is fair. Obviously, I want to do more, but it's a fair arrangement.

Saudi Arabia has been looking at the M1. Has the prospect been discussed of Egyptian participation in the construction of any Saudi M1s?

I know that this has been the subject of speculation in the press and it has been discussed a policy level [in the Egyptian Government]. The Saudis want 300 or 500 or more M1s, I think. Of course it would be good for us if we could participate in this project, but it would have to be agreed at a policy level in Saudi Arabia and the US as well.

Our present agreement [on the manufacture of the M1A1] does not allow for sale of the tank outside Egypt with US permission. So this would have to be discussed with the US, and I don't think it has been raised because we have not yet finished our own factory where the Egyptian M1s will be built.

Your M1 factory -- Factory 200 -- will be a completely new factory?

Yes, that's right. It will be a build/rebuild facility, so it will look after all the M60 MBTs already in service in the Egyptian Army as well as building the M1.

What are the technology goals for the Egyptian defense industry as a whole?

We are trying to be up-to-date on everything we can.

What sort of support do you get from the private sector?

We are taking many things from the private sector. All the plastics components, for example, come from this area. Some of the ferrous metals output we take, and so on. But mostly the private sector in Egypt does not want to be involved in the defense area except in areas such as simulators and so on, with a major computer input. The private sector normally likes to go into areas with lower capital investment, higher return and a quicker return on investment.

Even in the US we see that much of the major capital investment is from the Government, with Government-supplied facilities and equipment managed by the private sector.

Do you have a set of defense quality standards which can be imposed on any private sector input?

We certainly apply our stringent quality assurance controls on any private sector input into defense products. We are trying to encourage the private sector to become more involved in defense contracting, but we must move carefully.

We are trying to involve the private sector in the MoU which we have the the United States, and it is also policy within our groups to use private sector suppliers where possible.

Egyptian private sector suppliers make such things as small portable radios for use by the police, for example. They're involved in broadcast radio facilities, and switching systems, and so on. We are encouraging that.

Everywhere in Egypt one sees a lot of 7.62 mm AK-47 rifles used by the military. Do you have any plans for tooling up for a 5.56 mm design?

The 7.62mm AKM -- "M" for Misr, Egypt -- is very good. But everyone is moving toward the new caliber and we are now trying to determine what the Armament Authority would like best. We can either go with another Eastern bloc design, which would entail minimal change in (manufacturing) equipment from the AKM, or we can get a license (from a Western manufacturer) and make a bigger investment in a totally new infrastructure.

We are now waiting for the Armaments Authority's decision.

But both the prototype rifles we have here have undergone considerable testing. But we could move on either one of these designs immediately.

The AKM has been an excellent rifle and we hate to move out of it, but if the Armament Authority says to go to the new caliber, then we'll move rapidly. We don't want the Armaments Authority buying from abroad. We've already built prototypes of the new weapons, and tested them.

Virtually all the Armed Forces' vehicles are now produced here I understand . . .

Our NASCo produces these lorries, and the Army likes them very much. We have started to develop the vehicle in many ways for various uses.

NASCo is not, however, one of the companies in the National Directorate for Military Production or AOI. It is, however, a public sector company. But General Motors and another, Japanese, company have assembly operations here.

You're starting preparations now for the 1990 Cairo Military Exhibition .

Yes, and I feel that the 1990 show will be a very good one. Now we have a better relationship with the Arab world and this will make it very strong. We have never had so many inquiries about participation as we are now getting from Britain, the US, France and Italy and so on.

Minister, many thanks indeed for talking with us.

"TRADUTTORE TRADITORE", the Italians say: "to translate is treason". This was a thought uppermost in our minds when we sat down to work on the task of translating a substantial part of this special Cairo Military Exhibition edition into Arabic. On the surface, a simple enough task. But, as Assistant Editor Mike Dunn, a PhD in Middle Eastern studies and someone fluent in both literary and colloquial Arabic found, also a task fraught with logistic problems. First he had to collect together the "capsule" summaries from the more than 110 firms represented at the Show, no mean feat given the global dispersal of the companies involved. Next, there was the tortuous business of directing the translators, helping them render such arcaneries as "shelterized communications" or "anechoic chamber" into acceptable Arabic, avoiding the trap of creating such hybrids as "le weekend", or "le drugstore" which other linguistic efforts have produced. Next,Dunn hurried to New York, to Spectrum Composition Services, to oversee the typesetting, and stay for the tricky business of proofreading. The result made it to the printers, hours before deadline. Good communications, particularly in the strategic affairs business, is essential. We think this may be the first serious attempt to render today's Western defense industry argot into Arabic.

As Egypt changes its defense orientation (a story told well in articles in this issue), events like CMECO and the associated Cairo Conference on Strategic Directions could well become a permanent feature; contributing to a common language is, we think, an essential part of the process.

We thought it would be helpful to pass on two sources we found invaluable: The "Modern Military Dictionary," published by the Egyptian Armed Forces, and the massive "Unifying Military Dictionary" published under the auspices of the Arab League.

SERIES: Editor David Harvey and Assistant Editor Dr. Michael Dunn conducted this interview with Egypt's new Minister of Defense and War Production, Lt. Gen Muhammad Abdel Halim Abu Ghazala, during his recent visit to Washington

HIGHLIGHT:
An interview with Egyptian Defense Minister, Lt. Gen. Muhammad Abdel Halim Abu Ghazala

BODY:
Could you comment on the results of your present visit to the US, which is taking place so soon after US Secretary of State Haig's visit to Cairo? There have been a number of reports about what you are looking for here, including the (Grumman E-2C) Hawkeye and a general speeding up of US supplies to Egypt.

As you know we have an ongoing program between the two countries -- F16s and tanks -- because of the dangerous situation in the Middle East and the need to change the schedule of delivery of some of this equipment. As you know, all our equipment is Russian, and is deteriorating fast. We didn't replace equipment after the 1973 war, so we want to get our tanks and aircraft as fast as possible. We are also discussing a long relationship between the US and Egypt, and to discuss the future, including the E-2Cs.

Have you had any response concerning the E-2Cs?

I don't think there is any problem concerning them. Our relationship now is really enough to give us what we want.

What was the number of E-2Cs you were seeking?

We are looking for a reasonable number; about four.

How would you use them? For surveillance on Libya?

Yes, especially on Libya, because watching what is going on inside Libya we see the Soviets are trying to use Libya as a pawn for Soviet strategy in the area, and we need to have information. Secondly, we must give our troops warning before the threat happens, so we need this E-2C to give us an early warning, especially now that most of our equipment is on "combat readiness number one", which means high consumption of the equipment. If we get this aircraft the rate of consumption will go down dramatically, and this could save us money, a lot of money, by keeping a lower level of readiness.

We know the Israeli E-2Cs were sometwhat modified. Do Egypt's particular needs require modifications?

No. We are going to study exactly what we want, and after that we will work out the specifications. We are not going to compare ourselves with the Israelis or others, We are only going-to look at what we need for ourselves...

There has been speculation, in light of President Sadat's and Foreign Minister [Kemal Hasan] Ali's remarks concerning Egypt's support of the proposed Saudi purchase of Boeing E-3A AWACS from the US, that you are also be urging US officials to go ahead with the AWACS sale. I wonder if you could comment on that, and on why Egypt feels Saudi Arabia has a need for AWACS while Egypt and Israel are content to operate with the E-2C?

First, I am not the Defense Minister of Saudi Arabia. Secondly, I believe if you consider Egypt and Saudi Arabia are your allies, you should help them to have what they need to protect themselves. We are not against the AWACS for Saudi Arabia. If they ask for it, that means they need it and they should have it. So I don't see anything wrong with that.

Does that also apply to enhanced F-15s for Saudi Arabia?

I think they should have them, but it's not my job to talk for the Saudis. But if you look at Southern Yemen, a small country, do you know how many aircraft the Yemenis have? They have 150 of them, and they're going to have additional numbers. By the end of the year they will have 200. The most dangerous thing is that they have 12 launchers of Luna surface-to-surface missiles, which are a real threat to Saudi Arabia, How are they going to defend themselves unless they have the early warning to tell them? I think that what the Saudis are asking is logical and normal.

Egypt has recently been exporting a great deal of its domestic arms production within Africa, particularly to Sudan, along with the sale to Irag recently. Could you comment on Egypt's arms sales program? Does Egypt see its domestic arms industry as a tool to support its strategic position or simply as a business proposition, or a hard currency earner?

As a matter of fact our arms industry has not been set up for export; it is planned to satisfy the Egyptian armed forces. What we gave Sudan, we gave at the expense of the needs of the Egyptian armed forces, so we didn't export anything, but on the contrary we gave them some of our equipment. What we have sold Iraq was only ammunition, so I don't see an arms sales policy. We gave Sudan ammunition and a very small number of Swingfire anti-tank missiles produced in Egypt under license. We watch the Sudani position very carefully. I hope I'll very soon visit Sudan and find out what is going on.

What kind of market can US industry look for? We know there's a Cairo Military Exhibition. Is there a possibility if Egypt ordering F-15s?

Believe me, the F-15 is a very important thing for Egypt, because we need to have a more capable plane.

What benefits are there in the Cairo Military Exhibition being held in Cairo October 31-November 3 this year?

For a long time I was sending a lot of teams to visit Embassies and so on over to the US and Europe. But a team is only a small number of officers. So if I could bring this kind of equipment to Egypt so every officer, every man concerned, could look at it and pick out what we need exactly, then that is much better. That's why I liked this idea and accepted it and am willing to make it a success. It's good for everyone.

So you ran one hundred percent reaffirm your Government's commitment to the show and the purposes behind it?

Of course.

What does Egypt consider its equipment needs?

We are looking for helicopters, especially gunships, which we think are one of the best anti-tank weapons; we are considering that very carefully because of the large number of tanks the Warsaw pact has.

How about transports?

We're not looking to airlift a huge nation, but at least we should have some ability in order to be able to help Sudan or to deal with danger from any direction.

Libya's Col. Qadhag recently announced he was withdrawing troops from his border with Egypt and ending his confrontation across the border. Does this mean anything?

That's baloney.

Egypt has spelled out its position on Chad and with regard to Libyan expansionism. Do you see Sudan as Liby's next target?

Yes, of course. The main objective of Qadhafi and the Soviets behind him is clear. The Soviets have more than 100,000 soldiers in South Yemen, in Ethiopia, in Angola, and now they move in the North in Libya, and the only weak points in this belt are two areas: Egypt and Sudan, and Oman and Pakistan, If they could get hold of Sudan it means the belt is connected. And then you know there are two strategic golden rules: If you want to control land, control the sea; if you want to control the heart, control the rim. This is what the Soviets are really doing now, trying to control the flow of oil to the West, and they are trying to strangle the West by strangling the flow of oil to Europe. Very easy.

The US hav proposed $900-million in Foreign Military Sales (FMS) financing for Egypt for the next fiscal year, and after that it will be low interest direct credits. Is that enough?

I think it is not enough. There's a constant problem talking to our troops who are always asking, "Where is the American equipment?" So I don't think $900-million is enough to re-equip the forces. and now we are in the same state of friendship -- we feel now -- as Israel, so why don't you give us the same thing? If Israel gets $1,400-million why not give us the same thing?

What is the present status of the AOI (Arab Organization for Industrialization) established in Egypt with Gulf State funding, which was lost after the Egyptian-Israeli peace)?

I hope the idea will be revivied in the future, and we hope other Arab countries would come along with us. It would make a lot of sense because we might have a bloc against the Soviets. AOI is working very well right now, especially the co-production of jeeps and the ammunition project.

The Reagan Administration seems to want to put money into facilities at Cairo West and Ras Banas, and that seems to be going ahead. How do you view this "access to facilities". What does that mean and how does it come into effect?

The facilities are already being used, at Cairo West and Wadi Qena, and we are willing to add Ras Banas. That is much better than any other base, and we don't have limitations. They can be used any time you (the US) need them.

Do you think the recent restoration of relations with Sudan, and the willingness of the Iraqis to purchase arms from Egypt, are signs that the Arab world is beginning to move towards accepting Egypt once again?

We do hope that, yes, and we believe it is happening.

Are there any end user restrictions placed by the British Government on the sale of Swingfire?

In our contract, there are a number of countries named who we could sell it to. Sudan is one of these.

Then there is no truth that Swingfires will be sold to Iraq?

No. If we wanted to do that we would ask the British to give us a license, but we are not willing to sell this kind of equipment.

HIGHLIGHT:
An examination of the success of the Cairo Military Exhibition and the Cairo Conference on Strategic Directions

BODY:

Egypt's military has risen and fallen -- and risen again -- more than any other force in the history of mankind. For thousands of years its exploits in conflict have served as models for strategic researchers even if they lacked in earlier millenia the tactical clarity which Rome introduced. Egypt's last war, in 1973, still serves as a model of learning for the international military community, but in 1981 the Egyptian Armed Forces proceeded to create another model of international interest.

The Cairo Military Exhibition -- CMECO '81 -- served as a catalyst of learning and thinking around which the future development of the country's armed forces will, to a degree, revolve. Perhaps in no other country has a single event so served to crystallize the thinking of a country's officer corps and its defense industry. And yet that is precisely what occured in Cairo this past month.

The first Cairo Military Exposition, CMECO '81, and the concurrent Cairo Conference on Strategic Directions (sponsored by Defense & Foreign Affairs) which were staged October 31 through November 3, 1981, were considered enormous successes by participating firms and by the Egyptian Armed Forces.

The exposition -- at Artillery House, Heliopolis, Cairo -- was the first such Show in an Arab country and one of the first in a developing country like Egypt,Some 142 major divisions of 92 companies from 11 countries includingthe US, "Australia, the Federal Republic of Germany, France, the UK, Italy, Switzerland, Canada, Belgium, Greece and Egypt exhibited at the Show.

Unlike the Paris Air Show or other major international shows, CMECO '81 was designed to provide a forum for displaying the exhibitors' latest equipment directly to the Egyptian officer corps. At least 5,000 Egyptian officers attended, representing all four branches of the Egyptian Armed Forces (Army, Navy, Air Force, and Air Defense Forces). In addition, several hundred personnel from Egyptian defense industries attended (and Egypt's defense industry was also well represented among the exhibitors).

Military delegations from a number of African and Middle Eastern countries discreetly swelled the attendance: official and formal participation by foreign delegations was discouraged because of the period of mourning for the recently assassinated President Anwar al-Sadat. Nonetheless, military officer groups from other states were welcomed. Some 50 defense attaches from local embassies also attended, as did a United Nations delegation which included four Soviet officers. The local and Western press were present in force, and the major US television networks filmed the opening ceremonies.

Egyptian Defense and War Production Minister Lt. Gen. Muhammad Abdel Halim Abu Ghazala cut the ribbon to open the show and also made the opening remarks at the Cairo Conference on Strategic Directions, which was chaired by Defense & Foreign Affairs publisher Gregory Copley.

The Cairo Conference on Strategic Directions heard papers and presentations from 23 speakers from the US, UK, France, Italy, Australia and Egypt, dealing with issues ranging from broad strategic overviews to specific technologies and equipment requirements. The overriding theme was technology transfer in the defense sphere.

Many of the participating exhibiiors expressed pleasure at the success of the Show. Several participants noted that shows like the Cairo Military Exposition should be held in other developing countries, one said "we could do 20 shows like this a year for what it costs us to go to Paris, and the results would be much greater". The exhibitors were especially pleased to be able to meet and demonstrate their equipment to mid-level officers, since, in the words of one, "these are the guys who write the requirements".

Similarly, the Egyptian (Armed Forces were eager to allow their officers to familiarize themselves with the latest equipment, since, as Defense Minister Abu Ghazala said, only a few senior officers could participate in military delegations abroad. Abu Ghazala said that one of his main objectives was to allow officers involved with operational work, not just procurement officials, to achieve contact with the Western defense market and familiarize themselves with the equipment, After the conference, Gen. Abu Ghazala emphasized that "this objective was achieved".

The Defense Minister noted that the decision to continue with the show was one of the first orders of business of the Egyptian cabinet after the assassination of President Sadat; realizing that so much had been invested and that the show was so important to Egypt's Armed Forces, the decision was made to continue even though the 40-day mourning period for President Sadat had not ended. Perhaps left unsaid was the fact that the show would reflect the cohesiveness of the Egyptian Armed Forces at a time when foreign attention was fixed on Egypt.

Several exhibitors and Egyptian officers made the point that the Show was not merely a display for selling equipment; it, and the papers presented at the Cairo Conference, were tailored to help the Egyptian Armed Forces determine their own priorities and options. For a country with limited means but a large military establishment, attempting to complete the transformation from Soviet equipment to Western, such prioritization is vital.

As one participant, Lt. Gen, (ret.) Howard Fish, Vice President International) of the Vought Corporation, said: "The important thing is that this is not just an arms bazaar with companies peddling their goods. We are here to help the Egyptians prioritize their requirements, perhaps show them how to meet two or three requirements with one system. That is more important than selling a particular system."

The range of products exhibited was wide, suggested by a "shopping list" prepared by the Egyptian Armed Forces prior to the organization of the Show. Exhibits ranged from communications equipment to aircraft, from naval vessels to armored vehicles.

Some exhibits proved especially popular, such as the model of a Grumman E-2C Hawkeye Early Warning Aircraft (Egypt is known to be ordering at least four) which was made especially relevant by the success of the proposed US sale of E-3A AWACS to Saudi Arabia, which the US Senate failed to block just before the show opened. In fact Gen. Abu Ghazala said in a recent interview in Cairo that, "We do believe that the Hawkeye can do the same job as the AWACS (for Egypt)."

Another theme, which appeared in several papers at the Cairo Conference, was upgrading Egypt's large stock ofageing Soviet equipment. US corporations such as Garrett discussed re-engining the T-62 tank and a wide variety of other Soviet-designed equipment.

The show was well received by the Egyptian military, and when reports surfaced of Egypt's negotiations to mount Hughes TOW air-to-surface anti-tank missiles on Egypt's Aerospatiale Gazelle helicopters (some of which now carry the Euromissile HOT anti-tank missile), the military editor of the semi-official daily al-Ahram wrote that the deal under discussion was "a direct result of the Cairo Military Exposition".

The success of the Show has already led to talk of the next CMECO, likely to be held at a military airfield near Cairo in about two years.

But there is little doubt but that in two years time many of the participating firms at CMECO, as well as the Egyptian Armed Forces, will be feeling the impact of CMECO '81: orders were signed at the show, some having reached fruition there, and others initiated there. The de Havilland of Canada company, on the second day of the show, signed with the Egyptian Air Force for 10 Buffalo transports, ending a hard-fought international battle.

Few observers or attendees expected CMECO and the Conference to be anything like as professional as it turned out to be. Part of this was attributable directly to the organizing company and the executives involved, but perhaps the most significant aspect was the fact that the function had a direct military objective: to educate the broad range of the officer corps with the latest available technology, to formulate requirements and to speed up the introduction of current and applicable technologies and techniques into the Egyptian Armed Forces. The process would have been laborious if it could not have been encapsulated into a single affair which still offered the prospect of further discussion with individual companies.

Egypt's Armed Forces have become sorely depleted. Even as they entered the October 1973 war they were less advantageously equipped than in the 1967 war. Now, after years of diminishing spares stocks on the Soviet-supplied core equipment, the forces need a lift.

CMECO reflected what had been done internally in defense production: the Ministry of Military Production's factories and the companies within the State-owned Arab Organization for Industrialization (AOI) were well in force at the show and Conference, seeking coproduction partners and their own international markets. It was, in many ways, the international emergence of the Egyptian defense industrial capability which was seen at CMECO.

The countries defense industrial output has, for several years, been considerable, and a quiet export trade has developed. But the industry appeared to lack an export motivation as its principle area for growth; and it lacked confidence. The Cairo salon allowed the local defense industries to crystallize their planning and to present a highly competent image.

There seems little doubt that Egypt's foreign exchange picture will be enhanced by the exposure given to local industry at the show. Foreign firms, hitherto largely ignorant of the capability, had neglected the prospect of co-production with Egyptian partners. Official speakers at the Cairo Conference made it clear that future Egyptian procurement would consider favorably those tenders which considered the prospect of some local content.

Defense Minister Abu Ghazala reiterated the stand he made to Defense & Foreign Affairs in an earlier edition that Egypt's factories were ready to subcontract on international defense programs as well: they needed the bigger market.

CMECO and a new Egyptian openness about the discussion of defense and strategic requirements made it possible to learn of the discreet commitments which some high technology firms have maintained for several years with Egypt. Among the more significant of these is Selenia, of Italy, which was able to discuss the sale -- made in 1974 -- of its IGS-1 (integrated ground system) which provides a key element of the EW support to Egypt's air defense system. Also revealed was the fact that it had delivered all the gear for EW-dedicated Westland Commando helicopters.

Selenia's relationship with Egypt is extensive. It has also sold "large quantities" of self-defense electronic countermeasure (ECM) pods for fitment on the Sovietsupplied MiG-21 fighters which dominate Egypt's air force. These stateof-the-art pods are just now being delivered and Selenia has a contract pending for their maintenance.

Selenia, among other things, is participating in a bid to provide laser rangefinders for the T-series (Soviet designed) tanks in the Egyptian Army, and is working with Contraves on providing a Skyguard/Aspide missile system. The firing trials in Sardinia a month before CMECO. were deemed highly successfu. (Selenia is also working on the provision of the system to other naval Aspide customers.) Also high on Selenia's priorities at CMECO was the Pluto low coverage surveillance radar for coastal protection. Morocco and Tunisia are also reported interested.

The theme of CMECO was not the flash and bang seen at the more public international defense-related shows such as Farnborough and Paris. Here it was more a dedication to upgrading existing systems, becoming more self-reliant, and becoming more effective for the minimum possible outlay. And neighboring states were there to help, too where possible: Greece's Hellenic Aerospace Industry (HAI) and Hellenic Arms were examples of the development of self-reliance in defense capability.

HAI Deputy Marketing Manager D. S. Leonidis-Plessas noted in a paper to the Cairo Conference that "the ability to maintain military aviation hardware levels of readiness is equally important with the acquisition of such equipment in the first place". Already HAI is involved in supporting some elements (C-130 Hercules transport aircraft) of the Egyptian Air Force, but Plessas' paper made it clear that Greece would also impart some of the lessons it has itself learned in recent years from the formation of its own $400-million aerospace support facilities.

Speakers such as Teledyne Continental's Edward Blackburne addressed the necessity -- long felt by the Egyptian Army -- to completely undate the Soviet -- supplied armor. The automotive, protection and fire/gun control aspects of the existing armor in Egypt have all been studied -- by Teledyne Continental, Garrett, and others -- and the Conference enabled serious presentations to be made to senior Egyptian officers on the options available to them. As well, the matter of munitions for Egyptian armor and artillery was addressed seriously by GIAT, of France, and General Defense Corporation Flinchbaugh Division, of the US. One of the most highly acclaimed papers presented at the Cairo Conference was entitled Lessons from Soviet Arms Sales to Egypt, presented by Maj. Gen. Abdel Satter Amin, director of the Nasser Higher Military Academy. [This, and the other papers presented at the conference, will be printed in a full Proceedings to be published soon by Defense & Foreign Affairs.]

The general noted: "Although the military equipment (delivered to Egypt by the USSR) was generally delivered in usable condition, some of it was old and rebuilt. Some was not complete with its auxiliary items, such as the MiG-15 fighters which came without enough ejection seat cartridges. As well, the MiG-17 ground attack fighters were without the main air-to-ground missiles, auxiliary fuel tanks, etc.'

Another difficulty was, as has been frequently noted, the lack of spare parts. In the period before the 1967 war with Israel, Egypt used up much of its stocks of Soviet-supplied equipment in the Yemen war. "I can say that the Soviets indirectly encouraged our role in the Yemen" in order to place Egypt in "a situation of real need of more arms from them", Gen. Abdel Satter Amin said, As well, "during this period, they also succeeded in stopping our military industries which were well advanced at that time, especially in the aircraft industry and rocket manufacturing. " They managed to do this, he said, by offering the MiG-21 fighter at a low price with quick delivery, along with other goods, The objective was to stop dependence on local industry and to build dependence on the USSR as the sole source supplier of weapons.

The general contended that about 80 percent of Egypt's arms were lost in the Six Day War of June 1967 and this resulted in the Soviets attempting to play on Egypt's dire needs for re-equipment to gain Soviet control over naval facilities in the Mediterranean and enhanced influence over Egypt as a whole. The USSR consistently refused to provide Egypt with modern offensive weapons after the 1967 war, but this, the general said, turned to Cairo's advantage. "Denying Egypt a modern weapon such as the MiG-23 was a main factor in gaining surprise in the October War because there was a view in the Israeli military that Egypt could not attack except after getting a more advanced aircraft than the MiG-21."

After that 1973 conflict, he said, Egypt introduced several modifications to the weapons systems as a result of war experience. These were copied and applied by the Soviets on the developments of its own weapons.

"To face the Soviet action during this period, we took several decisions... including:a political decision to diversify the sources of military equipment... (and) we started manufacturing some spare parts in Western countries. "Denying Egypt a modern weapon such as the MiG-23 was a main factor in gaining surprise in the October War because there was a view in the Israeli military that Egypt could not attack except after getting a more advanced aircraft than the MiG-21."

After that 1973 conflict, he said, Egypt introduced several modifications to the weapons systems as a result of war experience. These were copied and applied by the Soviets on the developments of its own weapons.

"To face the Soviet action during this period, we took several decisions... including: a political decision to diversify the sources of military equipment... (and) we started manufacturing some spare parts in Western countries." Gen. Satter Amin noted that Egypt's decision to strengthen local production of defense items and to build the Egyptian defense industries -- which now employ some 80,000 people -was a direct result of the lessons learned from relations on military supply with the Soviets and the wars in which the country has been involved. This particularly applies to the manufacture of spare parts and the local preoccupation with upgrading existing equipment.

He noted thai Egypt had learned a lot from having to deal wiih the Soviets on arms transfer matters, just as it had learned considerable military lessons in the Sinaiand Yemen.

Gen. Abdel Satter Amin's paper crystallized many of Egypt's attitudes toward arms procurement, and this was reflected by most of the foreign speakers presenting concepts at the Cairo Conference. Northrop's Bill Oakes, in a paper on the Co-Production of Military Aircraft, noted:

"A coproduction program must... fulfill the customer's desire to build its industrial base and level of technological development. Only in this manner can military investments provide long-term, local employment for the people and enhance the nation's ability to build and maintain modern military equipment for its armed forces.

'The program we Northrop) are developing for Egypt is based upon a thorough assessment of the existing aircraft manufacturing facilities at Helwan." Oakes vent on to propose the production, in phased stages, of Northrop's F -5G fighter at the Helwan AOI facilities. "Eventually, all of the aircraft parts and assemblies which are produced by Northrop will be produced by AOI," he said. "The AOI factory would then be fully capable of full production of the F-5G."

The conference and show produced a range of results for the Egyptian Armed Forces. Firstly, it provided familiarization of new concepts not just to Egyptian officers and industrialists but to foreign government and industrial officials who began to see problems and technologies from fresh perspectives, Secondly, it allowed for stimulation on the matter of military technology at a variety of levels: for captains and lieutenants to officers in general staff slots.

And not all was directed at long-term coproduction or acquisition; several smaller companies -- such as Britain's Security Research -- won immediate contracts. Other companies, such as Italy's Beretta and Colt of the United States reinforced the already lurking knowledge in the Egyptian Army that it would soon have to make the decision to switch from the Soviet 7.62mm caliber of its Misr/Kalashnikov AK-47 variant assault rifle to the newly-adopted NATO-standard 5.56mm round.

In the meantime, however, the Department of Military Production's factories produced an impressive array of small arms, medium weapons and heavy artillery ordnance in what was certainly the best display at CMECO.

LESSONS OF CMECO '81

The show and conference proved to be a watershed in terms of military procurement directions and morale. If nothing else, it proved to the Egyptian officer corps that something was being done to end the malaise in which the Armed Forces have languished, to a degree, since the Camp David peace accords. Equipment needs were being addressed.

As well, the affair showed that in the future Egypt must address itself not just to continued weapons procurements, but to technological competence across a broad range of skills. The Egyptian Armed Forces have begun to take a strategic view of their role.

CMECO became the first showcase for Egyptian defense industry, and this in itself served a number of purposes: it increased the stature of the industry in the eyes of Egyptian officers and the local industry themselves; it showed an international audience that total systems were available for export, a fact which will contribute to Egypt's balance of payments and employment situations; and it showed that foreign defense sales to Egypt will now also have to consider coproduction with local industry which will also help ease the country's foreign exchange and employment problems.

There were also intangible benefits: Egypt became the focus, once again, of the military interest of a number of formerly closely allied states, such as Saudi Arabia. This may well help renew respect for Egypt in the wake of the strategic dislocation among Arab states following Camp David. And certainly the show reinforced Egypt's position as the major military power in Africa. The strategic military attention paid to Egypt at the show by France, the UK and US, in particular, may well mark the beginning of a more respectful treatment of Egypt in strategic discussions between Egypt and these countries.

Egypt, for example, has, under the terms of a Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) with the US the right to bid on certain US military procurement projects. Until now this has been considered a technicality; from now on it may be a real factor in Egypt's trade with the US.

If nothing else, CMECO acted as an internal and external clarification of Egypt's defense planning position. And it added immensely to the country's prestige in certain sectors.

WHO COULD DOUBT that something significant is taking place in the balance between the world's major powers? For the first time in more than a decade, a US Government is taking strategic initiatives and is taking -- or re-taking -- control of its own strategic destiny across almost the entire global spectrum. Only by strategtic action, rather than reaction, has any of the major powers taken any advantage in the post-World War II era, and the strategic benefits to the US of former President Richard Nixon's China initiative spelled this out clearly. Apart from that, initiative in the past two decades has lain with the USSR, and the advantages have been disbursed accordingly.

President Ronald Reagan's international strategic initiatives have been many, and they have, predictbly, caused grave concern to the USSR. But these initiatives culminated with the November proposals of the United States for a major reduction in the nuclear threshhold in Europe. The move was both a viable military proposal -- potentially lowering the economic cost of maintaining the balance in that theateras well as reducing the potential for European conflict to escalate -- but it took the almost unprecedented step of giving the United States a political/psychological advantage in the East-West confrontation for the first time in years. No wonder the USSR reacted so unfavorably to the proposal by Washington, which would have eliminated the Soviet SS-20 MRBMs and the US Cruise and Pershing II missiles from Europe.

Thus from no matter which political perspective the US initiatives over the past year are viewed, there can be no question but that the balance is changing in grand strategy terms. Does this necessarily lead closer to conflict? Not in itself. Is conflict closer? Well, if it is assumed that international conflict moves in heavy -- if not entirely predictable -- cycles, then it must also be assmed that we also move toward future conflict. The question is whether or not the recent moves pave the way for making the conflict more survivable, or limitable, and the answer is probably yes, for essential balance of forces generally eliminates initiatives which lead to over-whelming military victory. In stalemate lies survival, perhaps. As this writer has said for serveral years, the trend toward superiority must eventually -- and in the forseeable future -- lead into space. Here, the US Space Shuttle has shown its potential. But Soviet initiatives of a similar, although less public, nature should not be ignored. It would hardly be surprising if the USSR, with its extensive experience in manned orbital spaceflight, had not already committed a loworbit anti-satellite manned space conflict vehicle into being, if not into orbit.

THIS EDITION IS the first since we held the Cairo Conference on Strategic Directions in concert with the Cairo Military Exposition, CMECO '81. Much of the issue is devoted to covering that affair. It was an exciting event for us at Defense & Foreign Affairs: never before have we witnessed a more successful trade show and conference in the military sphere, despite the limitations in the size of the Cairo affair. We're looking forward to CMECO '83 and hopefully, the same warm welcome from the Egyptian people.

Apart from the unstinting support of the Egyptian Minister of Defense, Gen. Abu Ghazala, and his officers, a number of executives proved that they understood what the defense industry and the Egyptians were seeking when they sought to stage the show. Particularly significant in this regard were Kamel al- Fattah and Dr. Hisham Issa and the staff of Ankram Office in Cairo; Bob Asher, Bill Jensen and Jeanette Anderson at the Aeromaritime office in Washington DC; H.E. "Skip" Heydt, who roved the world servicing CMECO clients; the Aeromaritime staff in Paris and Rome; and Dr. Michael Dunn at the D&FA office in Washington DC. Working with both the Egyptian Government and CMJECO the latter being the former US Deputy Under-Secretary of Defense for Research and Engineering (Procurement).

It was surprising that this team, who had never before organized a trade show, were able to so successfully achieve their objectives with CMECO '81. Congratulations! It was well worthwhile.

BODY:
It is significant that the primary objective of the Cairo Military Exposition and the Cairo Conference on Strategic Directions was not commercial; the organizers thought that they would lose money. The objective was to be able to expose Egyptian military officers at all levels with the broadest possible range of new military technology without the cost or time delays of sending huge delegations abroad to inspect factories and products. The only answer was to bring the technologies and experts to Egypt.

Prime mover in this, after Egypt's dynamic Minister of Defense, Gen. Muhammad Abdel Halim Abu Ghazala, was a former artillery brigadier, Kamel al-Fattah, chairman of Ankram Office, which deals in defense materiel. He enlisted the aid of Aeromaritime, another defense and high technology material company, and together they formed the Cairo Military Exposition Company. Defense & Foreign Affairs was enlisted to provide the conferencing and other services.

The fact that the specific objective was to educate and familiarize as many officers as possible with the available technologies, and to stimulate debate and discussion in the area of technology transfer, coupled with the stated Egyptian objective of modernizing the Armed Forces, stimulated exhibitor and speaker interest in a market jaded by the staging of "trade fairs" for purely commercial reasons.

But the affair could not have been as smoothly successful without the constant atrention over many months of the general manager of the Heliopolis Sheraton Hotel, Mr Karl Foerster. In a city normally plagued with accomodation problems, Foerster ensured that businessmen were accomodated with a minimum of fuss. On top of that, however, he also provided a variety of other services which have marked the Heliopolis Sheraton as almost certainly the most professionally run -and most pleasant -hotels in the Middle East and Africa, and among the best in the world.

Significantly, the show turned out to be a financial success, not only for the organizers but also for many participants. And during the unforeseeable drama which surrounded the death of President Anwar al-Sadat, CMECO '81 served as a reminder that the Egyptian Armed Forces were determined to proceed with their course of modernization and deterrence.

CMECO '81 reflected well on Egypt as well as on all the organizers of the show. It also could not have gone ahead without the ongoing support of President Husni Mubarak who was prevented from personally attending because of the period of mourning for the late Pres, Sadat.

WHO COULD DOUBT that something significant is taking place in the balance between the world's major powers? For the first time in more than a decade, a US Government is taking strategic initiatives and is taking -- or re-taking -- control of its own strategic destiny across almost the entire global spectrum. Only by strategtic action, rather than reaction, has any of the major powers taken any advantage in the post-World War II era, and the strategic benefits to the US of former President Richard Nixon's China initiative spelled this out clearly. Apart from that, initiative in the past two decades has lain with the USSR, and the advantages have been disbursed accordingly.

President Ronald Reagan's international strategic initiatives have been many, and they have, predictbly, caused grave concern to the USSR. But these initiatives culminated with the November proposals of the United States for a major reduction in the nuclear threshhold in Europe. The move was both a viable military proposal -- potentially lowering the economic cost of maintaining the balance in that theateras well as reducing the potential for European conflict to escalate -- but it took the almost unprecedented step of giving the United States a political/psychological advantage in the East-West confrontation for the first time in years. BODY:

FEW THINGS EXCITE the imagination as much as the awakening of a nation. Dreams of past glories are lackluster by comparison with the aspirations of a great tomorrow. To participate in realizing of these aspirations -- and to witness the bursting forth from the chrysalis -- is, perhaps, the motivation of many people involved in the strategic decisionmaking process of their countries. Watching the transformation of Egypt has been fascinating since the departure of the monarchy and the British several decades ago, but particularly since President Anwar al-Sadat's dramatic visit to Jerusalem and the start of a new period of peace. It is sincethen that the strategic orientation of Egypt has changed, and with this change has come new priorities in defense planning and procurement; new roles for the Armed Forces. Significantly, and through an unforeseeable train of events, Egypt's Armed Forces have in recent months acquired a new Minister, Gen. Muhammad Abdel Halim Abu Ghazala, a distinguished former artilleryman and intelligence chief who served for several years in Washington during the crucial Camp David peace negotiation period. Defense & Foreign Affairs was fortunate to be able to interview him -- for the second time this year -- in Cairo, for this special edition.

Gen. Abu Ghazala made some significant revelations in his interview: about the diversification of procurement sources, about plans to make the Armed Forces self-sufficient even in food production, and about his ideas on educating the emerging generation of officers in the significant new technologies. It was for that reason that Gen. Abu Ghazala was the guiding light behind the Cairo Military Exposition for which this edition is published, and the concurrent Cairo Conference on Strategic Directions organized by Defense & Foreign Affairs. Within a matter of months, Gen. Abu Ghazala has put his dynamic mark onto Egypt's new peacetime Armed Forces, giving it a function and renewed morale at a time when it lacked -- for the first time since 1948 -- a clearcut role.

The Exposition -- CMECO '81 -- therefore has a clearcut task and an audience of Egyptian and other invited officers who are pointedly interested in using the event, including the Conference, to learn as much as possible. It is rare indeed that a "trade show" such as this can achieve such an objective. Perhaps for this reason the show was a sell-out: every available booth was taken; every speaker slot in the Conference filled. Thousands of extra copies of this Special Edition have, by request, been despatched to serve as the official guide and program of CMECO '81. We were delighted that this publication should have been chosen, naturally, and that Defense & Foreign Affairs should have been called upon to organize the professional conference accompanying the Expoition.

The physical organization of the event has been undertaken by a specially-formed company, the Cairo Military Exposition Company, based in Cairo, and it is this organization which undertook the transformation of Artillery House, Heliopolis, into a trade fair location. Their effort was massive: two major pavillions were built in the months leading up to the affair, and significant work was undertaken on Artillery House itself. The leading light behind this was CMECO's chairman, Kamel M. Abd El-Fattah, himself a former Artillery Brigadier, and now also head of Ankram Office, a firm intimately involved in the Egyptian -- and Middle Eastern/African -- defense industrial scene.

Kamel El- Fattah's task was made possible by a trans-Atlantic link with their US partner in CMECO, Aeromaritime. From the Aeromaritime office in McLean, just outside Washington DC, CMECO vice-president Bill Jensen coordinated a worldwide effort to bring to Cairo those firms who could show the Egyptian Armed Forces the things they asked to see. In Cairo, where patience and a skill at bureaucratic procedure are never unrewarded virtues, Jensen had a counterpart who was able to piece things together "on location": Dr Hisham Issa, a vice-president of CMECO and Ankram. The third vice-presidential leg was assumed by H. E. "Skip" Heydt, who brought extensive defense marketing experience to bear, complementing the skills of his colleagues. At D & FA, Dr Michael Dunn coordinated the mass of listings and Arabic translations. It's been rewarding.

TITLE: EXIMBANK, AID SIGN INTERAGENCY PACT ON NEW CENTRAL AMERICAN INSURANCE GUARANTEE FUND.

TEXT:

The United States took the first step toward implementing a new $300 million export guarantee fund intended to spur trade with Central America Dec. 19 with the signing of an interagency agreement between the U.S. Export-Import Bank and the Agency for International Development.

Congress approved the five-year program in the fiscal year 1985 continuing appropriations resolution, but imposed a $300 million ceiling on loans during the year (1 ITR 514, Oct. 24, 1984). In addition, the Administration is required to request funding on a yearly basis.

Eximbank President William H. Draper III called the program "unique," noting that it is the first major effort in which both agencies combine their expertise in a common action -- to promote U.S. exports and boost the region's economies. The insurance program "is indicative of the confidence the region has in us, and we have in the region," he commented during the signing ceremony where several regional ambassadors were present.

Addressing Lack Of Short-Term Loans

The real and perceived view of political instability has contributed to the drying up of short-term commercial loans in the region, according to AID Administrator M. Peter McPherson. This program addresses that real problem by helping to "reactivate" those economies, added Eximbank Director Rita M. Rodriguez.

Under the agreement, Eximbank will provide short-term export credit insurance -- guaranteed by AID -- covering loans for U.S. exports of non-military goods and services for private sector use. Qualified countries can apply directly to Eximbank for short-term insurance, and each country's central bank will select the local banks and the U.S. funding banks to particiate in the program.

Eximbank will approve aggregate amounts and instruct the Foreign Credit Insurance Association to issue coverage to U.S. banks for amounts designated by the central banks.

Participating Central American Banks

. Under the program, U.S. banks will extend lines of credit to banks in the region which have their government's guarantee. Participating Central American banks will draw from the lines of credit to extend financing to local importers, with Eximbank providing repayment proection for the U.S. banks. Repayment terms generally extend 180 days for most industrial goods and 360 days for agricultural and capital goods. Eximbank will process claims filed under the insurance program, and AID will transfer funds to Eximbank if payments are missed.

According to an Eximbank fact sheet, all Central American nations are eligible for the program; however, the major users are expected to be Costa Rica, Guatemala, El Salvador, and Honduras.

Officials involved in the venture expect the program to be fully operational by early spring.

Early Criticism

The insurance program was the only major recommendation approved by Congress from the so-called Kissinger Commission recommendations made earlier last year (20 ITEX 542, Jan. 17, 1984). Also included in the original recommendations -- but not approved by Congress -- were a privately run Central American Development Organization, security assistance funds for police training, and additional foreign aid funds earmarked for agricultural reform programs.

Commenting on the new program during a recent conference on the Caribbean in Miami last month (1 ITR 770, Dec. 19, 1984), Washington foreign affairs consultant Denis M. Neil suggested that chances for the success of the Eximbank-AID program are questionable. Not only do the U.S. agencies have to agree on the program's operations, but U.S. businesses and firms, as well as the countries involved, must become familiar with it and promote it within their own borders, he said. It is a lot to expect between now and the end of fiscal 1985, when the funding runs out, he cautioned.

Neil suggested that standard application procedures through the regional central banks take at least 60 days to complete. The governments and the companies, at this time, simply do not seem interested enough in making it work, he said.

(c) BNA, Inc., International Trade Reporter, January 2, 1985

Eximbank's Rodriguez, in comments to BNA, dismissed that criticism. Intensive talks are under way with all the central banks in the region, she said. The central banks and U.S. commercial institutions are hard negotiators, she admitted, but pointed to similar programs in the region already in existence which should make the process easier. Eximbank has revolving fund arrangements with El Salvador, Guatemala, and Honduras, so the new program should not be that unfamiliar for them, she suggested.

From 1980 to 1983, U.S. exports to the region fell 16 percent. In the first eight months of 1984 -- compared to the same period in 1983 -- they rose some 12 percent. The trade credit insurance program is expected to generate further increases in U.S. sales, both agencies agreed.

HEADLINE: Serials survey linked to Gordon & Breach

BYLINE: Gaughan, Thomas M.

BODY:

The serials price war took a bizarre turn in January when a survey sent to research libraries, purportedly by the British-based Foundation fr International Scientific Cooperation (FSCI), was discovered to have been mailed with a postal meter leased to Gordon & Breach Science Publishers, Inc . (G&B).

G&B is currently suing the American Institute of Physics (AIP), American Physical Society (APS), and physicist Henry Barschall, author of a study of serials prices published in AIP's Physics Today (AL, Sept. 1989, p. 7 17-718).

When contacted by APS Treasurer Harry Lustig, FSCI director Maurice Levy, a prominent French physicist, denied knowledge of the survey, signing the cover letter, or authorizing anyone to sign his name for him. Lustig told AL Levy was "astounded" and promised to "investigate and protest." The foundation's letterhead bore only a Washington, D.C., P.O. box return address.

The survey asked if the Barschall article and others published by the American Mathematical Society and the Association of Research Libraries would influence the library to cancel titles. Those questions roused suspicions among librarians well aware of the AIP suit and G&B's threats of lawsuits against Joseph Boisse and James Thompson, library directors at University of California Santa Barbara and Riverside campuses. Boisse and Thompson published writings critical of G&B pricing.

Copies of the survey were faxed to Richard Meserve, Washington attorney for Barschall and AIP, who determined from the U.S. Postal Service that the postal meter is leased to Gordon & Breach in New York. Meserve said the P.O. box returnaddress is leased to an "individual in a Washington law firm."

Speculation about the survey's purpose focused on G&B attempts to prove to French, Swiss, and West German courts that Barschall's article damaged their business. At press time, AL learned that a G&B employee was visiting German libraries making inquiries about cancellations.

G&B International Sales Director Chris Schneider told AL the survey "has nothing to do with the AIP suit," but acknowledged that speculation is very understandable." He added that the survey related to a panel being formed by the FSCI to study serials-price survey methodology but also noted that the panel is in a premature stage" and that he knew little about it.

G&B "provided a mailing service," said Schneider, adding that the return address was probably set up for the convenience of the panel.

HEADLINE: 3 S.F. Men Charged In Drug Ring Scheme

BYLINE: Jim Doyle, Chronicle Staff Writer

BODY:
Federal agents have charged three San Francisco men in connection with an Atlanta-based ring that is suspected of laundering several million dollars in drug money through local banks and overseas trading firms.

A criminal complaint was filed Monday in Atlanta against Blessing U. Ahuruonye, Kee S. Chang and T. W. Washington, and arrest warrants were issued Wednesday. Chang has been apprehended, and the other two are being sought.

According to a search warrant affidavit filed yesterday in U.S. District Court in San Francisco, the men boasted to undercover agents of having high-level ''contacts'' at local banks who helped them launder drug money.

They also told agents of using international letters of credit, real estate transactions and false shipping documents to make it even more difficult to trace drug profits, the affidavit says.

The Atlanta-based group had been the target of a yearlong ''sting'' operation by agents from the Drug Enforcement Administration and the Internal Revenue Service. The investigation is continuing.

Agents have seized dozens of boxes of business and computer records at the homes and offices of the three men. They also searched the offices of a San Leandro freight company and carted away more business records.

According to the affidavit:

Chang runs a San Francisco shipping brokerage called G. B. International. He told undercover agents who were posing as heroin traffickers that he used his business to launder $ 1.9 million through banks in Singapore.

Washington runs a real estate office on Divisadero Street. He offered to help the agents purchase property to hide their illicit profits.

Ahuruonye runs a credit repair firm called NCS Credit Network Inc. from an office suite on Market Street. He told undercover agents that he laundered funds through a London waste recycling company and a Singapore trading firm.

OO:WMFO (209A-WF-184272)

The above captioned matters are multi-agency investigations to be located at 500 1st Street, NW, Washington, D.C., fourth floor. The attached floor plan identifies the office spaces that will be utilized by the investigating agencies. Rooms labeled "R1" through "R5", shown in red, relate to the [redacted] investigation. Rooms labeled "B1" through "B7", shown in blue, relate to the major case, "MAXBILL".

Both investigations will be utilizing the same computer network system. The computer server and MAU will be located in the room named "Law Library", marked in pink. The green markings, two in room B1, four in room R1, two in room R2 and one at the "receptionist" area, indicate the desired location for the network fiber to be run. There is existing fiber at this offsite which may be utilized to meet these needs.

Also, each agency representative will receive the proper security clearance to have access to FBI space. The agencies involved are as follows: Defense Criminal Investigative Service (DCIS), Internal Revenue Service (IRS), Health and Human Services (HHS) and Department of Justice (DOJ). It has been determined that to maintain the security of other FBI locations, that each agency should receive a specific access code to the offsite.

The above captioned matter is a multi-agency investigation to be located at the referenced offsite. The attached floor plan identifies the office spaces, in red, that will be utilized by the investigating agencies. Rooms labeled "R1 and R2" need additional telephone sevice. The yellow "T" symbol represents the location of existing telephone service. The blue "T" symbol represents additional telephone service lines.

On 3/17/93, the above information was related to [redacted] of the Telecommunications Unit. [redacted] was also advised that the telephone lines on the opposite side of the building, marked in green, were not being used. It was suggested by [redacted] that these lines could be used for the additional telephones needed by this investigation.

REQUEST OF FBIHQ:

FBIHQ, Telecommunications Unit, is requested to provide additional telephone service to rooms labeled "R1 and R2", where indicated on the attached floor plan.

The purpose of this memo is to request the utilization of [redacted] Secretary, BCCI, as a Secretary/Typist and part time Evidence Technician for the two captioned matters which are to use the off-site office space currently utilized by WMFO investigation entitled, Hidden Interest, Major Case # 38.

As currently configured [redacted] is the Secretary for the BCCI investigation which has been curtailed. Captioned investigations have been authorized to occupy the former BCCI space at 500 First St. NW, WDC. The "Maxbill" investigation will have as many as eight (8) persons assigned to a multi-agency task force. The [redacted] investigation will have as many as four (4) persons assigned to a multi-agency task force.

Both investigations expect to store evidence at the off-site and [redacted], who is assigned full time to the off-site, could also serve as a part time Evidence Technician overseeing the control of the off-site evidence room with the concurrence of the Evidence Control Technician and OSM of WMFO. It is anticipated the role of part time Evidence Technician should not take up much time and will allow [redacted] to continue to serve as Secretary for the BCCI investigation as well as provide some secretarial services for the task forces housed at the off-site.

HEADLINE: EL SALVADOR PRESIDENT CRISTIANI RESPONDS TO FMLN UNILATERAL CEASE-FIRE PROPOSAL

SOURCE: Radio El Salvador, San Salvador 1638 gmt 14 Nov 91

BODY:

Excerpts from relay of news conference by President Alfredo Cristiani with unidentified presenter and foreign and domestic reporters at the Presidency in San Salvador; broadcast in progress [Cristiani] . . . in Mexico City. We did not want to speak before that happened. What happened is that the FMLN just announced in Mexico City that effective 0000 on 16th November, it has decided to establish a unilateral cease-fire, halting all offensives, sabotage activities, and urban operations throughout the country. The cease-fire will continue throughout the negotiation process, which will culminate with a definitive cease-fire. We want to note that we view this FMLN position as a sign of goodwill to achieve a definitive cease-fire in the shortest time possible.

We hope that peace in El Salvador will begin on 16th November, when armed activities will cease in our country. We want to consider the full meaning of what the FMLN stated this morning. We will analyse the situation on 16th November to take unilateral measures that correspond with the FMLN announcement so that we can begin to provide the climate needed for the peace process so that the violence will end as soon as possible. We hope this will give a breather to Salvadorans on their path to a normal life. We expect that this sign of goodwill by the FMLN will also result in a will to conclude discussion of the topics pending on the abridged agenda as soon as possible. This agenda has been discussed in recent days and important advances were made. We hope these advances will continue at an even faster pace. . .

[Presenter] Mr Ernesto Rivas of Newscast of the Day programme.

[Rivas] We would like to know, with this turn in the negotiation process, is it possible to learn about [words indistinct] and how much more do you expect to talk with the FMLN to reach an agreement in this country?

[Cristiani] We have been giving priority to the armed forces issues. Of 14 topics up for discussion, 12 have been completed. We hope to begin discussion of the remaining two and expect to begin discussions of other topics on the abridged agenda [words indistinct] . I feel that today's announcement presents a much more real possibility that this topic will be discussed [words indistinct] . There will be a four-day recess in the negotiation process. This recess will begin on 17th November to analyse the topics that, in an overall manner, have been added to those already discussed on the agenda [words indistinct] . The meetings will resume on 22nd November. We feel that a continued effort is under way. We hope that all topics will be discussed during what is left of November and perhaps the first two weeks of December.

LEXIS·NEXIS® LEXIS·NEXIS® LEXIS·NEXIS®
Services of Mead Data Central, Inc.

We should not discount the goodwill [words indistinct] document or announcement of this morning that states that this is being done to provide the necessary climate so that speedier progress can be made in the negotiations so that they can conclude before the end of this year. We hope this will be the case. I do not want to say that there are no difficult topics for discussion ahead. There are still difficult topics to be discussed. However, I feel that if there is goodwill, we can overcome any problems.

[Presenter] Cesar Cedeno of 'La Prensa'.

[Cedeno] [Words indistinct] that the government will analyse corresponding unilateral measures [words inditistinct] the army, how will you [words indistinct] situation?

[Cristiani] This is a unilateral measure taken by the FMLN. It was not the result of a bilateral agreement.

Our current position is to watch the FMLN's position from 16th November. We will see what corresponding unilateral measures can be taken in this non-violent situation. These measures have not yet been taken. Our goal is to arrive at a definitive cease-fire gradually, with a retroactive effect, and as soon as possible. This is what we are seeking.

[Presenter] Melba Jimenez of the Many News programme.

[Jimenez] Has the government abandoned the idea of leaving the negotiations? Is the FMLN announcement on this due to UN pressure because of the Salvadoran government's reports?

[Cristiani] We have not abandoned the idea. We said that a dangerous situation was being created in the process because there was considerable contradiction between the FMLN's stand in the process and its continuing operations in the country. We said that such a contradiction did not make a suitable climate for negotiations. If the climate changes after 16th November, the need for us to take such a measure disappears. This is what counts. But I would not want to specify why, how, and when. We desire to take it as a token of the FMLN's goodwill to create the proper climate to end the process as soon as possible and establish a definitive cease-fire. They also said in their communique that the intention is to establish a cease-fire as soon as possible. The important thing is that they have made a decision that we regard as proper. I do not think it is worthwhile to consider the reasons for such a decision. . .

[Presenter] [Name indistinct] of 'La Prensa Grafica'.

[Reporter] Mr President, I recently read that the United Nations recently requested the reduction of ONUCA [UN Observer Group in Central America] peace corps. I would like to know the current situation of those peace forces for the verification of the disarmament process. Also, will the FMLN demobilise once a cease-fire agreement is reached?

LEXIS·NEXIS® LEXIS·NEXIS® LEXIS·NEXIS®
Services of Mead Data Central, Inc.

[Cristiani] No one has requested a reduction of ONUCA forces during this period of extended mandate. It was reduced last year, at the end of the Nicaraguan conflict. This year I understand that the mandate was extended for another period. We also understand that the group that will verify compliance with the agreements in our country is Onusal [UN Observers for El Salvador] and not ONUCA.

[Presenter] Mario Rosenthal of 'News Gazette'.

[Rosenthal] [Words indistinct] many [words indistinct] calls from people [words indistinct] conservative groups saying that the government has always been flexible and has given great concessions to the guerillas, but the newspaper says the contrary. Now you are talking about a unilateral truce announced by the FMLN. Very well, the FMLN will immediately respond that is what the FMLN wants. [Words indistinct] . Therefore, they are accomplishing something with the truce. I have not been able to answer the questions they have asked me. I want to [words indistinct] the government's weakness as a result of the New York agreements. The first thing they say is that [words indistinct] towards the armed forces. The other army has been present there with (?Colonel Vargas). They say a large sector of the large enterprises [words indistinct] in the economy and the [passage indistinct] . He said national dignity was traded for a plate of lentils [words indistinct] . He said the purging of the armed forces [passage indistinct] . I believe and I trust that [words indistinct] . I simply trust in what they are doing. I would like you to explain the government's position and I would like to summarise it in a single question. My question is this Can there be a cease-fire without the FMLN having to lay down its weapons?

[Cristiani] I could make a general comment. The FMLN announcement of a unilateral cease-fire does not constitute an armed peace because the government has made no commitment. There is no reason for us to act, because this is a unilateral position.

I have in mind the proposal they made two days ago. That was really the reason behind this news conference in which the government would give its official position regarding the truce proposal. A problem emerged with the proposal because the FMLN informally wanted the separation of forces; with a separation, the FMLN would have access to what they call the areas under their control without the presence of the armed forces to maintain order and security in the area. As for this situation, the government has not made any commitments and, as you said before, we are going to continue to observe how this FMLN initiative unfolds. Based on how the initiative unfolds, we would take the appropriate unilateral measures. We would end the acts of violence and we would be approaching a definitive cease-fire; however, we maintain that the final goal is a definitive cease-fire.

Now, there can be a cease-fire without the FMLN having to turn in its weapons, but the FMLN cannot return to civilian life without turning over its weapons. The Geneva Agreement clearly states that the return to civilian life must be made within the framework of the law. Article Seven of the constitution does not allow for armed groups except for the armed forces. That is why they cannot be a legal group as long as they do not turn over their weapons. We cannot accept the return to civilian life of the FMLN as long as there is no disarmament. That position is clear. It is a matter of reading and understanding what has been written. The problem with this - and I do not want thisto be a criticism because we know that many of the things that have taken place in the process are unknown to the public - is that expressions such as those made by Mr Salgado only reflect an unawareness of what the peace process really is. It is the result of trying to reach conclusions from part of the information and not from all the information about what is going on. At no time have we turned over the institutions of our country to anyone. Shares of power will not be turned over to anyone following the peace process. We are seeking changes that can benefit the nation and strengthen the democratic institutionos of our country, not those that will only benefit an individual or a group.

For this [words indistinct] that has to do with the economic and social aspects. We have not asked anyone for permission to develop our economic and social programmes. We presented those programmes to the Salvadoran people during the electoral campaign, and all we have done is comply with our commitments made during the campaign because the people are supporting us. It is very evident that no particular sector is being favoured or being given special privileges. Furthermore, the first thing we did was eliminate all fiscal privileges for all sectors. Inasmuch as the people sometimes do not know about everything that is being done, I can understand why some people have doubts. Sometimes, the information is scarce, and therefore some people reach the wrong conclusions. However, in the long run the benefits will be evident, and that is what the government seeks.

[Hurtado] My name is Rene Hurtado, of Radio YSKL. Mr President In the first place, you have referred to the unilateral cease-fire by the FMLN. However, what will happen when the army has to conduct operations in areas controlled by the FMLN? Is there some sort of an agreement under the table, or is there an agreement - [Cristiani - interrupting] There is no such agreement by the government.

[Hurtado] On the other hand, I would like to be more direct regarding a question by my friend, Mr Rosenthal. Mr President, are you being pressured by those government sectors that are hindering an agreement with the FMLN?

[Cristiani] In the first place, the government does not have any commitment to modify anything at all. This is a unilateral initiative of the FMLN that we interpret as a gesture of goodwill so that we can conclude the process. As events continue to develop, we will then adopt - but without any commitment - unilateral measures that could favour the [words indistinct] , thus preventing any violence. However, there is no commitment. We will analyse the situation as it develops. We cannot say anything beforehand.

In the second place, there is no group that is exerting any pressure on us to do anything. The government realises that the vast majority of Salvadorans want peace. When they elected a government, they were asking that government to work for the sake of peace. That is what we have understood and are trying to do.

In the strictly political aspect, we have received full support from the political party to which we belong, and that is very important for us. There will be some people who do not agree with that or do not like it. This will always happen. One is never perfect and we do mistakes. However, there will always be differences of opinion on that. The one thing we are intereted in is achieving peace. This is our goal. We believe we are doing this without giving up anything.

LEXIS·NEXIS® LEXIS·NEXIS® LEXIS·NEXIS®
Services of Mead Data Central, Inc.

For example, when the constitutional reforms were being discussed, it was said there was a lot of pressure. You might recall the strong campaign that was waged by the media. Nonetheless, the constitutional reforms were approved, and nobody is afraid now that he may have lost something. Some said we were going to give away the entire country.

With the exception of a discussion over the National Council of Settlements (Spanish Consejo Nacional de la Adjudicatura), nobody says anything about the reforms. I believe it is natural for people to be concerned. That is why we say we will wait for the evaluation at the end, when everything has been settled.

[Ramirez] My name is Hector Florencio Ramirez, of 'Ysuca'. I would like to ask you if you are analysing what measures will be adopted as a result of the proposal by the guerrillas? [words indistinct] , and are you going to grant some concessions?

[Cristiani] I would rather not talk about hypothetical cases and I would like to maintain - [pauses] I do not want this to be misintepreted because it should only be interpreted in one way. This is a unilateral measure that was adopted by the FMLN; all we will do is assume that this is asign of goodwill and maintain a positive attitude. We may take appropriate unilateral measures to create the necessary atmosphere to achieve a definite cease-fire, but it all depends on the situation. Our goal is nothing other than the achievement of a definite cease-fire.

[Presenter] The next question will be asked by Arturo Alvarez of 'La Nacion' in Costa Rica.

[Alvarez] Mr President, what impact would an eventual end to the Salvadoran conflict have on the rest of Central America?

[Cristiani] I think you should ask the other presidents. The effect is obviously the consolidation of political stability in the region. It would also allow for the possibility of further strengthening the democratic processes in our countries because it would eliminate the obstacles caused by violence. I think it would make it possibile to work on much more productive topics for the sake of our people and their development. This would lead to a much more feasible and dynamic process in those areas. Instead of wasting time talking about eliminating bad things, we would be working on generating good things. . .

[Presenter] Douglas Day of AP. Will you speak in Spanish or English?

[Day] Spanish. Mr President, I believe we would be somewhat naive if we failed to recognise the presence of a quid pro quo in a negotiation. We are not talking about the distant future; we are talking about a situation that may arise [words indistinct] in two days. Mr Cristiani, as commander of the armed forces, would you actually be prepared to adopt measures to, for example, order the return of elite battalions - which are now operating in Sonsonate, Morazan and parts of Usulutan where a guerrilla presence has been reported - to their barracks? I know you do not want to discuss hypothetical cases but we are talking about something that may happen within two days. Using the elite battalions as an example, what specific measures would you be willing to take?

[Cristiani] As you said, I think your question deals with a hypothetical case and it is difficult to hypothesise because one might adopt a position that could be misinterpreted in the future. We do not want that because we would not want a situation like this to distort things, cause problems, or mean the beginning of the end. I can only say that we would be willing to do whatever is necessary based on developments, because it is a unilateral situation. There has been no agreement and there will be no verification, so we would have to see how things are going before we can adopt specific measures. There are many possibilities about what can be done but it all depends on the process. We cannot predict what measures can or cannot be taken because things could change. However, if this moves along as expected - [changes thought] That is why I said we will consider the FMLN's announcement as a gesture of goodwill to really end the conflict. We will analyse the situation from that perspective. That is why we say we may adopt unilateral measures according our goal, which is to achieve a definite cease-fire.

LEXIS·NEXIS® LEXIS·NEXIS® LEXIS·NEXIS®
Services of Mead Data Central, Inc.

[Presenter] The next question is from Iris Martinez [words indistinct] .

[Martinez] Mr President, you have the experience of other unilateral cease-fires decreed by the two parties in the past; however, they lasted only a short time because there were no previous agreements. You said that there are no agreements but there is a possibility that the United Nations will be a mediator so that a cease-fire may become a reality without involving a verification [words indistinct] definite cease-fire. At least it represents the first step, just as the cease-fire proposal represents a first step.

[Cristiani] I think that an important aspect in which the United Nations can mediate now is in drafting the final cease-fire procedures. I think the situation can be improved if the two things are merged, that is if we merge the unilateral cease-fire with the certainty of a final cease-fire. I think that would be a great help and would improve the situation. Then we could say that the end of the conflict began on 16th December [as heard] 1991. In the light of the fact that it is a unilateral position, I do not think that the United Nations can mediate, because it can only mediate to seek an agreement, and no agreement has been reached. This involves a unilateral position on the part of the FMLN, and the government reserves the right to adopt unilateral positions as well.

[Reporter] [Words indistinct] the immediate unilateral cease-fire?

[Cristiani] I feel that compliance begins with the announcement by the FMLN in its communique that it is going to stop its offensive operations, its attacks on urban areas, and its acts of sabotage. If we do not see these actions from the FMLN, this means they are keeping their word.

[Reporter] [Words indistinct] -

[Cristiani - interrupting] Pardon me, I just want to add this. We can make decisions that would make it easier to maintain this situation, which could be unilateral actions on our part.

[Presenter] [Name indistinct] .

[Reporter] I have two questions, Mr President. Can you foresee the impact that the FMLN announcement will have on the [words indistinct] on the peace process, which may serve to allay fears? Also, could you make an approximate estimate of how much time would be necessary to assess [words indistinct] ?

LEXIS·NEXIS® LEXIS·NEXIS® LEXIS·NEXIS®
Services of Mead Data Central, Inc.

[Cristiani] I will attempt to make an analysis, but I am not saying that everybody will make the same one. Lately we have felt that a large number of sectors are condemming and complaining about the FMLN's inconsistent stance. The FMLN says that peace could come even before Christmas, which is a less than one month away. On the other hand, these sectors find it hard to justify the deaths of more civilians, the destruction of job centres, and the sabotage of economic structures.

If the FMLN in a gesture of goodwill says it is stopping all of that, I would think the reaction should be positive, as long as we regard this as a positive signal and give it a chance to work. Let me repeat, the FMLN said this morning that the cease-fire will be in effect without a time limitation for the duration of the negotiation process, and so we would be merging this unilateral declaration with the final cease-fire. That means that 16th November, or maybe the day before, could very well be the day that the conflict ends in El Salvador. In think that in this respect, a reaction could come.

The complaint against the FMLN went like this how can they talk of peace and [words indistinct] , why kill more civilians if this conflict is about to conclude in one month? That created a negative atmosphere for the peace process. As for the other question, I think this is not a matter of deadlines. Starting at 0000, on 16th November, we can begin to analyse what may happen. We ought not establish deadlines, or say when, how, or what measures the government can take. The analysis starts the moment that the FMLN proposal of a unilateral cease-fire takes hold.

[Presenter] The next question is by Christa McNeill of 'The Miami Herald' - [pauses] it is Omar Yazid of [name indistinct] .

[Yazid] If a cease-fire agreement is signed, it would create great economic expectations among the population because it could lead to a postwar situation. Therefore, will the government implement a new economic programme, following consultations with political groups, or will it continue with the same one?

[Cristiani] I would rather not talk in general terms and answer the question with yes or no. First of all, the government has developed what we call a national reconstruction plan and the Planning Ministry has already scheduled meetings with various political, labour and business groups to discuss the plan and listen to their reactions and ideas. The idea is to improve the plan as much as possible because it is designed as an opportunity to achieve economic development while the production groups truly start to operate in a dynamic and efficient way; they will no longer have certain obstacles. What we intend to do, and we have discussed this, is to hold a meeting with the labour and business sectors to review certain measures. The idea is to establish equitable compensations through adjustment programmes.

The other goal is to decide what measures can be adopted to eliminate the dispute between the labour and business sectors. Our goal is to implement measures that offer a better relationship between these two sectors, which together comprise the production sector. However, we will definitely not present the economic programme for a discussion.

Even the FMLN has accepted the fact that the government outlined its economic platform. The people voted for the current government, which has every right to implement the economic and social platform that it outlined during the political campaign. Therefore, the government is not about to discuss the economic programme with various groups. This does not mean that certain topics may be corrected because, as I said before, no-one is perfect and we could make a mistake. We are willing to make corrections whenever we are convinced that the situation is truly bad.

I am sure that if we agree that the difficult part of the stabilisation process has been overcome and if we agree that it is necessary to put an end to violence and develop the production sector, we will certainly see the results of what was done. That is why we said in the beginning that we had two alternatives as a government, because we had a sick patient the country's economy and social situation. The government had two options The easiest thing, politically speaking, was to keep on giving morphine to the patient to alleviate his pain and keep him happy, awake and without pain. However, the disease would continue to progress and the patient would eventually die. The patient might die happy [Cristiani laughs] but death is never a pleasant thing.

The other option was to operate on the patient and definitely cure the disease. We opted for this and we now have a postoperative trauma, meaning the trauma we have withstood. We have opened our economy to reality and now everyone must realise that the state is exhausted; it can no longer give things away. This is the time to rebuild the country so that we can distribute something. What we had was poverty and that can hardly be distributed. . .

HEADLINE: REAGAN REJECTS SALVADORAN PLEA ON ILLEGAL ALIENS

BODY:

President Reagan today turned down a plea from the President of El Salvador to give temporary refuge to thousands of Salvadorans living illegally in this country.

The State Department said the United States had decided that it could not make an exception to the new immigration law, despite an impassioned request President Jose Napoleon Duarte made last month.

Illegal aliens from El Salvador have already begun returning home because they cannot legally be hired in this country. But in a letter to Mr. Duarte, Mr. Reagan said, ''It is unlikely that a large-scale exodus of Salvadorans will occur.'' Mr. Reagan also quoted the United States Commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization as saying, ''There will be no large-scale deportations as a result of the new law.''

Mr. Reagan's letter was given to Mr. Duarte by Edwin G. Corr, the United States Ambassador to El Salvador.

'Not Surprised' by Ruling

In Washington, the Salvadoran Ambassador, Ernesto Rivas- Gallont, said in an interview that he was ''saddened but not surprised'' by the decision.

''We do not want to jeopardize our excellent relations with the United States,'' Mr. Rivas-Gallont said. ''But we feel our main obligation is to our fellow countrymen and women. We will continue to pursue avenues that would allow Salvadorans to remain in the United States for such time as necessary until the situation in El Salvador becomes normal. Then we can program an orderly return of our people.''

The new law, the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986, prohibits employers from hiring illegal aliens, but offers legal status, or amnesty, to illegal aliens who can prove that they entered the United States before Jan. 1, 1982, and have lived here continuously since then.

Economic Impact Feared

In a letter dated April 10, Mr. Duarte asked Mr. Reagan to let the Salvadorans remain temporarily in this country. He said that ''the massive

Services of Mead Data Central, Inc.

(c) 1987 The New York Times, May 15, 1987 return of Salvadorans from the United States would add to the already disastrous levels of unemployment and economic crisis'' in his country.

He said 400,000 to 600,000 Salvadorans, representing about 10 percent of his country's population, had entered the United States illegally since January 1982 and thus would not qualify for amnesty under the new law. Mr. Duarte said these people sent home remittances of $350 million to $600 million a year.

In his letter to Mr. Duarte, President Reagan said he had asked Secretary of State George P. Shultz ''to bring your concerns to the urgent attention of the Department of Justice and the Immigration and Naturalization Service, and to work with them to insure that the effects you fear do not occur.''

Administration officials said it was unlikely large numbers of Salvadorans would return home, even though the new law was designed to encourage the departure of illegal aliens.

Under the law, employers may continue to employ illegal aliens who were hired before Nov. 6, 1986, when President Reagan signed the immigration bill. But these aliens are locked into their current jobs; they cannot legally be hired by any other employer.

Elliott Abrams, Assistant Secretary of State for Inter-American Affairs, said last month that he supported Mr. Duarte's request. But Administration officials said it had been opposed by other Presidential appointees, including Mr. Nelson, Attorney General Edwin Meese 3d and Michael H. Armacost, the Under Secretary of State for Political Affairs.

Mr. Duarte had asked Mr. Reagan to defer the deportation of Salvadorans by giving them a special status known as ''extended voluntary departure.'' The Justice Department has granted a similar dispensations to people from Afghanistan and Poland and, on a more limited basis, to Ethiopians.

The rejection of Mr. Duarte's request is likely to intensify interest in legislative proposals to defer the deportation of Salvadorans. Such bills have been introduced by Representative Joe Moakley of Massachusetts and Senator Dennis DeConcini of Arizona, both Democrats.

Most Seeking Asylum Rejected

Many Salvadorans have applied for asylum in the United States, but few applications have been approved. In the last fiscal year, the immigration service granted asylum to 55 Salvadorans and denied 1,149 applications.

To qualify for asylum, an alien must show ''a well-founded fear of persecution on account of race, religion, nationality, membership in a particular social group, or political opinion.''

LEXIS·NEXIS® LEXIS·NEXIS® LEXIS·NEXIS®
Services of Mead Data Central, Inc.

We have audited the consolidated financial statements of Hanson PLC listed in the accompanying index to financial statements (Item 19(a)). These financial statements are the responsibility of the Company's management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on our audits.

We conducted our audits in accordance with United Kingdom auditing standards which do not differ in any significant respect from United States generally accepted auditing standards. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audits provide a reasonable basis for our opinion.

In our opinion, the financial statements listed in the accompanying index to financial statements (Item19(a)) present fairly, in all material respects, the consolidated financial position of Hanson PLC at September 30, 1992 and 1991 and the consolidated results of its operations for each of the three years in the period ended September 30, 1992 and cash flows, in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United Kingdom which differ in certain respects from those followed in the United States (see Note 24 of Notes to Consolidated Financial Statements).

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION: Item 9. Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations

Results of Operations The following discussion is based on the Consolidated Financial Statements of Hanson included in this Annual Report. These statements are prepared in accordance with U.K. GAAP, which differ in certain significant respects from U.S. GAAP. Reconciliations to U.S. GAAP are set forth in Note 24 of Notes to the Consolidated Financial Statements of Hanson.

The operations of Hanson are conducted principally in the United Kingdom and United States. For purposes of Hanson's annual consolidated financial statements, the results of its United States and other overseas subsidiaries are translated at end-of-period rated. (See Note 1(k) of Notes to the Consolidated Financial Statements of Hanson). Consequently, Hanson's reported results are affected by fluctuations in the end-of-period rates of exchange between the pound sterling and the other currencies in which it receives revenues and incurs expenses, principally the U.S. dollar. These fluctuations did not have a material effect on Hanson's consolidated results of operations for the 1992 fiscal year. For purposes of the following discussion, percentage figures for increases and decreases of individual business units are calculated based on results in local currencies, principally the pound sterling and U.S. dollar.

Fiscal Year 1992 Compared with Fiscal Year 1991 Sales for the 1992 fiscal year totalled (L)8,798 million, an increase of (L)1,107 million (14%) over the 1991 fiscal year. Sales included (L)903 million form businesses acquired during the 1992 fiscal year, and (L)87 million from businesses divested prior to September 30, 1992. Sales in the 1991 fiscal year included (L)136 million from businesses divested during the 1992 fiscal year. Sales from continuing operations, excluding the 1992 acquisitions, increased (L)253 million (3%) for the 1992 fiscal year.

Operating profit for the 1992 fiscal year totalled (L)1,050 million, an increase of (L)113 million (12%) over the 1991 fiscal year. Fiscal 1992 results included (L)80 million from businesses acquired, and (L)10 million from businesses sold during the 1992 fiscal year. Operating profit before interest in the 1991 fiscal year included (L)28 million from businesses divested during the 1992 fiscal year. Operating profit from continuing operations before interest, excluding the 1992 acquisitions, increased (L)51 million (6%) for the 1992 fiscal year.

Industrial Group Sales of the Industrial Group were (L)2,720 million, 3% lower than in the 1991 fiscal year. Profits were down 5% to (L)430 million, principally due to lower sales prices and the resulting lower gross margins achieved by the major businesses in the group.

Peabody's coal mining operations earned (L)157 million, down 8% from the 1991 fiscal year with sales 90.8 million short tons of coal, 1% lower than during the 1991 fiscal year. Mild weather for the past two years in the United States and the general economic recession worldwide have combined to reduce steam and metallurgical coal demand and prices. The effect on Peabody was mitigated somewhat since 78% of its sales are under long term contract. Peabody's total production of 88.1 million tons was marginally below fiscal 1991, with increased production from Powder River's low sulphur coal reserves offsetting reduced production from Peabody's midwest higher sulphur coal reserves. In 1992 fiscal year, 66% of Peabody's production was low sulphur coal compared to 63% during prior year. This trend is expected to continue as Peabody's electric utility customers prepare for the Clean Air Act requirements relating to sulphur dioxide emissions which become mandatory in 1995. Sales of 90.8 million short tons included 79 million tons of steam coal and 2.1 million tons of metallurgical coal to United States domestic customers and exports of 9.7 million tons. Peabody's mine costs per short ton were 5% lower during the 1992 fiscal year as productivity measured in short tons per manshift improved 10% due to capital spending programs to help reduce costs and the shift of production to low cost, high productivity Powder River mines. In July 1992, Peabody acquired a West Virginia underground mine and related coal reserves and a 20-year, 2.5 million tons per annum coal sales contract with the former owner for $62 million in cash, the assumption of $26 million of liabilities and future payments of $77 million over 13.5 years. There are two uncertain factors that could affect 1993 fiscal year results. First, a labor contract affecting 60% of Peabody's employees and 44% of Peabody's production, primarily in the eastern United States, expires in February 1993 and is currently under renegotiation. Second, there are high coal stockpiles throughout the industry caused by mild weather in the winter of 1992, cool weather in the summer of 1992 and the sluggish economy.

During the 1992 fiscal year profits of the Chemicals group fell 15% to (L) 116 million. SCM Chemical's profits decreased 20% despite a 5% increase in sales volume to 412.8 million tons of its principal product, titanium dioxide. Average selling prices fell 8% due to an estimated 6% increase in industry capacity against an estimated increase of only 4% in worldwide consumption. Despite the continued oversupply, and production was at capacity levels at each SCM Chemical's United States, United Kingdom and Australian plants. The volume increase was primarily due to new production capacity at SCM Chemical's Ashtabula, Ohio facility, which increased SCM Chemical's total worldwide installed capacity to 446,000 metric tons from 393,000 metric tons. The environmentally preferred chloride process now accounts for 83% of SCM Chemical's total capacity. Two waste water treatment projects costing (L)16 million were commissioned at SCM Chemical's Metal factory at Stallingborough, England pursuant to the new European Community Harmonisation Directive.

SCM Glidco Organics profit increased 39% and SCM Metal Products' profit increased 58%, resulting in a combined (L)19 million contribution. Both operations posted sales increases of about 8%. The generally weaker U.S. dollar during 1992 fiscal year benefitted SCM Glidco's export sales. Additional production capacity was installed by SCM Metal Products to meet an anticipated growth in demand for stainless steel, aluminium and copper alloy powders.

Grove Worldwide's profits decreased 14% to (L)42 million, with sales declining to (L)258 million from (L)276 million. The recession in construction markets negatively affected demand for material handling equipment, leading to increased discounts and lower margins. In the North American crane market, which generally declined by 12%, Grove's market share in mobile hydraulic cranes increased to 56% from 52%. Sales of truck mounted telescoping and articulating cranes were higher due to increased demand from the railroad industry and Grove's expansion in the international markets. Profits of Grove Europe halved during the 1992 fiscal year due to the slump in the United Kingdom market which more than offset new export business to the Middle East and Africa.

Gold Fields Mining's profit fell 24% to (L)29 million. Sales of (L)106 million were up 8% with increased production at its Chimney Creek and Mesquite mines increasing to 454,000 ounces from 431,000 ounces in the 1991 fiscal year. The average selling price for gold was down 4% to $377 per ounce from $394 per ounce during the 1991 fiscal year due to lower average spot gold prices and lower sales of ounces previously sold forward at higher prices. Cash costs increased to $170 per ounce from $148 per ounce during the 1991 fiscal year as a result of higher mining and processing costs, partially offset by higher production rates as noted above. Capital investment and exploration expenditures directed toward developing existing deposits and finding new gold reserves totalled over (L)30 million during the 1992 fiscal year.

Other Industrial Products Group businesses reported profits of (L)86 million, an increase of 48% over the 1991 fiscal year on sales of (L)802 million in the 1992 fiscal year compared with (L)772 million during the 1991 fiscal year. In the United Kingdom, profits increased 79% to (L)36 million while in the United States profit of (L)50 million was 28% greater than in fiscal 1991. Smith Meters increased its profits by over 60%. Approximately 930,000 meters were sold in the 1992 fiscal year, a decline of 2% over the 1991 fiscal year, although margins improved due to major product enhancements and unit cost reductions. Industrial meter demand increased and the central heating business has been sold to allow management to concentrate more on its core business. A cashless prepayment meter for British Gas has been developed and delivery began in the last fiscal quarter on 100,000 units for customer trial. SLD Pumps produced record results, with profits 20% higher than during the 1991 fiscal year. Market share was increased to over 40% as SLD continued to enhance its pump range. The other construction related service companies had a difficult year although, with the exception of Rollalong, all made a profit. William Warne, the rubber products company, had an excellent year due to higher sales of pharmaceutical seals.

The United States automotive group was adversely affected by the decline in the United States automotive industry. Capital investment during the 1992 fiscal year at Garden State Tanning, Huron and Leon focused on production efficiency and increased capacity for contracts awarded for the 1993 and 1994 models. Axelson's sales of pumping and safety equipment for the oil and natural gas industry continued to be affected by low domestic drilling activity. However, as a result of an increase in international business, Axelson's profits increased 9%. Subsequent to the 1992 fiscal year end, Weber Aircraft was sold to an affiliate of Groupe Zodiac for $85 million, a premium to book value of $37 million.

During the 1992 fiscal year, the office furniture sector enjoyed a 13% improvement in sales, reflecting the successful introduction of new products at both United Chair and Anderson Hickey. A new $7.4 million manufacturing facility is under construction in Cedar City, Utah to better serve Anderson Hickey's increased West Coast customer base. New Jersey Office Supply reported an 83% increase in operating profit. The office supply group added four new distribution centers in key United States locations to enhance its geographic coverage.

Consumer Group Profits of the Consumer Group rose 19% to (L)380 million during 1992 fiscal year, on a sales increase of 10% to (L)3,631 million, led by profit increases at Imperial Tobacco.

Imperial Tobacco reported a 17% increase in profits for the 1992 fiscal year to (L)280 million. Sales revenue (including government taxes) increased 12% to (L)2,981 million in fiscal year 1992. The cigarette market in the United Kingdom declined by 4% in the second successive year of above-inflation duty increases. Imperial Tobacco's market share increased marginally to 34.5% with production of 31.7 billion cigarettes. "Superkings", expanded by the introduction of "Superkings Menthol", continued to grow with volume increasing by 30% during year, and now holds more than a 9% share of the United Kingdom cigarette market. "Regal" benefited from the introduction of a coupon program and an award winning advertising campaign while "Embassy" and "L&B" each strengthened their market positions. Imperial maintained its share of the United Kingdom cigar market, with the "Classic" brand increasing its market share to 20% of the "small" cigar sector.

Imperial Tobacco completed a (L)40 million rationalization and new technology investment program on schedule. Its Glasgow and Ipswich factories closed during the 1992 fiscal year and its new cigar factory in Bristol became fully operational. Efficiency at Imperial's Nottingham cigarette factory increased by 9% during the year while cigar production efficiency rose 35%. Distribution and selling functions are still being reorganized company-wide to focus on further increasing Imperial's market share and profitability. Imperial's international and Republic of Ireland units contributed over (L)20 million of profits during the 1992 fiscal year.

Other Consumer Group companies reported a 27% increase in profits to (L) 100 million and a 6% increase in sales to (L)650 million. In the United Kingdom, profit increased 5% to (L)39 million and in the United States profit increased 45% to (L)61 million. Seven Seas' sales and profits continued to grow despite a depressed retail market, as the health vitamin and mineral supplement markets remained strong. Seven Seas' volumes increased by 11%, while its profit and sales grew by 18% and 17% respectively. Revenue growth was particularly strong in the multivitamin "Berries", Cod Liver Oil and Hofels garlic tablets products. Seven Seas' market share increased to 19% during the 1992 fiscal year as two new products, including a new natural multivitamin range and a number of variants, were successfully launched.

In the United States, Rexair vacuum cleaners surpassed last year's record earnings by 52%, primarily by improved performance in the international markets and the introduction of new accessories for the "Rainbow" cleaning system. Farberware stainless steel cookware returned to profitability on broadened distribution and stronger sales of "Millenium", the new line of high quality, non-stick cookware. Plant expansion is under way at Carisbrook's Tube-Tex unit, which posted a record year and benefited from strong domestic and international sales in the textile finishing equipment market with profit improving 61%.

The Recreation and Leisure companies also had an exceptional year with record profit and increased market share in most divisions. Ertl's die-cast toys, collector and promotional products benefited from the return to "basic toy" buying with profit climbing 84%. Sales of private brand replica trucks and cars increased 23% and unit costs were substantially reduced through increased factory efficiency. The Jennings bow line increased market share at Bear Archery, where profit more than doubled. Tommy Armour's profit grew by 59% as the continued success of its "845" irons was bolstered by the complementary "845" metal woods. Improved domestic sales of pool tables and electronic dart games at Valley, which also produced record earnings, were partially offset by a slowdown in export shipments to Europe. The Footwear Group showed substantial profit improvement, with Georgia Boot at records levels due to the strength of the "Durango" boot line and the introduction of a line of new and more comfortable work shoes. Emphasis on improved product quality, sourcing capacity and cost saving opportunities also improved Endicott Johnson's margins.

- Building Products Group Due primarily to the first time inclusion of Housebuilding at (L)45 million and of Beazer's United States aggregates businesses at (L)29 million, the Building Products Group profit increased significantly, up from (L)195 million in the 1991 fiscal year to (L)267 million during the 1992 fiscal year. However, excluding Housebuilding and Beazer aggregates, the group showed a decline in profitability of 7%.

In the United Kingdom, ARC reported profits of slightly under (L)40 million in the 1992 fiscal year versus (L)69 million in the 1991 fiscal year, a decline of over 40%. Sales were (L)504 million in fiscal 1992 versus (L)551 million in fiscal 1991, a decline of about 9%. ARC's results reflected the continuing downturn in the United Kingdom construction industry, with demand for aggregates down 4% in fiscal 1992 and 25% over the last three years. Selling prices were similarly under severe pressure as industry supply greatly exceeded demand. ACR's Aggregates division, which includes the supply of land based and marine sand and gravel, drystone, coated stone and landfill activities, reported profits down approximately 45% for the second consecutive year and cut its workforce by over 9%. The Southern and Central areas were affected the most as the recession hit hardest in these areas while the Premix concrete operations were under extreme pressure throughout the United Kingdom. ARC's Pipe and Block Companies profits were down over 75% to just under (L)0.4 million in the 1992 fiscal year. The severe economic downturn, resulting in over-capacity in the pipe and concrete block industry, led to further manpower reductions and plant closures. The landfill company, Greenways Landfill, the waste disposal arm of ARC, continued to expand and opened two new sites during the 1992 fiscal year with profits increasing by approximately 29%.

Beazer USA, acquired in December 1991, was reorganized and consolidated with Kaiser Cement, achieving annual savings in overhead expenses of (L)17 million. Two of Beazer's corporate offices were eliminated and its fourteen divisions were reorganized into six. For the ten months included in fiscal 1992, Beazer's United States aggregate business contributed (L)565 million in sales and (L)29 million in trading profit. The depressed United States building and construction markets put downward pressure on prices and volumes. Beazer shipped over 66 million short tons of aggregates, 10 million tons of hot mix asphalt and 2.5 million tons of readymix products, with the Southeastern United States market the only area showing regional growth. To meet continued growth opportunities in Northern California, an expenditure of (L)8 million has begun on an expansion of the rock crushing plant at Kaiser Cement.

The Forest Products and Lumber segment increased sales 24% to (L)221 million and profits 57% to higher at (L)69 million. Cavenham, in its first full year as part of Hanson, earned a record profit of (L)65 million. Cavenham was included for ten months in fiscal 1991. Although Cavenham timber harvest declined 3% from the 1991 level to 140.6 million cubic feet, prices were up 9% on average, reflecting a reduced supply of competing timber from public timberland due to government and legal restrictions. Timber growth in Cavenham's forests exceeded harvest by more than 38%. Cavenham produced a record 477 million board feet of lumber from the four Southern United States sawmills, an increase of 68 million board feet. The Southern sawmills operated at capacity for the entire fiscal year. Lumber prices increased 12% over 1991 levels, due in part to the timber price increases and reduced timber supply described above and partially due to a slight upturn in new residential construction and demand in the wake of Hurricane Andrew.

Brown Moulding enjoyed steady growth in its Southeast markets. Performance at Duke City Lumber was greatly improved as it returned to profitability after a 1991 fiscal year loss. Strategic changes included the sale of its Arizona sawnmill, the closure of one New Mexico sawmill and the modification of another facility.

The Beazer house building business produced profit of (L)45 million on ten month sales of (L)338 million. Beazer sold amount 5,000 houses in the United Kingdom during the 12 months ended September 30, 1992, representing a 3.5% share of the United Kingdom housing market. The mix of housing was more heavily weighted in favor of Housing Association work in the 1992 fiscal year, which accounted for over 26% of the completions. United States home building is concentrated mainly in the Southeast and sales of 1,182 homes in the full 12 months ending September 30, 1992, reflected a 27.5% increase for the comparable twelve month period during 1991.

The combined profit of other building products companies increased 9% to (L)72 million despite generally poor markets in both the United Kingdom and the United States. In the United Kingdom profit decreased to (L)40 million while in the United States profit increased 23% to (L)32 million. The two United Kingdom brick companies suffered in a market which declined a further 5% in fiscal 1992 and declined over 37% from its peak in 1989. Sales volume at London Brick was down 12% and revenue was down 15% to (L)68 million. In November 1992, production was reduced by over 110 million bricks to avoid inventory build up. Butterfly Brick made a small contribution in fiscal 1992 before (L)12 million of rationalization provisions, as a further three works were closed and stocks were written down to market value. Butterfly retained its position as one of the leading non-fletton high quality brick makers, with market share of facing bricks increasing marginally. However, due to the United Kingdom's building slump, volumes were down 6% and prices down 8%. Production is being reduced and concentrated in the high-volume, low cost brick works.

The electrical division, comprised of Crabtree, Marbourn and Volex, reported profits up over 30% on the previous year despite falling orders. Cost reduction programs at Crabtree and full year's ownership of Volex contributed significantly to these results. Volex, acquired in 1991, is now operating at an annual profit rate of (L)2 million versus a loss of (L) 600,000 prior to its acquisition.

Hanson's United States consumer building products group reported profit up 46%. Both Ames and Jacuzzi had records results, the latter with its three new "J-Dream" shower models doubling its unit volume in Europe, where over 55% of Jacuzzi's profit is now earned. Jacuzzi Whirlpool Bath in the United States had a 48% improvement in bath unit sales, significantly outpacing the economy. Ames benefited from new product introductions and expanded distribution of its lawn and garden tools to mass merchant and home improvement chains. The lighting group showed a modest increase but the 15% drop in United States non-residential construction continued to force volumes and pricing lower. MW Manufacturers increased its sales of windows and door products to (L)61 million during the 1992 fiscal year from (L)59 million in fiscal 1991, helped by the acquisition of BiltBest Windows and continuing success of its internally-developed vinyl clad window products.

- Associated Undertakings and Other Associated undertakings (equity accounted affiliates) contributed a profit of (L)18 million, equal to the 1991 fiscal year. Lower profits were reported from 40%-owned Renison Gold Fields, due to declines in its mineral sand operations, and from 48%-owned Smith Corona, primarily relating to provisions taken in connection with a planned factory move. The acquisition of Beazer brought with it Beazer's equity investment in Koppers Industries and several cement plant joint ventures, which contributed (L)6 million for the ten months post acquisition. The 33%-owned Ground Round Restaurants reported record profit with increases in comparable restaurant sales and average guest checks. MariFarms, 47%-owned, reported an overall loss reflecting operating losses and writedowns from its tuna canning business. MariFarms recently signed a contract to sell that business and separately acquired salmon farming operations in Scotland and Chile.

Operations disposed of or closed during the 1992 fiscal year contributed (L)10 million for the period. British Ever Ready, sold in August at a gain of approximately (L)100 million, was the most significant disposal with eleven months' sales and profits of (L)62 million and (L)9 million, respectively, compared to full 1991 fiscal year sales and profits of (L)86 million and (L)28 million, respectively. Included in profits on disposal was (L)52 million reflecting receipt in September 1992 of a final cash payment of (L)30 million from the purchaser of Hanson's former Courage Brewing subsidiary, and the reversal of certain provisions established on that and other disposals which were no longer required owing to the resolution of legal or other contingencies.

Central expenses less property and other income were (L)37 million during the 1992 fiscal year versus (L)56 million for the prior year. Other income in 1992 included (L)15 million in dividends on investments subsequently sold. Provisions and costs relating to the closure of certain manufacturing plants and operations related to continuing operations were (L)23 million in the 1992 fiscal year and (L)57 million in fiscal 1991. Announced closures of brick-making facilities were approximately (L)16 million in each year. The 1991 fiscal year included additional provisions relating to certain United States footwear and consumer product divisions.

Net interest income declined (L)142 million from (L)188 million to (L)46 million. The acquisition of Beazer resulted in a (L)79 million increase in interest expense. Lower United States dollar interest rates over the 1992 fiscal year reduced interest expense by (L)33 million but savings was more than offset by (L)96 million decrease interest income earned on deposits, resulting mainly from lower sterling interest rates net of higher balances.

The taxation charge in fiscal 1992 declined (L)61 million, resulting in an effective rate of 15.3%. This reflects the reduction of unutilized advanced corporation tax by approximately (L)88 million due to a change in policy relating to the payment of quarterly dividends, which resulted in only two quarterly dividends being accounted for in fiscal 1992, versus the full year's dividend recorded in fiscal year's dividend recorded in fiscal 1991. The full year's dividend will be accounted for in fiscal 1993. The fiscal 1991 tax charge had been reduced by a (L)26 million benefit relating to the sale of businesses and investments. Tax on continuing operations was slightly higher, reflecting the increase in operating profit.

As a result of the foregoing factors, profit available for appropriation -(net income) in the 1992 fiscal year increased by (L)31 million, and earnings per share, on a fully diluted basis, increased 2.3% to 22.2 pence.

Fiscal Year 1991 Compared with Fiscal Year 1990 Sales for the 1991 fiscal year totalled (L)7,691 million, an increase of (L)538 million (8%) over the 1990 fiscal year. Sales for the 1991 fiscal year included (L)136 million from businesses divested prior to September 30, 1992. Sales in the 1990 fiscal year included (L)409 million from businesses divested prior to September 30, 1992.

Sales from continuing operations increased (L)811 million (12%).

Profits on ordinarily activities before taxation for the 1991 fiscal year totalled (L)1,316 million, an increase of (L)152 million (13%) over the 1990 fiscal year. The overall increase in profits related to contributions from the Industrial group, which increased profits by (L)45 million (11%), the Consumer group, which increased profits by (L)31 million (11%), exceptional items which increased profits by (L)162 million, and net interest income which increased profits by (L)2 million (1%). Offsetting these increases were a decrease in profits by the Building Products group of (L)20 million (9%), a decrease in profits of Associated Undertakings of (L)25 million (58%), and an increase in costs relating to central expenses (less property and other income) of (L)42 million.

Industrial Group The increase in profits of the Industrial group was attributable to increased profits from Peabody of (L)111 million (188%) and increased profits from Gold Fields Mining of (L)7 million (23%). Offsetting these increases were reduced profits reported by the Chemicals segment of (L) 51 million (27%), reduced profits by the Material Handling segment of (L)4 million (8%) and reduced profits of other Industrial operations of (L)18 million (24%).

Peabody's profits were (L)170 million for the 1991 fiscal year versus (L) 59 million for the 1990 fiscal year when Peabody was included for six months. Peabody's sales for the 1991 fiscal year were (L)1,099 million versus (L)521 million for the 1990 fiscal year. Peabody produced approximately 92 million tons of coal in the 1991 fiscal year, including 80.1 million tons of steam coal for domestic users, mainly electric utilities, and 2.6 million tons of metallurgical coal. Exports were approximately 9.0 million tons. A decentralization program at Peabody was substantially completed during the 1991 fiscal year, which provided cost savings of over $25 million per annum. Peabody's production of low sulfur coal increased during the 1991 fiscal year to 56 million tons. Tons per manshift at Peabody's mines increased overall by approximately 9%.

SCM Chemicals' profits for the 1991 fiscal year were (L)136 million versus (L)187 million for the 1990 fiscal year. SCM Chemicals' sales for the 1991 fiscal year were (L)563 million versus (L)608 million for the 1990 fiscal year. SCM Chemical's planned reduction of 43% in its installed sulfate based titanium dioxide capacity, as well as a 7.6% decrease in average prices industry-wide, reduced SCM Chemicals' profits by (L)51 million in the 1991 fiscal year to (L)136 million. The weak economies in the United States, the United Kingdom and Australia, coupled with an overall worldwide industry increase of 9% in installed capacity, added to the pressure on prices, particularly in the Pacific Rim marketplace. SCM Chemicals produced 429,100 short tons of titanium dioxide during the 1991 fiscal year versus 436,400 short tons in the 1990 fiscal year despite reducing its sulfate process capacity by approximately 64,200 short tons. This decrease in capacity, including 26,800 short tons in Stallingborough, England and 37,400 short tons in Western Australia, was attributable entirely SCM Chemicals' sulfate process capacity which produces over four times as much waste product as the chloride process. During the 1991 fiscal year, SCM Chemicals' chloride process plant in Stallingborough developed and implemented a (L)20 million water purification project relating to water discharged into the Humber River estuary. In the United States, over $29 million was spent on improvements relating to safety, air and waste water purification improvements at SCM Chemicals' four United States plants.

Grove Worldwide reported profits for the 1991 fiscal year of (L)49 million versus (L)53 million for the 1990 fiscal year. Grove's sales for the 1991 fiscal year were (L)276 million versus (L)309 million for the 1990 fiscal year. Demand for Grove's products declined with the recessionary conditions in the North American and United Kingdom construction markets, and on a worldwide basis was down an estimated 40% during the 1991 fiscal year. The United States market for cranes was down approximately 48% from the prior year, with Grove's domestic distributors achieving only a 70% overall rental utilization level. Despite this down market, Grove's aggressive marketing and selected price concessions resulted in an increase in its market share to 52% in the United States and Canada, compared to 49% in the prior year. In Europe, Grove's market share for cranes rose to 29% from 23% a year earlier. A total of 48 cranes and 9 manlift orders were received during 1991 for the rebuilding of Kuwait.

NOTES TO CONSOLIDATED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

-1. Accounting Policies-(a) Accounting convention-The financial statements have been prepared in accordance with applicable United Kingdom accounting standards, including Financial Reporting Standard 2 and 3, using the historical cost convention adjusted for revaluations of certain fixed assets.

(b) Basis of consolidation-The consolidated financial statements incorporate the financial statements of Hanson PLC (the "Company" or "Hanson") and its subsidiary undertakings (collectively, the "Group"), after elimination of material inter-company accounts and transactions.

(c) Accounting for acquisitions-The results of companies and businesses acquired during the year are dealt with in the consolidated accounts from the date acquisition (except for businesses disposed of prior to the year end). Adjustments are made to bring the accounting policies of businesses acquired into alignment with those of the group, to provide for environmental, employee liabilities and other costs and for the estimated costs of integrating businesses acquired. The costs of acquisition, including adjustments, are allocated to net tangible assets and, where appropriate, to goodwill and other intangibles. The amounts attributed to goodwill and other intangibles are written off against reserves.

(d) Associated undertakings-The results include the relevant proportion of the profit of associated undertakings (investments accounted for under the equity method) based on their latest audited financial statements. In the consolidated balance sheet the investments in associated undertakings are shown at the Group's share of underlying net assets.

(e) Sales-Sales, which includes excise duty, represents the net amount charged to customers in respect of services rendered and goods supplied.

(f) Property, plant and equipment-Fixed assets are shown at cost or valuation less depreciation. Assets acquired under finance leases are capitalized and outstanding installments are shown in creditors. No depreciation is provided on freehold land except where mineral reserves are being depleted where amortization is provided on the basis of tonnage extracted. Timberlands are included at cost and depletion is only provided to the extent that the amount of timber harvested exceeds the estimated growth of standing timber. Reforestation costs are charged to the profit and loss account as incurred. Depreciation of other fixed assets is calculated to write off their cost or valuation over their expected useful lives.

(g) Deferred taxation-Deferred taxation is provided on the liability method in respect of timing differences except where the liability is not expected to arise in the foreseeable future.

(c) 1993 Disclosure, HANSON PLC

(h) Inventories-Inventories are valued at the lower of cost, on a first in first out basis, and net realizable value. Cost includes an addition for overheads where appropriate.

(i) Research and development-Expenditure on research and development is written off in the year in which it is incurred.

(j) Exploration expenditure-Expenditures on abortive projects and general exploration are charged to the profit and loss account as incurred. Where a specific project is identified as having commercial potential, expenditures incurred on evaluating the technical feasibility and commercial viability of the project are capitalized. Costs to develop new commercial mineral and for bodies and for major development programs at existing mines are also capitalized.

(k) Foreign currencies-Balance sheets and profit and loss accounts of overseas companies are translated at rates ruling at the balance sheet date. Differences on translation arising from changes in the sterling value of overseas net assets at the beginning of the accounting year, or at the date of any later capital currency conversions, due to subsequent variations in exchange rates, are shown as a movement on the statement of retained reserves. Exchange translation on foreign currency loans which relate to investments in overseas companies is also dealt with as a movement in reserves. Other exchange differences are dealt with in the profit and loss account for the year.

(l) Cash equivalents-Cash equivalents represent investments in short term deposits and commercial paper with banks, which investments have original terms of 90 days or less, net of the amounts of Bank overdrafts.

2. Acquisitions and Disposals-During the past three calendar years Hanson made a number of acquisitions, all of which were accounted for as purchases and are included in the accompanying financial statements from their respective dates of acquisition. The following summarizes the significant acquisitions and disposals by calendar year:

1990-Sale of Gold Fields' investment in Renown Energy Limited for (L)28.4

Mineral reserves included with land, buildings and natural resources are written off as extracted. Mining assets are amortized over the life of the mine. The cost of timberlands is only reduced to the extent that the amount of timber harvested exceeds the estimated growth of standing timber. Other major items of fixed assets are written off on a straight line basis over the following periods:

8. Loans Payable

Loans payable includes bank loans, overdrafts and debenture loans which bear interest at rates ranging from 1.3% to 12.5% per annum. Outstanding current installments under financing (capital) leases totalling (L)4 and (L) 7, respectively, are included in loans payable. Included within loans payable is (L)2,120 relating to amounts borrowed using commercial paper and the balance of (L)2,024 represents bank borrowings of (L)1,881 and debenture loans of (L)143. Interest rate protection agreements have been entered into which effectively fix interest payments at an average of 4.5% on $3,975 million of floating rate debt due within one year. The Group is exposed to loss in the event of non-performance by banks under such agreements. No single bank is party to more than $500 million of such agreements and the Group does not anticipate non-performance by the counterparties. These agreements expire at various dates through September 1993. Hanson had unused lines of credit for short term borrowings of approximately (L)2.6 billion at September 30, 1992.

(b) Loans (other than the 9 1/2% convertible subordinated bonds, the 10% unsecured bonds and the 10 3/8% unsecured bonds) bear interest at rates which generally fluctuate in line with market rates. At the year end these ranged from 1.3% to 12.5% per annum.

(c) Of the secured loans totalling (L)1,487 and (L)1,134, respectively, (L)50 and (L)185, respectively, are secured on specific fixed assets and (L) 1,437 and (L)949, respectively, by floating charges on other assets.

(d) The 11% loan notes 1996 are unsecured and repayable at par by semi-annual payments from March 25, 1992 to September 25, 1996.

(e) Interest rate protection agreements have been entered into which effectively fix interest payments at an average of 6.1% on $2,040 of floating rate debt due after one year. These agreements expire at various dates through September 30, 1996.

(f) Obligations of commercial banks under standby letters of credit totalled (L)250 and (L)164, respectively.

(g) At September 30, 1992, (L)500 nominal of 9 1/2% convertible subordinated bonds due 2006 were convertible into 193,236,715 ordinary shares, at a conversion price of 258.75p per ordinary share, subject to adjustment, at any time up to January 31, 2006.

(h) Hanson and various of its subsidiary undertakings are the subject of a number of pending legal proceedings and claims incidental to present and former operations, acquisitions and disposals. The directors do not anticipate that the outcome of these proceedings and claims, either individually or in aggregate, will have a material adverse effect upon Hanson's financial position.

(i) The Group is exposed to loss in the event of non-performance by banks under agreements described in (e) above. No single bank is party to more than $200 million of such agreements and the Group does not anticipate non-performance by the counterparties.

Pensions and employee obligations and other provisions have been established principally in respect of business acquired. The provisions at September 30, 1992, include (L)991 for payments into coal industry funded trusts to meet health and welfare costs of miners who retired from the coal mining industry prior to 1976, and for miners receiving black lung benefits. These payments will be made over a period of thirty years. (L)624 has been provided at September 30, 1992 for other post retirement health and benefit costs of current and retired employees.

Provisions for the cost of the reclamation of mining properties are made on a regular basis as such properties are worked. Provisions also include (L) 120 for production based payments to be made over the next twelve years to a coal industry funded trust established for the reclamation of land mined by the industry prior to 1977.

Environmental provisions include (L)734 relating to Beazer's former United States chemical operations disposed of by Beazer prior to its acquisition by Hanson. Beazer and certain of its subsidiaries remain contractually and statutorily liable for certain environmental costs relating to these discontinued operations. These and other potential costs of environmental investigations, monitoring or remediation under United States Federal and state laws are payable over periods of up to thirty years.

The provided and full potential liabilities for deferred taxation were as follows:

17. Pension Arrangements-Hanson has several defined benefit pension plans in the United States, the United Kingdom and other foreign countries which cover the majority of employees. The benefits of these plans are based Primarily on years of credited service and final average pensionable pay as defined under the respective plan provisions.

Employee contributions, where applicable, are at rates set according to the plan rules, which vary between nil and 5% of reckonable pay.

Hanson's funding policy is:

in relation to United States plans, to contribute amounts to the plans sufficient to meet the minimum funding requirements set forth in the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, plus such additional amounts as Hanson may determine to be appropriate from time to time; in relation to United Kingdom plans, to ensure that assets are always sufficient to cover accrued service liabilities with projection of future pay increases; in relation to other overseas plans, to determine contributions in accordance with best local practice.

LEXIS·NEXIS® LEXIS·NEXIS® LEXIS·NEXIS®
Services of Mead Data Central, Inc.

Hanson also sponsors defined contribution plans and participates in several multiemployer plans, which provide defined benefits to Hanson's union employees. Contributions relating to defined contribution plans are made based upon the respective plan's provisions and contributions relating to multiemployer plans are based on negotiated collective bargaining agreements.

The assignment of the purchase price for acquired businesses to net assets recognizes a liability or asset for the difference between the projected benefit obligation as compared to plan assets as of the acquisition dates.

A summary of the components of net periodic pension cost for Hanson's defined benefit plans is as follows:

	1992	1991
Defined benefit plans:
Service cost--benefits earned during the period	59	51
Interest cost on projected benefit obligation	228	181
Actual return on plan assets	(89)	(532)
Net amortization and deferral	(241)	255
Total Pension Cost of Defined Benefit Plans	(43)	(45)
Defined contribution plans	9	7
Multiemployer plans	9	6
Total Pension Expense (Income) under U.S. GAAP	(25)	(32)
Adjustment to eliminate credit relating to exceptional past pension surpluses	52	59
Total Pension Expense under U.K. GAAP	27	27

Assumptions used in the accounting for the defined benefit plans were as follows:

	1992	1991
United States plans
Weighted-average discount rates	9.0%	9.0%
Rates of increase in compensation levels	5.5%-5.75%	5.75%
Expected long-term rates of return on assets	9.0%	9.0%
	1992	1991
United Kingdom plans
Weighted-average discount rates	9.5%	10.0%
Rates of increase in compensation levels	7.5%	7.5%
Expected long-term rates of return on assets	10.0%	10.0%

The following table sets forth the funded status and amounts recognised in the combined balance sheet at September 30, 1992, and September 30, 1991, for Hanson's defined benefit pension plans. Of the total amounts shown in the note, approximately one-quarter applies to United States defined benefit plans.

In addition, Hanson has an unfunded accumulated benefit obligation of (L)4.3 and (L)3.6 at September 30, 1992 and 1991, respectively, for prior service costs related to non-qualified plans.

The plans' assets are primarily included in the HM Holdings, Inc. Master Trust in the United States, and in the pooled funds of Imperial Investments Ltd. in the United Kingdom. These funds principally invest in listed stocks, bonds and property. Common stock of Hanson PLC within these assets comprised 3.8% of the HM Holdings Master Trust's assets and 1.5% of the Imperial pool assets by market value at September 30, 1992, and 6.7% of the HM Holdings Master trust's assets, and 1.4% of the Imperial pool assets at September 30, 1991.

Hanson provides health care and life insurance benefits to certain groups of retirees. Such costs are expensed as incurred and were not significant during 1992 or 1991.

In December 1990, the Financial Accounting Standards Board issued Statement of Financial Accounting Standards No 106, "Employers' Accounting for Post-retirement Benefits Other Than Pensions." Hanson is required to adopt the new method of accounting for post-retirement benefits other than pensions no later than fiscal 1994. Hanson has not completed the complex analysis required to estimate the impact of the new statement and it has not decided when it will implement the statement, however it believes the new statement will not have a material effect on its net worth and results of operations.

The dividends in the accounts reflect only two quarterly payments of 2.75p. Consequently the ACT included in the above tax charge is (L)88 less than if four quarterly dividends of 2.75p each were reflated in the accounts. The tax credit in respect of disposals of fixed assets investments, costs of closures and discontinued operations was (L)3 ((L)26).

21. Earnings Per Share

The calculation is based on the weighted average of 4,814 million, 4,788 million ordinary shares outstanding during the fiscal years 1992, 1991 and 1990, respectively, and profit after taxation of (L)1,089, (L)1,058 and (L) 827, respectively. Diluted earnings per share are calculated on the weighted average of 5,259 million, 5,123 million and 5,007 million ordinary shares for fiscal years 1992, 1991 and 1990, respectively, after allowing for full conversion rights attaching to convertible securities and the allotment of shares under option schemes and warrants, with a corresponding adjustment to income for interest. This calculation excluded 553 million shares in fiscal year ended 1992 relating to warrants issued on the acquisition of Consolidated Gold Fields PLC and Beazer PLC and 160 million shares in fiscal 1991 relating to the warrants issued on the acquisitions of Consolidated Gold Fields PLC as they were not dilutive.

22. Subsequent Events-In October 1992, the Accounting Standards Board published Financial Reporting Standard 3--"Reporting Financial Performance" which Hanson adopted in 1992 and consequently prior year figures have been restated to reflect these concepts and, in addition Hanson has adopted the consensus issued by the Accounting Standards Board in 1991 on the treatment of goodwill on disposals.

On October 6, 1992 Hanson announced the signing of an agreement to sell its Weber Aircraft unit to Air Cruisers, Inc., a member of Groupe Zodiac for $85 million in cash, a premium of $37 million to book value.

On October 6, 1992 Hanson announced the sale of A & S Building Systems and the Lighting Systems Division of Halkey-Roberts and the completion of the sale of Ranger Footwear. The Combined net book values were approximately $8 million and the combined sale proceeds amounted to $11 million in cash and notes.

On October 20, 1992, Peabody Resources (UK) Limited announced that it had agreed to purchase the Australian coal operations of Costain Group PLC for US$200 million and the assumption of debt approximating A$102 million as of May 31, 1992, subject to post-closing adjustment, Costain announced it had signed an agreement to sell its Australian coal mining and real estate properties to Altus Finance S.A. Peabody and Peabody Resources (UK) Limited commenced an action against Costain alleging breach of contract and seeking performance under the original contract.

On October 30, 1992, MariFarms, Inc. (a public company in which Hanson holds an indirect 46.8% interest) completed the purchase of the Scottish business and assets of Marine Harvest Limited and the shares of its two Chilean affiliates, from Unilever PLC for a purchase price of approximately $39 million. Marine Harvest and its affiliates comprise the world's largest salmon farming operation. MariFarms financed the acquisition through the private placement of $31.8 million of a new series of a sever year 10% preferred stock ("MRF Preferred Stock") to The Prudential Insurance Company of America ("Prudential") and additional bank financing from its commercial lenders. In connection with the private placement of the MRF Preferred Stock, HM Investments Ltd. ("HMI") (a wholly-owned unit of the Hanson group) , Great South Beach Improvement Company ("GSB") (a company controlled by D.H. Clarke, a Director of Hanson, and his family) and Mr. Richard O'R. Dowling ("Dowling"), respectively holding or controlling 46.8%, 14.4% and 5% of MariFarms outstanding common stock, agreed with MariFarms and Prudential that in the event MariFarms fails to redeem the MRF Preferred Stock prior to October 31, 1995, Prudential may put 85.6% of the MRF Preferred Stock to HMI and 14.4% to GSB, for its face value, plus accumulated dividends. Mr. Clarke personally guaranteed the obligations of GSB to Prudential. Mr. Dowling separately agreed that in the event Prudential exercised its put option, he will purchase 5% of the MRF Preferred Stock from HMI. As consideration for entering into these agreements, MariFarms agreed to pay HMI, GSB and Mr. Dowling an aggregate Guarantee Facility Fee of $1.1 million per annum (to be shared 80.6% by HMI, 14.4% by GSB and 5% by Dowling) for each year the put agreements remain outstanding and unexercised. MariFarms further agreed, subject to shareholder approval, that in the event the MRF Preferred Stock is purchased by HMI, GSB Mr. Dowling, that such parties shall have the right during the remaining term of the MRF Preferred Stock to exchange the MRF Preferred Stock for MariFarms common stock at a price per share equal to the greater of $2.50 per share or 80% of the market price at the time of exchange. Rothschild Inc. rendered an opinion to HMI that the terms of these transactions were fair to HMI from a financial point of view. Bear, Stearns & Co. Inc. rendered an opinion to a special committee of directors of MariFarms that the terms of these transactions were fair to the public shareholders of MariFarms from a financial point of view. Following completion of the transaction, Mr. Clarke resigned as Non-Executive Chairman of MariFarms, but will continue as a member of its Board of Directors. Mr. John A. Mistretta was appointed Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Marifarms replacing Mr. Clarke. Mr. Mistretta was previously Chairman of Hanson Industries' Recreation and Leisure Group. J. G. Raos, a director of Hanson, holds approximately 0.7$ of MariFarms' outstanding common stock.

At an Extraordinary General Meeting held on November 18, 1992, the shareholders of Hanson approved five ordinary resolutions and one special resolution which (a) increased the authorized share capital of Hanson from (L)1,650 to (L)1,850 by the creation of an additional 800 million ordinary shares of 25p each; (b) authorized the Directors to allot relevant securities up to an aggregate nominal amount of (L)396.8 until the 1994 Annual General Meeting; (c) authorized the Directors to allot equity securities for cash up to an aggregate nominal amount of (L)60.2 until the 1994 Annual General Meeting; (d) increased the maximum number of Directors to 25; (e) approved the maximum remuneration payable to Non-Executive Directors to (L).5 in the aggregate; and (f) amended the rules of the Hanson Sharesave Plan to increase the maximum monthly contribution from 150 pounds sterling to "the maximum amount permitted" from time to time by the Finance Act.

23. Companies Act 1985-These financial statements do not comprise "statutory accounts" within the meaning of section 240 of the Companies Act 1985 of Great Britain insofar as such accounts have to comply with the disclosure and other provisions of the Companies Act 1985 of Great Britain. Statutory accounts for the three years ended September 30, 1992, on which the auditors have given an unqualified audit report, have been, or will be delivered to the Registrar for Companies in England and Wales.

24. Differences between United Kingdom and United States Generally Accepted Accounting Principles-The accounting policies, under which the consolidated financial statements of Hanson are prepared, conform with U.K. GAAP, which differ in certain respects from U.S. GAAP. Differences estimated to have significant effect on consolidated net income and shareholders' equity are set out below.

Goodwill and other intangibles-Goodwill and other tangible assets arising on the acquisition of a subsidiary are written off in the year in which that subsidiary is acquired. Under U.S. GAAP such goodwill is capitalized and is amortized through the profit and loss account over its estimated useful life, not exceeding 40 years. Under U.S. and U.K. GAAP, the gain or loss on the sale of a subsidiary includes an allocation of goodwill.

Taxation-Deferred taxation is not provided where, in the opinion of the directors, no liability is likely to arise in the foreseeable future. However, under U.S. GAAP deferred taxation would be provided on a full deferral basis. U.K. GAAP permits the reduction of the tax charge by the use of tax losses available at the time of acquisition. However, U.S. GAAP requires that the benefit of such losses is adjusted through goodwill. The U.S. Financial Accounting Standards Board adopted FASB 109 in February 1992, which requires full provision for deferred taxation using the liability method and will be effective for Hanson's fiscal year ending September 30, 1994. While Hanson has not yet completed the complex calculations required under U.S. FASB 109, it believes the new statement will not have a material effect on its net worth and results of operations.

Revaluation of land and buildings-Periodically, Hanson's land and buildings are revalued on an existing use basis by professionally qualified external valuers and such assets are written up to the appraised value. Depreciation is, where applicable, calculated on these revalued amounts. When revalued properties are sold, gain or loss on sale is calculated based on revalued carrying amounts and reflected in income and any revaluation surplus thus realized is reclassified directly to retained earnings. Under U.S. GAAP such revaluations would not be reflected in financial statements and the gain or loss on sale would be calculated based on original cost less accumulated depreciation and reflected in income. The amount of additional depreciation charged in respect of the revalued properties is not material.

Timberlands-Reforestation costs are charged to the profit and loss account when incurred and depletion of timberlands is only provided to the extent that the amount of timber harvested exceeds the estimated growth of standing timber. Under U.S. GAAP depletion on a unit of production basis is charged to the profit and loss account and reforestation costs are capitalised as part of the carrying cost of timberlands.

LEXIS·NEXIS® LEXIS·NEXIS® LEXIS·NEXIS®
Services of Mead Data Central, Inc.

Foreign currencies-Revenues, expenses and assets and liabilities relating to overseas subsidiaries are translated at the year-end rate. Under U.S. GAAP assets and liabilities are translated as under U.K. GAAP; however, revenues and expenses are translated at average rates for the year.

Ordinary dividends-Final ordinary dividends are provided in the year in respect of which they are proposed on the basis of the recommendation by the directors which requires subsequent approval by the shareholders. Under U.S. GAAP dividends are not provided until formally declared.

Pension plans and other post retirement benefits-Under U.K. GAAP, the accounting policy of the group has not been to account for exceptional past pension surpluses. Under U.S. GAAP, such surpluses are recognized and credited over an appropriate future period.

Hanson provides health care and life insurance benefits to certain groups of retirees. In December 1990, the Financial Accounting Standards Board (FASB) issued Statement of Financial Accounting Standards No. 106, "Employers' Accounting for Post Retirement Benefits Other Than Pensions". Hanson is required to adopt the new method of accounting for post retirement benefits other than pensions no later than fiscal 1994. Hanson has not completed the complex analysis required to estimate the impact of the new statement and it has not decided when it will implement the statement, however it believes the new statement will not have a material effect on its net worth and results of operations.

The following is a summary of the estimated material adjustments to profit and ordinary shareholders' equity which would be required if U.S. GAAP had been applied instead of U.K. GAAP.

HEADLINE: PANAMA: FORMER PRESIDENTS IMPLICATED IN GIANT FRAUD CASE

DATELINE: PANAMA CITY, MAY 28

BODY:

A judge investigating a multi-million-dollar fraud case issued an order Tuesday prohibiting two former presidents of Panama from travelling abroad.

Judge Luis Zuniga, of the first circuit court, said former presidents Ricardo de la Espriella and Francisco Rodriguez were forbidden from leaving the country because they were implicated in the misappropriation of 6.5 Million dollars in state funds.

Furthermore, Zuniga said, an arrest warrant had been issued against de la Espriella.

However, the Panama city daily El Siglo reported Tuesday that de la Espriella had already fled the country, and was in Miami.

The travel restriction also applies to the former General Manager of the National Bank of Panama, Luis Alberto Arias.

Rodriguez became provisional president of Panama on sep. 1, 1989, And was toppled by the dec. 20, 1989, U.S. invasion which also overthrew General Manuel Antonio Noriega.

De la Espriella became president in 1982, following the resignation of President Aristides Royo.

HEADLINE: THE LOS ANGELES EARTHQUAKE;
THE SECOND TIME, SHAKING IS JUST AS SCARY

BODY:

Oscar and Maria Alicia Flores were asleep on green cots next to their two children in a shelter for those left homeless by Thursday's big temblor when the Earth shook again early Sunday.

Children screamed as tiles fell from the darkened ceiling of the Whittier Community Center's gymnasium as the aftershock hit.

Red Cross volunteers hustled 67 panicked people to an adjacent field, where they stayed while officials inspected the building.

Two men at the center suffered possible heart attacks, and a pregnant woman thought she was having a miscarriage.

Maria Alicia said she thought it was "the big one."

Oscar said he wasn't sure, but he knew he wanted to get out.

"Like all people, I have phobias," he said, "and one of them is the fear of being crushed beneath a wall."

The Floreses and the others were allowed back into the shelter about 7 a.m., where they were joined during the day by at least 60 more refugees from the aftershock.

It was the second time in four days that Whittier residents had experienced the destructive force that shattered stores, homes and other buildings.

Officials said Sunday's temblor, which measured 5.5 on the Richter scale, caused the most damage to buildings that had marginally survived Thursday's 6.1 shake.

The hard-hit Uptown Whittier business district was again closed by police shortly after the new jolt so city workers could remove debris from the sidewalks of Greenleaf Avenue and the buildings could be re-inspected. Many business owners had spent Saturday installing new glass and cleaning up, only to have to begin again on Sunday.

The Uptown area was reopened in the late afternoon.

City Manager Thomas G. Mauk said at least 50% of the buildings in the 24-block area were unsafe, and he said damage to Whittier businesses and private property could exceed $50 million to $60 million.

Residents, particularly those living in the area just north of Uptown, were back out on their front yards Sunday, checking out the damage and wondering when the shaking would stop.

Maria Celia Fuentes, 50, planned to spend Sunday night on the lawn along with the 17 members of her family who share a home on Bright Avenue, one block from Uptown.

Fuentes, 50, complained of pain in her legs as she sat on a piece of carpeting beneath a shade tree.

"It was the fear that did it," she said with certainty.

But Fuentes said she was reluctant to seek medical attention, because she knew what she would be told -- stay in bed.

"I don't want to be lying on a bed when another earthquake hits," she said. "But then, I don't feel safe anywhere."

Patricia Ruiz, who lives in the same house, said she bolted from her bed when she felt the temblor and hurdled a five-foot porch ledge to run out into the street.

A few blocks away, on Newlin Avenue, the already homeless Ana and Luis Alberto Rodriguez recalled their panic during the aftershock, which interrupted their night spent under a sheet stretched across the lawn of a relative's home.

The Rodriguezes and their three children lay petrified, clutching each other atop a blanket, as they felt the ground jolt and gradually rumble into stillness.

"I was afraid, but it's better to be outside," said Ana, adding that the family abandoned their Whittier apartment after Thursday's earthquake because they feared it was unsafe. They said they do not intend to return.

Elsewhere on Bright Avenue, Rod Rodriguez (no relation to the other family) surveyed the scene from a chair parked under his shaded front lawn. His water service was restored Saturday after being out since Thursday, and he had been looking forward to a shower and a shave Sunday morning.

"You think you've got it licked and it comes right back down around your ears," he said.

Just a few hours after Sunday morning's jolt, the streets of Whittier were clogged with traffic and curiousity seekers with cameras. Some residents, trying to rebuild their shattered homes, resented the intrusion.

"How would they feel if it was in their back yard?" one asked.

The onlookers were inspecting new damage, which included collapsed porches at some homes, and the deteriorating buildings in the business district.

At Tip Tap Siam, a Thai restaurant Uptown, the front plate glass window was smashed and owner Wasu Srivilai sat on a shaded curb across the street to keep an eye out for looters.

As she was discussing her loss, a white pickup truck pulled up and Patrick Latronica yelled out an offer to board up the window.

"How much?" she asked. "We've already had one guy come by."

"We can do it cheaper," Latronica said.

"Fifty dollars," he said, and Srivilai agreed. Latronica had already boarded up two windows by 10 a.m. and said business was good.

Officials at Presbyterian Intercommunity Hospital in Whittier reported that 50 people were treated for quake-related injuries Sunday and eight were admitted. The two heart attack victims at the community center were expected to survive; the miscarriage proved to be a "false alarm," the officials added.

The Red Cross opened a second shelter at California High School in Whittier.

"We're doing a tremendous amount of psychological counseling here," said Barbara Haller, public information officer for the shelter. "People can handle one, but they can't handle two."

HEADLINE: COLOMBIA REPORTS A SUSPENSION OF RESCUE EFFORTS

BODY:

The search for survivors in the mud-covered town of Armero was reported to have been suspended today despite reports that many people were still trapped alive there. Government officials issued conflicting statements on whether the search would be resumed.

Rafael de Zubiria, the Minister of Health, announced over nationwide radio this afternoon that Armero, which was inundated by mud four days ago when the Nevado del Ruiz volcano erupted, was being turned into a cemetery and that efforts to find trapped survivors were being abandoned.

In his announcement, the Minister of Health said ''the stench makes further work in the zone of Armero impossible.''

A Contradictory Report

But early this evening, Victor G. Ricardo, an aide to President Belisario Betancur, said in a radio interview that the Government had not suspended rescue efforts. Mr. Ricardo is the president of the national emergency committee set up to deal with the tragedy.

And a short time later, the Minister of Defense, Gen. Miguel Vega Uribe, telephoned Radio Caricol, one of Colombia's most widely heard stations to say: ''No one has thought of suspending the rescue operation. The Government is determined to continue until we are perfectly sure there are no survivors.''

In a report on casualties in the disaster, the Government said today that it believed that about 25,000 people were dead and missing, most of them dead. It said the dead included 8,000 children. 'Hear Them Crying at Night'

This morning, the handful of volunteer doctors and Red Cross workers who have been at the heart of the rescue effort closed their rudimentary aid station at Armero and were flown from the town in a United States Army helicopter.

One of the volunteers, Dr. Alejandro Jimenez, a 23-year-old Argentine bone specialist, said there were ''many, many'' people still alive at Armero.

''We hear them crying at night,'' Dr. Jimenez said as he boarded the American helicopter.

(c) [illegible]5 The New York Times, November [illegible], 1985

Dr. Jimenez said: ''We had to go. We cannot stay. We are not allowed to go on the mud anymore because they have declared it a cemetery.''

Another doctor, alluding to the increasing risk of disease, said, ''We were in danger of becoming victims ourselves if we stayed.''

The rescue workers offered no specific estimate of the number of people who might still be trapped alive. On Saturday, officials said as many as 500 people might still be alive in the mud.

At an aid station and temporary helicopter base in the town of Lerida, about eight miles south of Armero, Gen. Luis Alberto Rodriguez said, ''We are not permitting anybody to go into the area anymore.''

A fireman and a civil defense worker, who had been working as volunteers in the Armero search, said in interviews in the town of Ambalema, about 15 miles farther south and a bit to the west, that the rescue effort in the ruined town had been suspended.

Whatever the outcome, the conflicting Government statements today have delayed the already slow and ponderous rescue efforts in Armero. Medical experts here say that speed in getting to the trapped people is critical because the mud and water become extremely cold at night, increasing the possibility of death from exposure.

Another handicap for rescuers has been the effect of the sun beating down on the mud during the day. By this afternoon, many parts of the mud surface of Armero had hardened.

In visits to the devastated town over the last three days, reporters have seen few military men, policemen or other government workers trying to find survivors. Only a few helicopters were seen and many of them had civilian markings.

Volunteer workers and the general in charge of logistics for the disaster said they did not know who was in charge of the rescue operation.

The volunteer doctors and Red Cross workers at the small aid station on the edge of Armero complained bitterly that they had not been provided basic first aid supplies and also lacked blankets and clothing for survivors who were recovered muddy and cold. They also said they needed antibiotics and other medicine as well as picks and shovels.

Death of 13-Year-Old Girl

On Saturday a 13-year-old girl died of exposure after the volunteers had struggled for 60 hours to free her from a pool of muddy water up to her neck. The volunteers said they had appealed repeatedly to the Government for pumps to lower the water level in the pool. Two hours before the girl died a pump arrived, one of them said today, but it was broken. He said 18 pumps reached a nearby town four hours after her death.

In other developments today, the people in many towns on the rivers flanking the volcano reported that chaos and panic broke out late Saturday afternoon when the Minister of Communications, Nohemi Sanin, announced that there had been

Services of Mead Data Central, Inc.

(c) 1985 The New York Times, November 18, 1985

fresh activity at the volcano and directed more than 200,000 people to evacuate. A short time later an announcer on Radio Caricol exclaimed over the air: ''Escape, escape. The Government has said there has been a new eruption.''

Within two hours the Minister of Communications was back on the air to say there was no need to evacuate.

But by then thousands of people had fled to higher ground. Many in the towns of Mariquita, Guayabal and Ambalema said they returned to their homes shortly before dark when they determined that the Government announcement had been a false alarm.

In a radio interview this afternoon, Derrell G. Herd, a volcanologist who is part of a group of international experts here to study the volcano, said the eruption that destroyed Armero and damaged more than a dozen other communities was probably the first in a series of eruptions that can be expected in the coming weeks and months.

'Still in Grave Danger'

In a statement on Saturday, the national committee on the volcano disaster and the authorities of the state of Caldas on the west side of the volcano said tens of thousands of people living along seven rivers in the vicinity of the volcano were ''still in grave danger'' because of the possibility that chunks of the glacier might break loose. The officials, however, did not recommend evacuation.

Another of the volcano experts, Aroun Tassier, who is in charge of dealing with natural disasters for the French Government, told a reporter that the disaster here ''could have been avoided.''

''Twenty-one years ago,'' he said, ''we forewarned of a similar situation in Costa Rica and there was only one dead person.''

Mr. Tassier said he believed it was possible that another eruption could occur ''any day, any month, any week.''

''We cannot be tranquil,'' he said, ''because there can be another eruption like the one a few days ago.''

The Government estimated the damages in financial terms at up to $300 million and said that about 60,000 acres of farmland had been seriously damaged by the penetration of sulphuric volcanic ash. The Government said 20,000 head of cattle were killed.

The military authorities conceded earlier that they were having difficulty distributing the international aid that was pouring into Colombia.

Some Looting Reported

''You can probably say we have got much more than we can handle quickly,'' said Brig. Gen. Alberto Melendez in an interview at Colombia's Palanquero Air Force Base, where he is directing the distribution of supplies and equipment.

The mayor of the town of Villamaria, which lies west of the volcano and suffered some flooding that damaged roads and telephone communications, charged in a radio interview today that Red Cross and civil defense workers in his community lacked coordination and ''worked in opposing ways.''

Radio RCN, or National Radio Chain, reported looting in Armero today because ''of a lack of security.''

An RCN reporter said on the air from the town of Guayabal, about five miles north of Armero, that the distribution of aid and food was ''in total disorder and chaos.''

The reason, the radio said, was ''a lack of civil authorities'' at the aid center where many of the injured survivors of Armero have been being brought.

BODY:

-COLOMBIAN LEFTIST GUERRILLAS ARE GATHERING MILITARY STRENGTH AND PLAN TO SET UP A 36,000-STRONG ARMY DESPITE A TRUCE SIGNED WITH THE GOVERNMENT, A GUERRILLA DESERTER SAID TODAY.

FORMER COLOMBIAN REVOLUTIONARY ARMED FORCES (FARC) MEMBER LUIS ALBERTO RODRIGUEZ SAID ON RADIO THAT THE GROUP PLANNED TO OPEN 60 FRONTS OF 600 MEN EACH ACROSS THE COUNTRY, WITH THE AIM OF SETTING UP AN 'INDEPENDENT REPUBLIC' IN 1988.

RODRIGUEZ, A SUB-COMMANDER OF FARC'S 11TH FRONT WHO TOOK UP AN AMNESTY OFFER AFTER BEING DETAINED BY THE ARMY TWO WEEKS AGO, SAID THE REBELS WERE USING LAST YEAR'S CEASEFIRE TO GATHER STRENGTH AND PREPARE FOR A RESUMPTION OF ARMED STRUGGLE.

A DEFENCE MINISTRY SPOKESMAN DECLINED TO COMMENT ON HIS STATEMENTS BUT A MILITARY SOURCE SAID THEY MATCHED ARMY DATA.

THE FARC HAS PUBLICLY STATED ITS INTENTION TO BECOME A POLITICAL PARTY BEFORE NEXT YEAR'S GENERAL ELECTIONS.

DIPLOMATS AND OPPOSITION LEADERS HAVE SAID PEACE TALKS WITH TWO OTHER GUERRILLA GROUPS WHO SIGNED THE TRUCE WERE STALEMATED AND A RESURGENCE OF REBEL ACTIVITITY COULD NOT BE RULED OUT.

SECTION: TEXAS; Second District; Pg. 1186

LENGTH: 989 words

BODY:

The landmarks of Lone Star history are particularly thick in east Texas, where this giant state was first settled. There's still an Indian reservation in Polk County and the Big Thicket National Preserve to remind you of what this land looked like when the first Texans came through. Over near Beaumont is the site of Spindletop, the world's first gusher and the first major oil find in the state in 1901; not far away is the huge oil field that wildcatter H. L. Hunt found in 1931 and provided the foundation for his billion dollar fortune. To the uneducated eye, east Texas looks little different from the wildcat days of 50 years ago: the town squares with courthouses and churches, the stands of cheap, quick-growing pine are still there, plus the strip highway culture of the 1950s. Yet much has changed. Real incomes have tripled over 50 years, endemic diseases have been wiped out, racial segregation has been abolished and the isolation of the small town has been ended by television, the interstate highway and the regional shopping mall.

The 2d Congressional District of Texas includes all or part of 16 counties in east Texas, most of them still seemingly rural, all of them more imbued with traditional values than most parts of America these days. It includes the oil port of Orange (but not nearby Beaumont or Port Arthur), the Big Thicket and the Alabama Coushatta Indian Reservation and goes past Lufkin and Nacogodoches to Palestine. Politically, it remains one of the most Democratic parts of rural Texas, casting 354 more votes for Dukakis-Bentsen than Bush-Quayle in 1988.

Charles Wilson, the 2d District's congressman, is one of the most distinctive figures in the House -- tall, almost spectrally thin, flamboyant, pleasure-loving, always ready with a wisecrack or quip, yet also serious-minded when he wants to be and even idealistic. He is also consistently aggressive. Wilson, a graduate of the Naval Academy, served four years in the Navy then got himself elected to the legislature the year he returned to east Texas. He made a record in the Texas Senate that got him classed as a liberal -- a high-risk label in the civil rights era -- and won the House seat of a scandal-plagued conservative in the 1972 Democratic primary; a term later he shoved aside a fellow Texan for a seat on Appropriations. Always a feisty liberal on economic issues, he is a hawk on matters military. He now sits on the Defense Appropriations Subcommittee, the small and mostly hawkish panel that often has the House's final say on the defense budget.

Wilson made his mark in American, perhaps in world, history as a champion of the Afghan rebels, the man who probably more than any other member of Congress is responsible for the American aid to the mujaheddin which helped them to force the Soviets out of their country. He traveled 14 times to Afghanistan, Pakistan and South Asia in the 1980s, started sponsoring secret appropriations for the Afghans in 1982 and kept close relations with Pakistan's President Zia. In 1990, he unsuccessfully tried to get Congress to deliver aid to the current Pakistani government despite its refusal to sign the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty. Wilson also backs debt relief for Egypt because it its role in the Gulf war, and arms export controls in the Middle East -- both stands with political risks.

Wilson's high-risk politics and personality cut into his vote and provided an opening for Republican political novice Donna Peterson, a graduate of West Point, in 1990. Peterson championed Christian values, attacked Wilson for not censuring Barney Frank and capitalized on local opposition to Wilson's backing for expansion of the Big Thicket National Preserve. Wilson got local editorial endorsements, but won only 56% of the vote, a not very inspiring 6% ahead of Dukakis. He will have to watch redistricting closely and could encounter another serious challenge in 1992.

The People: Pop. 1990: 583,419; Pop. 1980: 526,772; up 10.7% 1980-1990. 81.4% White, 14.9% Black, 2.9% Other, 5.1% Hispanic origin. Voting age pop.: 429,396.

1988 Presidential Vote:	Dukakis (D)	99,074	(50%)
	Bush (R)	98,720	(50%)

CAPITALIZATION:Dividend
No interim dividend (2.2p per share) for year to 31-3-91.

Interim Results
Interim results to 30-9-90, figs in £000: Turnover 35,560 (23,838). Exceptional charge 2,500 (nil). Interest payable 3,135 (2,380). Loss before tax 5,946 (profit 679). Tax 90 (244). Minority interests credit 39 (Dr 17). Net loss 5,997 (profit 418). Extraordinary charge 638 (Cr 15). Loss per share 7.2p (profit 1.4p).
Included in loss before tax is £666,000 which represents gain from disposal of former head office and crystallises revaluation reserve in balance sheet. Exceptional item comprises a provision made against a debt due to Group on sale of Long Acre site which may prove irrevocable. Extraordinary item relates to a further loss on Group's residential portfolio. Realisation of residential properties are proceeding well.
Chairman states that in light of current economic environment, Board has not received adequate offers for any of remaining commercial properties. Timing of these sales will significantly affect results for full year. Development at Windmill Street, London W1 is only remaining incomplete development with completion due in March. A large proportion of Group's equity and borrowing are involved in this project. In meantime they are arranging sufficient bank facilities to finance completion and sale of development.

Trading companies in the main, continue to trade satisfactorily. Increased activity in French Timber Agency companies has countered effect of falling demand for timber in UK. J.C. Gilbert has reported increased profits in first half although they are anticipating a slow down in future demand. Although profitability in glass side of business has improved, a decline in profitability on paper side coupled with increased overheads has impaired performance.

HEADLINE: EGYPT: INVESTORS REACH AGREEMENT WITH CAIRO AIRPORT AUTHORITY ON BUILDING HOTEL AND GOLF COURSE

BODY:

A group of Saudi and expatriate Egyptian investors has reached an agreement with the Cairo Airport Authority about terms for building a hotel and golf course on land near the capital's airport, business observers say. The agreement is understood to involve the investors leasing the land for two 49-year periods and the airport authority taking an agreed percentage of the project's revenues. Backers of the estimated $ 300 million scheme include Saudi businessman Kamal Adham and UK-based Egyptian property investor Ashraf Marwan, observers say (MEED 5:7:91).

HEADLINE: EGYPT: ALLEGATIONS OF SUBVERSION IN THE THAWRAT MASRI TRIAL

BODY:

The tensions provoked by the trial of members of the organisation Thawrat Masri, Egypt's Revolution (Africa Analysis, passim) have sparked off a number of allegations in the Egyptian press. One of the people at the centre of the allegations is the London-based millionaire, Ashraf Marwan who is also the son-in-law of Egypt's late president Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Two weeks ago, the Egyptian daily, Al Wafd alleged that defendants in the case claimed that Marwan used to send monthly 'salaries' to each of them equal to #E300. Earlier the paper had said that Marwan - who is a friend of Lonrho's Tiny Rowland - had decided not to go to Cairo until after the court passed sentence in the case. In London, Marwan - who says 'I never reply to the Arab press' - denied all the allegations. In fact, he says he arrived in Cairo the night before Al Wafd's edition which claimed that he had decided not to go back.

Ashraf Marwan also denies that his brother-in-law, Khaled Abdel Nasser, will return to Cairo, from his Yugoslav exile, when the trial resumes later in the year. Nasser, who is one of the accused in the trial, was recently reported to have visited Saudi Arabia, the United Arab Emirates, and also Algeria, where his friends are said to have failed to persuade him to stay for security reasons. He had earlier turned down a Libyan invitation to base himself in Tripoli. Apparently, he does not want his name to be linked with that of Libya's Muammar Qaddafi.

HEADLINE: MOHAMED ABU GHAZALA (DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER, DEFENSE)

BODY:

Field Marshal Abu Ghazala's influence has been growing after a period of eclipse. He holds the posts of deputy prime minister and minister of defense and military production.

Abu Ghazala, a former defense attache to the United States who rose quickly to command the armed forces, is widely considered the second most powerful man in Egypt. He is a favorite of the West. Some, notably Mubarak's chief foreign policy adviser, Osama al-Baz, consider him too friendly to the United States. He has also been accused of taking part in dubious transactions involving procurement and transportation of American goods to Egypt. But these criticisms have been overcome by the fact that Abu Ghazala is the key representative of the army, which is an increasingly important political player. In addition, the army's quick action to suppress the police uprising of February 1986 has greatly enhanced his reputation.

Abu Ghazala displays a firmness which is often contrasted with the widespread impression that Mubarak is indecisive. Past resentment of Abu Ghazala in the armed forces has dwindled, perhaps because he has now been in power long enough to bring his own men into all the senior positions.

Abu Ghazala is unlikely to lead a coup against Mubarak; the two men need each other. However, he might increase military pressure on Mubarak for certain shifts of policy, either in regard to the economy or in attitudes toward the opposition parties. Abu Ghazala may be named vice president, which would make him the official successor to the president, but it is unlikely that he could then remain defense minister.

Mubarak may have resisted naming Abu Ghazala his vice president because the two men are very different. In addition, both the National Democratic Party leadership and the opposition want a civilian successor. (Mubarak was air force commander before Sadat named him vice president; every president of Egypt since the revolution has been a career military man.)

Abu Ghazala was asked by Mubarak to visit Washington in the fall of 1986 to present Egypt's position on the negotiations over military debt relief, and chaired the Cabinet committee that negotiated with General Motors over its new plant in Egypt.

HEADLINE: SOURCES OF POWER

BODY:

After two years of careful experimentation, during which he changed little, Hosni Mubarak embarked on a significant political opening in the May 1984 People's Assembly elections. One important reason for the change was the emergence of the New Wafd Party in late 1983. Unlike the other opposition parties, which have a narrow base among the better-educated voters, the New Wafd appeals to a broad base among the middle class and the peasants. Mubarak seemed willing to see the New Wafd emerge as a loyal opposition.

The results of the parliamentary elections, along with the weak constitutional authority of the Majlis, indicate that the transition to a democratic system will be very gradual. Mubarak seems to want to liberalize the existing system without making radical changes. He has maintained the strong executive presidency he inherited, but has tried to give the prime minister and Cabinet a greater sense of continuity by avoiding personnel shifts, although this goal was hampered when he replaced his entire Cabinet in November 1986. Mubarak has not named a vice president.

The courts show signs of opening up the field to new parties, and a Nasserist party seems inevitable. Mubarak has recently shown signs of reining in both the fundamentalists and the opposition, but has imposed no overt legal restrictions. The low election turnout for the 1984 elections and the emergence of an opposition with 58 seats in the Majlis may not seem significant, but under Sadat the opposition won few seats, and turnouts were always officially claimed to be above 90%.

When serious issues arise, such as the security-police mutiny in 1986, the opposition parties are quick to proclaim solidarity with the president, even if critical of the Cabinet. Mubarak is under increasing pressure to bring opposition figures into a Cabinet of national unity, but shows few signs of doing so.

In February 1987, Mubarak dissolved the Parliament and announced new elections for April. The new Parliament will almost certainly nominate Mubarak for another six-year term beginning in October 1987.

Egypt's military, the largest in the Arab world, continues to be a major power center. Although only one military coup has taken place in the country's modern history (in 1952), the military is large enough to control not only defense, but many other sectors of the industrial infrastructure; in addition, the military has long seen itself as the protector of the 1952 revolution.

Field Marshal Mohamed Abu Ghazala, who is a deputy prime minister as well as minister of defense and military production, is widely seen as the second most powerful man in the country. His relationship to Mubarak has long been a mixture of partnership and rivalry. Many in the army want to see Abu Ghazala named vice president.

The military has been increasingly vocal about some of the country's economic problems and is uncomfortable with some aspects of political liberalization, particularly the re-emergence of the Wafd Party, which the army sees as supportive of the pre-revolutionary regime.

After the police rioting of February 1986, the Interior Ministry was discredited, while the army and Abu Ghazala saw their prestige greatly enhanced. The military intervened quickly, cut off the areas affected, and systematically brought the uprising under control. The army then promptly returned to the barracks.

Both Nasser and Sadat encouraged a clear distinction, even rivalry, between the security forces, under the Ministry of the Interior, and the military, which was reserved for external defense. When the army was called into Cairo in 1977 during the food riots, it was purely to back up the security forces. This time, however, the army had to defeat the security forces.

The massive bureaucracy is another important source of support for the government. A legacy of the Nasser era, it guarantees a job, however, low-paying, to any university graduate. This has helped paralyze economic reform, political innovation, and the simple day-to-day operation of society, but no government is likely to risk changing the rules.

One source of power often overlooked is Egypt's powerful and independent legal establishment. Egyptian courts have alway taken their independence seriously, and the lawyers' syndicate was a constant thorn in Sadat's side, issuing critical declarations and periodically electing representatives opposed to the president's policies. Court decisions have reversed the Mubarak government's position on several issues, such as the return of the New Wafd Party. While the courts would be unlikely to reverse a fundamental policy of the government, they remain strongly independent on certain issues.

NAME: Dante Fascell

HEREIN IS UNCLASSIFIED
DATE 04-18-2011 BY 60322 UC LP/PLJ/LCW

ELECTION-YEAR: 1992

STATE: Florida

OFFICE-SOUGHT: United States House, 19th District

PARTY: Democrat

OCCUPATION: Retired from U.S. House

BIRTHDATE: March 9, 1917

SEX: Male

RACE: White

BIOGRAPHY:

Dante Fascell was born in Bridgehampton, N.Y., and resides in Miami. He received a bachelor's degree and a law degree from the University of Miami. He served in the Army, 1941-46. He worked as an attorney in Dade County and served two terms in the Florida House, 1951-55. He was elected to the U.S. House in 1954 and was re-elected to 18 consecutive terms. He decided to retire in 1992. Fascell and his wife, Jeanne-Marie, have two children.

PROFILE:

Fascell became chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee in January 1984, shortly after the death of longtime chairman Clement Zablocki. Unlike Zablocki, who was often willing to let subcommittee chairmen take the lead, Fascell held strong views on foreign affairs and was expected to try to keep a firm hold on committee matters. Representing a South Florida district that was 22 percent Hispanic, Fascell was a vocal opponent of Cuba's Fidel Castro and Nicaragua's Daniel Ortega. He supported military aid to El Salvador despite his skepticism about human rights progress there; he also supported Reagan administration plans for Radio Marti, a high-power radio beam to broadcast U.S. propaganda inside Cuba. But he also blasted U.S. support for right-wing dictators in Latin America, and was a key player in the passage of the War Powers Act. Although he was a supporter of U.S. involvement in Vietnam long after other Democrats began to express reservations, by the mid-1970s, his voting record began more to resemble those of liberal Democrats. Fascell supported a woman's right to an abortion. He supported the death penalty for those who committed murders involving continuing criminal enterprise or drug offenses. During the Cold War thaw, Fascell said, "Predictions of a large and immediate 'peace dividend' are unlikely to be realized. Truly significant reductions in defense spending are difficult to achieve in the short term." But he added that any surplus funds should go social programs which were cut back during the Reagan and Bush administrations, including education, health and research. The liberal Americans for Democratic Action gave Fascell's 1989 voting record 60 points out of 100; the American Conservative Union gave him 4 points.

PRIOR-CAMPAIGNS:

Fascell was first elected to the U.S. House in 1954, when he was unopposed in the general election. He was re-elected then by generally large margins to 17 consecutive terms. He won with 57 percent over Republican Ellis Rubin in 1972, the lowest winning margin of his career. In 1990, he defeated Republican Bob Allen with 62 percent of the vote.

STATE: Florida

PARTY: Republican

OCCUPATION: Attorney

BIRTHDATE: April 10, 1948

SEX: Male

RACE: White

BIOGRAPHY:

Ralph C. Rocheteau was born in Boston, Mass., and resides in Homestead, Fla. He was educated at the University of Massachusetts, graduating in 1975 with a bachelor's degree in political science, and at Harvard Law School, receiving a law degree in 1978. He served in the Navy Reserve, 1968-70. He worked for seven years as a patrolman for the police department in Mashpee, Mass. He was an assistant Dade County attorney for nine years. He was legal officer for the Miami airport. He ran for the U.S. House in 1988, seeking to oust Democratic Rep. Dante B. Fascell. Ralph Rocheteau and his wife have no children.

PRIOR-CAMPAIGNS:

Ralph C. Rocheteau's 1988 congressional campaign was his first bid for elective office.

NAME: William J. Flanagan

ELECTION-YEAR: 1984

STATE: Florida

PARTY: Republican

STATUS: Out

OCCUPATION: Substitute teacher

BIRTHDATE: September 27, 1949

SEX: Male

RACE: White

BIOGRAPHY:
Bill Flanagan was born in New York City and resides in Coral Gables, Fla. He earned a bachelor's degree in history from the University of Miami in 1971 and later enrolled in UM's law school but dropped out after one quarter. He worked in Dade County's school system, 1975-76, then moved to Fullerton, Calif. In 1983, he returned to suburban Miami and to the Dade County school system as a substitute teacher.

PROFILE:
Bill Flanagan, who upset a primary opponent to win the right to challenge veteran U.S. Rep. Dante Fascell, ran what local Republican officials called a non-existent campaign in 1984. He avoided media, and did little campaigning except to hand out literature at shopping centers. A red-haired, 5-foot-10 man with a thick mustache, Flanagan majored in history, was a political novice and was keenly interested in science. His platform included an appeal to abolish taxes on interest on passbook savings accounts.

PRIOR-CAMPAIGNS:
Bill Flanagan, in his first bid for political office, was defeated by incumbent Democratic Rep. Dante B. Fascell, who got 65 percent of the vote.

TELEPHONE: To reach Bill Flanagan in Coral Gables, Fla., call (305) 443-2511.

HEADLINE: THE MANUFACTURERS LIFE INSURANCE GROUP (MANULIFE) HAS ACQUIRED WESTERN TRUST AND SAVINGS HOLDINGS LTD FROM THE ROYAL BANK OF CANADA

BODY:

Announcing the acquisition, Joe Mounsey, ManuLife's vice president and general manager for the UK, said: "ManuLife is growing rapidly in the UK and this acquisition will enable us to provide new financial products as opportunities arise, particularly mortgage and loan schemes linked to our established life, pensions and unit trust products." In addition, Mr Mounsey said he anticipated Western Trust to be a profitable investment in its own right. The company was highly innovative in the provision of "own brand" products and would be encouraged to continue this. ManuLife will run the company as a separate entity with its existing management.

Western Trust and Savings has its head office in Plymouth, and 28 branches, with a total staff of around 400. It has over 100,000 account holders and mortgage lending is currently running at #6 million a week. Its total mortgage book now exceeds #400 million.

HEADLINE: FINANCIAL SERVICES; FEW CLIENTS EXPECT THEIR ACCOUNTANT TO DOUBLE UP AS THEIR BANK MANAGER. KATE BARKER TALKS TO SOMEONE WHO IS DOING JUST THAT

... few would imagine he could also act as their bank manager.

David Wright, a certified accountant with a small practice in south west England, is doing just that. He is an agent for Plymouth-based bank Western Trust and Savings, providing banking services with the aid of a computer link.

The initiative came from Western Trust, which until it was bought by Manufacturers Life Insurance company of Canada in May, was a subsidiary of the Royal Bank of Canada. The bank was trying to find further outlets for its retail banking service. ...

... more sophisticated financial advice. We see accountants as people with a high level of integrity and long-term relationships with clients. And there's a natural synergy between tax, investment and money management affairs.'

But Western Trust recognised that there had to be something in it for accountants too. Growing competition means that some small advisors are in danger of being swallowed up by larger players, so need to increase both their income and the services they can offer.

The interest in Western Trust's idea has been widespread according to Murphy -- insurance brokers, small building societies, estate agents and solicitors have applied to be agents for the bank. But one of the first pilot schemes involved Wright and started in ...

... recently that there are one million companies registered in England and Wales and I seem to act for 1% of them, which I find startling because it is only a small practice.'

Wright saw the main benefit of the Western trust scheme as an opportunity to provide a more comprehensive service to these clients. So Western Trust set him up as a pilot agent with a personal computer which has three functions.

Clients' current accounts can be maintained, there is marketing software enabling the agent to build up a database with clients' information on it and there is access to a financial services database. This means an agent has, at his fingertips, information about the costs and benefits of a wide range of financial services and not just those of Western Trust.

Wright's personal computer is set up in his Okehampton office and linked to Western Trust's mainframe in Plymouth. 'We're able to call up customers' accounts and copies of Western Trust correspondence on screen. It's as if one is sitting in Western Trust's main office,' said Wright.

LEXIS·NEXIS LEXIS·NEXIS LEXIS·NEXIS
Services of Mead Data Central, Inc.

And he believes that having people's current accounts is useful because he has a clearer picture of their financial affairs and can identify what services he can offer to them. 'It means that if there is a new product available I can isolate clients who might be interested.'

Although in becoming an agent Wright had no intention of attracting banking customers 'off the street', he says the Western Trust bank account is favourable when compared with the charges made by the major clearers. 'We're opening current accounts for businesses and individuals because it's the only genuinely free current account on the market,' he said.

Western Trust has a reputation for having more innovative lending policies than some other banks. And it is its mortgage lending approach which Wright feels is particularly helpful to his clients.

'To my knowledge Western Trust is one of the only institutions which is happy to look at non-status mortgages,' he said. 'It looks at the valuation of a property rather than the extent of one's profits. So provided I can recommend the clients, it will lend 70% of the property's value.'

Another Western Trust product which Wright believes is very useful in raising extra cash is its endowment-linked second mortgage scheme or homeowners' equity loan. 'Many people have a lot of unrealised equity in their houses. They can use the loan to re-finance their business or for whatever else they need,' he said.

But Wright is swift to emphasise that Western Trust's comparatively liberal lending regime does not mean that he can obtain loans for clients who do not measure up financially. 'Other banks want to see a track record -- including trading accounts and profit figures. Although Western Trust's loans may be more available, the last thing I want to do is to pull the wool over the lender's eyes.'

For one client in the Bristol area Wright was able to arrange a non-status ...

... at a rate of interest which he believes to be highly competitive. 'We are also able to cut the bank charges which were #4,000 a year,' he said. (Full Article: P14)

Wright and his staff spend about 5% of their time on Western Trust business. He says although the commission received on the mortgages barely covers administration time, he is keen to continue because the bank's products are so valuable to his clients.

Murphy believes that the attraction of being able to offer such services is ...

... for them to maximise the services -- the returns will come in four or five years' time.'

Wright's own marketing efforts have been more successful in encouraging existing clients to use the current account and other Western Trust services than in attracting new business. He agrees that it will take time to make small communities in Devon aware of a wide range of financial services.

Western Trust intends to provide agents with more training in marketing. It already has a team of staff who can assist agents with problems and the computer link-up means that any updates, like changes in interest rates, can be fed through to agents quickly.

But Wright says his staff are confident about talking to clients about Western Trust's products without constant recourse to the bank itself. Some of his staff have worked in banks and Wright has an affinity with banking.

He went into the National Provincial Bank straight from school and spent seven years doing ...

... said.

He left to take articles with a certified accountant in Okehampton and then set up his own practice at 30. But Wright kept up his banking contacts and it was a friend at Western Trust who told him about the scheme. 'I always had an ambition to have my own bank,' he said.

The arrangement gives Wright the best of both worlds -- while providing banking services to clients he can also work ...

... for several pension funds. 'It means I have to know the law and I pride myself on knowing which financial services are available,' he said.

Now that the pilot scheme is over, Wright remains a Western Trust agent. He did not have to pay for the computer link-up but Murphy reckons this would cost an agent about #5,000 in the initial investment and time taken to get it up and running.

Neither is ...

HEADLINE: SO FAR 1986 HAS BEEN THE YEAR IN WHICH THE FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS ATE UP THE ESTATE AGENCIES LIKE A SWARM OF LOCUSTS IN THE CORN PATCH.
BUT NOW COMES AN INSTITUTION WHICH AIMS TO REVERSE THE TREND - WESTERN TRUST AND SAVINGS HAVE PUT TOGETHER A PACKAGE AIMED AT GIVING THE ESTATE AGENT, ALONG WITH OTHER POTENTIAL OUTLETS, ACCESS TO THE FINANCIAL SERVICES MARKET WITHOUT SURRENDERING THEIR INDEPENDENCE

LEAD:

Western Trust are a retail bank, headquartered in Plymouth and currently owned by Royal Bank of Canada. They have 28 branches within an area bounded by Nottingham to Plymouth and King's Lynn to Truro. They have been writing ...

And over the past 18 months Western Trust have embarked on a new marketing policy based on working with potential major introducers of business. That means a wide range of outlets including accountants, building societies, insurance brokers and - of course - estate agents.

The operation already embraces two of the Wickes home improvement centres - in Farnborough and Wimbledon - along with two offices of West Country agents Millers.

The idea is that Western Trust link up with, rather than take over, the potential outlets for their financial services. Indeed, so far are they from taking over that they ask agents and other potential outlets to pay to have them on the premises.

But then they, in ...

They have set up Wickes Property and Financial Services as an in-store adjunct to their existing business, offering estate agency services, plus banking via Western Trust and insurance services via Sun Alliance. What is more, they have reached an arrangement with Pickfords which gives clients a discount on removal expenses.

In other words, Wickes have been able to put together a package which offers the same range of services as the major institutionally owned chains.

Bill Murphy, managing director of Western Trust, believes that other agents can follow the same road, with his own company providing the banking element, and will thus be able to retain their independence and to fight back in an increasingly competitive - one might even say predatory - market.

There is no question, says Bill Murphy, of insisting that agents, or any other professionals who join, should offer Western Trust mortgage services exclusively.

LEXIS·NEXIS LEXIS·NEXIS LEXIS·NEXIS

That, he argues, would rather defeat the object, since the idea is that the agents should be competitive and should be independent advisers offering clients a range of options.

COMMERCIAL INTERNATIONAL CORP
DISCLO COMPANY NUMBER: C520800000
TICKER SYMBOL: D.COM EXCHANGE: OTH

AUDITOR INFORMATION:
AUDITOR'S REPORT: UNQUALIFIED;EXPLANATION, GOING CONCERN

We have audited the accompanying consolidated balance sheets of Commercial International Corporation and subsidiaries as of May 31, 1992 and 1991, and the related consolidated statements of operations, shareholders' capital deficiency, and cash flows for each of the three years in the period ended May 31, 1992. Our audits also included the financial statement schedules listed in the Index at Item 14. These financial statements and financial statement schedules are the responsibility of the Company's management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on our audits.

We conducted our audits in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audits provide a reasonable basis for our opinion.

In our opinion, such consolidated financial statements present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of Commercial International Corporation and its subsidiaries as of May 31, 1990 in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles. Also, in our opinion, such 1990 financial statement schedules, when considered in relation to the basic consolidated financial statements taken as a whole, present fairly in all material respects the information set forth therein.

The accompanying 1992 and 1991 financial statements and financial statement schedules have been prepared assuming that Commercial International Corporation will continue as a going concern. As discussed in Note 1 to the financial statements, on June 4, 1992, West Coast Growers and Packers, Inc. ("West Coast"), a wholly-owned subsidiary of Commercial International Corporation, transferred substantially all of its property, plant and equipment to Rabobank Nederland in exchange for a release on the debt owed to Rabobank. As a result of the conveyance of West Coast's facilities, the Company currently has no operating facilities. It is unlikely that the Company will be able to conduct any business operations in the foreseeable future in view of the remaining indebtedness of West Coast and the Company's lack of capital and inability to raise additional capital. These matters raise substantial doubt the Company's ability to continue as going concern. The financial statements do not include any adjustments that might result from the outcome of this uncertainty.

Because of the possible material effects of the uncertainty referred to in the preceding paragraph, we are unable to express, and we do not

HEADLINE: RICE MILLER MERGING WITH HOUSTON FIRM

BYLINE: By Ann Cony, Bee Staff Writer

BODY:

Comet Rice, one of the largest players in the California rice industry, plans to merge with American Rice Inc. of Houston under a asset-purchase and refinancing deal announced Wednesday by Comet's parent, Erly Industries Inc. of Los Angeles.

Comet, which operates a mill in the Colusa County town of Maxwell, already owns 48 percent of American Rice and reportedly has been trying for at least two years to complete a merger.

Gerald D. Murphy, chairman of Erly Industries and also a director of American Rice, said consolidation of Comet and ARI would help shore up Comet's position in California and would make the merged entity one of the two largest rice-milling companies in the nation.

Announcement of the merger plan followed closely on the heels of news that American Rice's lead lender has threatened to foreclose on that firm's large and modern mill in Freeport, Texas.

According to the announcement, American Rice has received new loan commitments totaling $ 99.5 million to refinance its debts. Murphy said part of that money would be used to pay off Rabo-bank Nederland, which earlier this month filed notice that it will foreclose on ARI's mill in Freeport on March 2.

The consolidation plan calls for ARI to acquire Comet, but for Erly Industries to end up with controling interest in ARI.

Under the proposal, ARI would acquire Comet in exchange for 14 million shares of a new issue of ARI preferred stock. ARI would not acquire Comet's shares in ARI, which Comet would transfer to Erly.

Assuming the transaction is completed, Erly Industries would end up holding 80 percent of the combined voting power of ARI common and preferred stock.

However, a news release outlining the proposed deal was loaded with qualifiers and contingencies.

One industry source privately questioned whether the deal could be consummated and speculated that Comet's investment in ARI would be jeopardized if Rabobank foreclosed on the Freeport mill or if ARI filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection to forestall the foreclosure.

Comet is holding its annual meeting today in Reno.

Murphy said he was "more than confident" that the consolidation and refinancing plan would be approved by the directors of both ARI and Erly. He also characterized as secure the $ 99.9 million in new loan money.

"The money has been committed," he said, though "it won't be there until the legal work is done, probably in three weeks."

The combined sales of ARI and Comet for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1992, were approximately $ 340 million.

ARI reported earnings of $ 2.8 million on sales of $ 45.8 million in the quarter ended Dec. 31. That was up from a loss of $ 2.2 million on sales of $ 46.7 million in the same period a year earlier.

On OCT 02 1992 Angus Wyckoff, Assist to Treasurer, referred to the above figures.

----MANAGEMENT COMMENTS----

According to management, the Company's operations are financed primarily from operations together with funding provided by parent as needed.

While details were not provided, management did state that gross revenues in 1991 of approximately $203 million, increased somewhat over the prior year, due primarily to increased activities on previously awarded work and new projects.

Net earnings in 1991 increased over 1990, primarily reflecting benefits realized from cost reduction efforts and increased utilization of staff and project support facilities.

----ADDITIONAL INFORMATION----

In its 1991 Annual Report, Stone & Webstster Incorporated reported that its Stone & Webster Engineering Corporation subsidiary, in the process area, won a numer of major petrochemical and refining assignments. The Company was awarded seven major ethylene projects - five grass-roots plants and two major expansions - each incorporating proprietary Stone & Webster technology.

----ANALYST'S COMMENTS----

At Dec 31 1991, liquid assets fully cover total liabilities and together with funding available from parent as needed, appear to provide sufficient working funds as reflected by the Company's favorable posture with its vendors. Total liabilities are in line with equity.

--STONE & WEBSTER INCORPORATED (PARENT) - FINANCIAL HIGHLIGHTS--

As a matter of interest, following are highlights from the fiscal consolidated financial statement of Stone & Webster Incorporated dated Dec 31 1991: Current assets $306,264,000; total assets $602,431,000; current liabilities $119,324,000; noncurrent liabilities $88,368,000; shareholders' equity $394,739,000. Gross revenues in 1991 - $273,239,000; and net income $17,605,000.

HEADLINE: UK: INSURANCE - IDENTIFYING RISKS WORLDWIDE - ' CONTROL RISKS GROUP. '

BYLINE: By Fiona Gibson, Insurance Correspondent

LEAD:

Mention the name " Control Risks Group" within the Lloyd's market and you'll probably get the response "kidnap and ransom" (K and R). But this is only the tip of the iceberg as regards the facilities which the group has developed for clients.

Perhaps one of the reasons why the Control Risks Group is so inextricably linked with K and R in the minds of many insurance practitioners is that that iswhere its origins lie.

Initially the group was created to provide a response service to handle such situations, a facility which it ...

..... BALANCE SHEET EXPLANATIONS .....

NOTES RECEIVABLE: Is a loan from a third party due in monthly installments, and is unsecured.

OTHER ASSETS: Consist of deposits and prepaid expenses.

L.T. LIABS: Are obligations under capital lease.

..... INCOME STATEMENT EXPLANATIONS .....

OTHER INCOME: Is interest income.
OTHER EXPENSES: Consist of interest expense.

..... NET WORTH RECONCILIATION .....

On MAY 19 1992 [redacted] mgr of fin & adm, submitted the above figures.

..... ANALYST COMMENTS .....

TOTAL ASSETS TO CURRENT LIABILITIES is 1.82 to 1. The industry average is 1 to 1.

TOTAL LIABILITIES TO TANGIBLE NET WORTH is 1.07 to 1. The industry average is 1.067.

TREND ANALYSIS: Based on the decrease in sales and profits from 1990 to 1991, trend is down.

EXTERNAL FINANCING: At the time of the update, a banking relationship was unavailable.

The reason for such a sharp decline in the financial figures from 1990 to 1991 is that in 1990 the company had a product mix that included selling helicopter engine kits which they did not have in 1991 or 1989.

Request # 4652 205-WF-172964

Credit National Bank (address 2475 M St) merged with Federal City National Bank.

However, on Dun & Bradstreet search Federal Capital Bank came up with the address 2475 M St. NW. Additionally, Credit Intl Bancshares Ltd showed up with 2475 M St NW.

Search on telephone number 202-331-5600 revealed two banks, each with a different Duns #.

Duns # on Fed. City Nat'l also found.

Security Nat'l Corp. matches with search of Fed. City Nat'l and telephone number 202-331-5600.

Further research on Duns #'s can be conducted.

HOLDING: 3,180,000 (46.80%)

ABSTRACT:
On Oct. 30, 1992, the issuer acquired the business and assets of Marine Harvest Limited, Marine Harvest Chile S.A., and Marine Feed S.A. from Unilever PLC for $ 39 million. The issuer obtained the funds for its acquisition in a private placement of $ 31.83 million of its series A cumulative redeemable preferred stock to The Prudential Insurance Company of America. As an inducement for Prudential to acquire the series A shares, HMI Investments Ltd. ("Investments"), a reporting person, entered into a put and call option agreement with Prudential, Great South Beach Improvement Co.("GSB") and others on Oct. 30, 1992. The agreement provides that from and after Oct. 30, 1995, Prudential has the right and option, but not the obligation, to require Investments to purchase all, but not less than, 85.6 percent of the issuer's series A preferred shares. The exercised price of PURPOSE: Original tender offer.

ABSTRACT:
As of Oct. 18, 1991, HB Acquisitions plc ("HB"), a wholly-owned subsidiary of Hanson plc (the "Parent"), commenced an Offer to purchase all outstanding Ordinary Shares and American Depositary Shares of Beazer plc (the "Issuer") at 90p in cash plus one warrant for each Ordinary Share and UK$ 3.60 in cash plus four warrants for each American Depositary Share. The Offer is scheduled to expire on Nov. 18, 1991, unless extended. The board of directors of the Issuer considers the Offer to be in the best interests of Issuer shareholders and has unanimously recommended that shareholders accept the offer. The Offer is conditioned upon, among other things, HB having received tenders for 90 percent of the outstanding shares of the Issuer. The Offer is expected to cost the equivalent of US$ 607 million. The Offer is subject to approval of various United States and United Kingdom regulatory authorities.

HIGHLIGHT:
The world has not yet learnt how to stop dangerous technologies reaching dangerous regimes. Consider Switzerland

BODY:

SADDAM HUSSEIN'S invasion of Kuwait gave a lot of companies in Europe and America a nasty jolt. Iraq, a prodigious buyer of weapons and the technology to make them, changed overnight from favourite customer to murderous tyrant. Since the Gulf war most western countries have been quick to clean up their acts. Germany, in particular, has clamped down on sales of arms and potentially lethal technologies. Switzerland, a big supplier of dual-use technology (though not weapons), has been much slower to act.

Switzerland? Arming dictators is not part of its chocolate-box image. But Switzerland's combination of precision engineering, discreet financing and lax export controls makes it irresistible to third-world arms buyers. Of 200 foreign firms accused by the American Congress of helping to build Mr Hussein's war machine, only 11 are Swiss. But Switzerland's own Socialist Party, a member of the country's coalition government, has accused 48 Swiss companies of supplying high-tech weapons technology to Iraq.

Since the Gulf war, three firms -- Von Roll (a steel company), Eric Uldry (a metals trader) and Schaublin (which makes machine tools) have faced prosecution on charges of violating Swiss export regulations. Another of the country's metal-working companies, Schmiedemeccanica, was saved by a technically.

Eric Uldry (which acted as go-between with Baghdad) and Von Roll were nobbled after huge steel cylinders bound for Iraq were seized at Frankfurt airport in May 1990. Von Roll had told customs they were machine presses. The Swiss authorities think they were components for Mr Hussein's infamous "supergun". At both firms, employees responsible have been charged with violating the law on export of war materials.

Schaublin and Schmiedemeccanica came under suspicion after another seizure at Frankfurt airport, two months later. Schaublin was shipping out machine parts made from "maraging" steel, an exceptionally strong steel, along with advanced tools for working the parts further. Schmiedemeccanica's consignment consisted of machine parts made out of maraging steel to a design supplied by Iraq.

Both companies said the parts were nothing out of the ordinary, but the police concluded that Schmiedemeccanica's machine parts were semi-finished components of a gas centrifuge, which Iraq planned to use to enrich uranium for an atomic bomb. Schaublin's consignment consisted of machine tools accompanied by computer programs which Iraqi engineers would need to finish the parts supplied by Schmiedemeccanica.

LEXIS·NEXIS® LEXIS·NEXIS® LEXIS·NEXIS®
Services of Mead Data Central, Inc.

Schmiedemeccanica escaped prosecution through a technicality. Its semi-finished parts did not quite match the minimum rupture strength stipulated in Swiss regulations. But they would have done so if there had not been a mistake in the German translation used by Swiss legislators of the English text of a list compiled by the Zangger committee on nuclear technology, of which Switzerland is a member. The translation has now been put right.

The Swiss government admits that its present rules are inadequate. A 19-year-old law requires companies to apply for licences to export "war materials", but does not cover dual-use technologies with both military and civilian applications. In 1987 the Swiss Military Department introduced export-licensing rules for certain chemicals that could be used to make chemical weapons. But some chemicals that can be used as precursors in the making of chemical weapons are not on the list. Agents for biological weapons, missile parts and arms-making equipment are not covered at all. Nor are blueprints, plants and technical drawings.

No effort has been made to prevent Swiss companies acting as arms-technology middlemen. Consen, part of Ifat Corporation, a little-known group of companies originally set up by ex-employees of Germany's Messerschmitt-Bolkow-Blohm, sold Iraq missile technology based on MBB's work on the Condor 2 missile for Argentina. Ifat later bought from America's Honeywell a 300-page technical report on fuel-air explosives (giant bombs which create a cloud of explosive gas and then detonate it) and passed it on to Iraq. Ifat and Consen are now both in liquidation.

Other firms have, quite legally, exported to Iraq machinery which could be used for weapons production. With no legal basis for a prosecution, in 1989 Swiss authorities barred Chemap, a supplier of chemical and microbiological equipment, from delivering a fermentation plant to Iraq that could in theory produce biological-warfare agents. The firm had delivered a similar plant in 1979, though it claimed that an on-site check in 1988 had shown it to be producing yeast.

The Swiss say they are mending their ways. Early last year, prompted partly by the scandal surrounding German sales of equipment for a Libyan chemical-weapons plant, the government began to draw up new regulations. These would require authorisations for "dual-use" equipment, parts and production facilities for weapons and missiles, precursors for chemical and biological weapons, and blueprints, licensing contracts and technology transfer in the high-tech weapons area. The new rules should come into effect by decree at the beginning of next year, followed some time later by a law.

However, officials have not yet decided whether to try to control the activities of Swiss companies that act as arms middlemen, and they can do nothing about circumvention of the rules by foreign-based subsidiaries of Swiss companies. The Socialist Party has claimed that Iraq obtained missile-guidance systems manufactured by Oerlikon-Contraves, a Swiss company, through the company's Italian affiliate via Brazil. Critics say the new rules will be inadequate in other ways too. For one thing they will continue to distinguish between regimes deemed "sensitive" and other countries. That leaves plenty of room for artful cheating. The only answer to that may be a complete ban on arms exports, which is what the Socialist Party is seeking.

US customs tell of seizures of American exports to Iraq

BYLINE: ALAN FRIEDMAN, NEW YORK

BODY:

US customs officials have made more than 70 seizures of equipment being exported to Iraq - including jet aviation fuel and aircraft parts - since the August invasion of Kuwait.

The disclosure was made yesterday by Mr Jack Kelley, director of the US Customs Service's Office of Strategic Investigations, in testimony before a Congressional committee. Mr Kelley said that the latest seizure - of industrial moulds used in making mortar fuses - occurred this week. Mr Kelley did not disclose the names of US companies implicated.

Separately, the customs official revealed that as of February 11, 1991 there were at least 20 ongoing investigations of US shipments to Iraq and Iraqi-controlled US companies involved in Baghdad's attempts to obtain missile technology, radar systems, missile systems, chemical warfare materials, gas masks and other items.

Yesterday's Congressional hearing on Iraq's efforts to acquire US technology also heard that Honeywell, the US electronics and defence avionics group, had in 1984 sold a fuel air explosive study to IFAT, a Swiss contractor that was supplying technology to the Condor-2 ballistic missile project, an Iraqi-led joint venture with Egypt and Argentina. Fuel air explosives are especially lethal weapons that carry five times the impact of a conventional bomb.

IFAT and other parts of the Swiss network, known as the Consen group, were financed in part by the Atlanta, Georgia branch of the Banca Nazionale del Lavoro (BNL), the Italian bank at the centre of a scandal over Dollars 3bn of improper Iraqi loans. Mr Kelley told the Congressional inquiry that indictments in the BNL case would be coming 'very shortly.'

The customs official said the value of the 70 US seizures since last summer was Dollars 9.9m. It is believed that some of the intended exports were to have been trans-shipped to Iraq by way of Jordan.

The Congressional committee disclosed a letter from Honeywell dated February 14, 1991 that said it had investigated the sale of the fuel air explosive study to Switzerland and found that the sale had 'bypassed standard company practice'. Honeywell said the value of the sale was 'less than Dollars 200,000.'

Honeywell claimed yesterday that the fuel air explosive study 'consisted of previously published information that was of little practical military value and could not have been of use to Iraq.' The company insisted it had not sold any actual fuel air explosive or other military technology to Iraq.

Mrs Cardis Collins, the member of Congress who chaired yesterday's hearing of a House of Representatives Commerce and Energy subcommittee, said that Iraqi agents had managed for years to obtain the latest in conventional and unconventional weapons from the West, including the US, which had 'either sold the technology to Iraq or allowed them to steal it'. She said that beyond the desert battlefield it it would now be necessary 'to block Iraq's access to the weapons and technology that have allowed Iraq to threaten and terrorise the world'.

In 1984, in the middle of the Iran-Iraq war, a physicist at the defense giant Honeywell in Minneapolis got what he considered a troublesome request.

It was a contract for Egypt, through a Swiss company called IFAT, to produce a report on a deadly weapon called Fuel Air Explosive (FAE). The bomb produces an intense explosion of rapidly dispersing gas over a wide area. Used by the United States in Vietnam, it is designed to kill humans, destroy ''soft'' targets such as mines or bunkers, and clear vegetation for landing zones.

Retired Honeywell physicist Louis Lavoie said in a recent interview that he warned Honeywell executives against the project, but that he was ordered to do it anyway. He said he purposely watered it down, fearing the consequences of transferring FAE technology to anywhere in the volatile Middle East. Later, he would learn that the paper may have ended up in the hands of the Iraqis.

On Friday, Honeywell said that an outside investigation revealed that there was ''no evidence of any sale or transfer of Honeywell technology to Iraq,'' but that the approval of the report for Egypt ''bypassed standard company practice'' because it wasn't expressly approved by company executives.

The report, by the Washington, D.C., firm Covington and Burling, said the information eventually given to the Egyptians was so watered down ''it could not have made any material contribution to the Iraqi FAE capability.''

Honeywell-FAE case illustrates how U.S. technology played a major role in Saddam Hussein's military buildup of conventional, chemical and biological weapons. And it shows how the U.S. government's control of such products is often subject to fiercely competing interests in the departments of Commerce, State and Defense.

Kenneth Timmerman, an investigative journalist who specializes in Middle East arms sales, calls some of the U.S. approved-exports ''egregious violations of common sense.''

Trade experts say the United States tilted toward Iraq during its war with Iran because of fallout from the Iranian hostage incident from 1979-81 and because of fears that Iran would dominate the Middle East if it won the war.

LEXIS·NEXIS LEXIS·NEXIS LEXIS·NEXIS
Services of Mead Data Central, Inc.

''What makes less sense is why they continued to lean toward Iraq after the end of the war,'' said Timmerman, who has written two reports on the Iraqi war connection for the Simon Wiesenthal Center in Los Angeles. ''There was no reason to do so, and that seems to me like a pure Commerce Department blunder.''

Former Pentagon and Commerce Department officials blame each other.

Stephen Bryen, a former deputy assistant secretary of defense for export control, has said that a number of sales were made against the Pentagon's recommendation, including a computer for Iraq's notorious Saad 16 military research facility, reportedly one of the first targets of U.S. bombers.

But Paul Freedenberg, a former undersecretary for commerce for export administration, said the computer was not as powerful nor threatening as is being depicted. He said that commerce was merely fulfilling former President Ronald Reagan's wishes, and that the U.S. intelligence community failed to judge Saddam's intentions.

''The President, Ronald Reagan, said we should have normal trade,'' said Freedenberg. ''If you do not like the policy you convince the president or the head of the NSC (National Security Council) ... or the secretary of state that we should change our policy. We had a normal trade policy with Iraq. Obviously, it was not a great idea in retrospect, but that was the policy at the time.''

He added: ''I think we needed better intelligence. Obviously, we did not know much about the intentions or capabilities of Saddam Hussein.''

Secretary of State James Baker told the House Foreign Affairs Committee earlier this month: ''In hindsight, I think we'd have done things differently.''

Current Commerce Department officials are closely guarding a list of an estimated $ 1.5 billion in export licenses issued since the early 1980s. Critics who have seen the list say many are dubious sales, including computers for Iraq's nuclear research agency, and know-how or materials to produce chemical or biological agents.

Lavoie, who also analyzed weapons threats for Honeywell, said he believed his FAE report was approved ''somewhere on the vice presidential level'' at Honeywell.

''But when we got the go-ahead to do it,'' Lavoie said, ''we decided we would make it as innocuous as possible. We would not include any classified information, nor any proprietary information, nor would we be terribly original.

''The nominal end user was Egypt. Although Egypt is and was our ally, we nonetheless had a feeling that contributing this technology to any Middle Eastern country was unwise. We didn't have any sense it was illegal, but it seemed unwise.''

In 1982, more than a year after Saddam began his war with Iran, the United States dropped Iraq from its list of terrorist-supporting countries. But it still banned exports of any material that could have been used for nuclear weapons development or that risked diversion to the Soviet Union, China or the Eastern Bloc.

LEXIS·NEXIS LEXIS·NEXIS LEXIS·NEXIS
Services of Mead Data Central, Inc.

Meanwhile, there was a continuing debate in the U.S. government over licensing sales of ''dual use'' products to Iraq. Computers, for instance, can both help steer ballistic missiles or enhance medical research. A high-temperature furnace made by a New Jersey company, halted by President Bush last year, was requested by Iraq to make artificial limbs. But U.S. security experts said it also could be used to make atomic weapons.

In April 1987, the U.S. banned exports to Iraq that could be used to produce ballistic missiles. In February 1989, further restrictions were put on chemical and biological agents.

But critics say much of the damage had been done by then. Timmerman said there was ''great consternation'' in the State Department late in the Iran- Iraq war that the United States had already done too much for Saddam.

''They even foresaw that this could jeopardize Iraqi-U.S. relations,'' he said. But it was not widely known because ''these are not the kind of people who go public.''

Despite increasing pressure from Congress, the Commerce Department refuses to talk about Iraqi export licenses, claiming that any disclosure would violate a law protecting exporters' business secrets.

But details on a number of sales, which critics charge could have military uses, have trickled out in recent months. According to the Wisconsin Project on Nuclear Arms Control, an advocacy organization based here, Honeywell in 1988 also sold a $ 350,000 computer to the Iraqi Ministry of Industry and Minerals that could have military applications.

Honeywell spokeswoman Susan Eich said the computer was designed to control building temperatures and was sold to the Iraqi Ministry of Industry and Materials through a French company.

''We are talking about an air-conditioning system for a building,'' Eich said.

In one report for the Simon Wiesenthal Center, Timmerman does not name any U.S. companies, but said the Commerce Department approved several exports that eventually went directly to the Saad 16 weapons laboratory.

They included, according to Timmerman:

- A July 5, 1985, application to export electronic equipment to Saad 16, including osciloscopes and spectrum analyzers used in chemical research. It was approved ''without condition'' by Commerce, he said.

- A June 3, 1987, application, approved without condition, to ship a computer to Saad 16 ''for process control and data evaluation.''

The U.S.-Iraqi connection pales in comparison to German companies' roles in building Saddam's military machine.

Republican staff members at the Senate Foreign Relations Committee are keeping track of what they call ''Saddam's foreign legion.'' Their latest report identified 110 German firms, and 22 American companies.

LEXIS·NEXIS® LEXIS·NEXIS® LEXIS·NEXIS®
Services of Mead Data Central, Inc.

The German companies not only helped Iraq build chemical laboratories and plants, but German scientists working in Iraq produced the Zyklon B gas, the same chemical agent used in the Nazi death camps in World War II, according to a report last week by the Simon Wiesenthal Center.

''There is no U.S. company that has done something quite as obnoxious as that,'' Timmerman said. ''However, we have come pretty close with some of the equipment we have delivered to their Saad 16 plant.''

The United States and several other leading allies belong to an international consortium that tries to cut off sales of weapons to unscrupulous regimes. But defining such equipment, and policing such emerging world suppliers as Singapore or Korea not in the consortium, has proved to be nearly impossible. And the pressure to reduce the U.S. trade deficit constantly runs up against the pressure to control arms proliferation.

A former high-ranking Commerce Department official, who requested anonymity, said that during much of the Reagan administration, ''Defense under (former assistant secretary Richard) Perle were real cold warriors. Commerce is on the entrepreneurial side. State is in between.

''Commerce would say, why are you telling ABC-USA it can't send a computer chip when all the customer has to do is bug on down to Taiwan or Germany or Switzerland and get it?''

Mike Saba, who produces trade fairs for American businesses in the Middle East, said the exporters he dealt with were overwhelmingly legitimate: bottling plants, thermostat manufacturers, automakers. Saba, from Champaign, Ill., who was in Iraq the day it invaded Kuwait, said U.S. companies liked doing business in Iraq and saw it as a growing market.

''So many of the leading Iraqi businessmen were educated in the states prior to '67 (when diplomatic relations were cut off) and know the states well,'' Saba said. ''That still exists. You still have a business community of that cut.''

Saba said he recently received a call from an American who had done business in Iraq that illustrates the dilemma of defining war materials. The man's company had built cement plants and dams in Iraq, and he was wondering if his work had been the target of U.S. bombers.

''Was that dam supplying power for a military base somewhere along the line,'' Saba said. ''How should that guy know?''

HEADLINE: Argentina offers to work with U.S. on space project

BYLINE: BY ANNE H. HARRISON

KEYWORD: ARGENTINA-CONDOR

BODY:

Argentina has offered to scrap an Iraqi-funded missile project and use the technology to develop a joint space project with the United States, the foreign minister said Thursday.

Argentine Foreign Minister Guido Di Tella, formerly ambassador to Washington, told a news conference that he made the offer about a possible joint space project in meetings earlier this week with U.S. Secretary of State James Baker and Vice President Dan Quayle.

Di Tella announced that the controversial Condor II guided missile project, once funded by Iraq as it searched for a projectile more accurate than the Soviet Scud, has been ''discontinued.''

''What we are interested in is the possibility of using a stock of technology already developed in the (Condor II) project in another project that uses these same resources,'' the minister said.

The proposed U.S.-Argentine project, which Di Tella said Baker has agreed to consider, ''could be very different (than the Condor missile project), but it is a way for us to take advantage of what we have done. ''

Di Tella's predecessor, Domingo Cavallo, said in late January the Iraqi government had financed most of the Condor project, which was aimed at developing a missile with a longer and more-precise range than the Scud.

Cavallo said in a public letter that former President Raul Alfonsin signed ''secret decrees'' that ''transferred missile technology to Iraq, the country that was the true origin of funds financing the Condor II project.''

The project began in the late 1970s during a decade of Argentine military rule with a partnership between the Argentine government, the German company Messerschmitt-Bolkow-Blohm and the Egyptian firm Ifat Corporation Ltd.

The missile was to carry a load of conventional, chemical or nuclear weapons to targets as far as 600 miles away with more precision than Scuds and sell for $3.2 million.

The United States had urged the Argentine government to drop the Condor II missile project before the crisis began in the Persian Gulf.

President Bush reportedly told Argentine President Carlos Menem in Costa Rica in 1989 that the missile was ''going to fall in the hands of a dangerous madman like Saddam Hussein.''

The Argentine government said it suspended the project last July.

Argentina is the only Latin American country participating in the allied forces in the gulf against Iraq. Its two navy corvettes are to be used as support vessels to the allied fleet but are forbidden by the Argentine congress from initiating combat.

HEADLINE: When Friends Become Enemies;
Honeywell's weapons aid to Iraq now perils U.S.

BYLINE: By Douglas Frantz. LOS ANGELES TIMES

DATELINE: Washington

KEYWORD: HONEYWELL; NUCLEAR; WEAPONS; TECHNOLOGY; IRAQ; WAR; QUOTE; LOUIS LAVOLE; LAW; PROPOSED; RESTRICTION; JOHN MCCAIN

BODY:

If U.S. troops go to war against Iraq, the deadliest weapon unleashed on them by Saddam Hussein's forces could be stamped "Made in America."

Over the objections of its own engineers, Honeywell Inc. provided Iraqi agents with technology for developing fuel-air explosives, devices 10 times more powerful than conventional weapons and considered by some experts to be "a poor man's nuclear weapons."

Along with design data for a missile warhead armed with fuel-air explosives, the 300-page Honeywell study obtained by Iraq described ways to inflict the maximum damage and listed the most vulnerable targets - personnel, air bases, planes, naval ports, oil refineries and ships.

The story of the role played in Iraq's development of these weapons by Honeywell, one of America's biggest defense companies, illustrates what critics see as both the laxity of U.S. export controls and the peril facing U.S. troops as a result of the United States' quiet aid to Iraq during its eight-year war with Iran.

The case also shows how, with such technology transfers perfectly legal and tacitly encouraged by the Reagan and Bush administrations, executives and engineers at private companies were left to use their own judgment about the proliferation of U.S. weapons technology in volatile regions such as the Middle East.

"We have made the mistake for all too long of considering some nations friends and others enemies, and we eventually find out that, in some cases, our friend is really our enemy," said Sen. John McCain (R-Ariz.), who has proposed legislation to toughen U.S. laws restricting the spread of weapons technology.

The Honeywell physicist who compiled the fuel-air explosive study in 1984 said that it was sold to an intermediary for Iraq over strong objections from company insiders, an assertion supported by internal Honeywell memos. He said that he omitted some potent data because he and others were worried about introducing the weapon into the Middle East.

"That it could be aimed at our soldiers is my worst nightmare come true," said Louis Lavoie, who retired from Honeywell five months ago.

Honeywell, which designed fuel-air explosive bombs for the U.S. military, sold the study to a Swiss company acting for Iraq and Egypt, according to company documents and military and congressional sources.

At the request of five senators, the Pentagon is investigating the use of U.S. technology in Iraq's development of fuel-air explosives and other weapons. Honeywell representatives have met with investigators, but the Department of Defense said that it is not specifically investigating the company.

Honeywell hired a law firm to conduct its own inquiry into whether the technology was transferred improperly. The Minneapolis company's chairman, James Renier, said information that Honeywell's technology was provided to Iraq, first reported by NBC News, was "very disturbing."

A Honeywell spokeswoman, Susan M. Eich, said that the design data obtained by Iraq appears to consist of unclassified material that was already available. She said that the company does not believe that the information was sufficient to build a fuel-air explosive weapon, known as FAE.

Yet a copy of the 1984 Honeywell FAE study obtained by the Los Angeles Times says that the "little information available" was combined with "our own expertise in this area" to develop data for an FAE warhead for a missile.

A preliminary Pentagon review determined that no laws were violated because the Honeywell material was not classified or restricted under export laws. Rather, in obtaining the Honeywell data, Iraq appears to have exploited regulations - something it did in more than a dozen Western countries as part of its billion-dollar campaign to develop weapons of mass destruction.

Two Iraqi efforts to buy FAE bombs from U.S. military surplus and from an American arms company were blocked by the U.S. government because the actual devices were subject to strict export controls as "significant military weapons." Instead of the bombs, Iraq bought the technology to develop its own FAEs.

With U.S. troops now facing the results of this policy, Congress has tried to tighten restrictions. But last month, President George Bush vetoed export-control legislation that would have imposed mandatory trade sanctions on nations that use chemical weapons.

The FAE device involves two precisely timed detonations. The bomb contains fuel, usually propane or ethylene oxide, in one or more separate canisters. An initial explosion disperses the fuel over the target, resulting in a massive cloud of gas and air. The second detonation ignites the mixture, creating a huge fireball and a powerful shock wave.

Publicly, the Pentagon has played down the threat from the FAEs in Iraq's arsenal, saying that they do not shift the strategic balance in a potential conflict.

Iraq's attempts to obtain FAEs date back to at least 1984, when the country was locked in its fierce war with Iran.

In mid-1984, Keith G. Smith, a British consultant to Honeywell who also worked for a Swiss company called IFAT Corp., approached Honeywell's aerospace and defense subsidiary in Bracknell, England, about obtaining technology for an FAE warhead.

The request to compile a study detailing how to build and use an FAE warhead was relayed to Minneapolis and eventually passed on to engineers and physicists within the aerospace and defense group.

At the time, employees at the lower levels were told that the data that was to be compiled on designing an FAE warhead would go to Egypt through a Swiss company, according to Lavoie, the retired Honeywell physicist.

The assignment alarmed some employees because Honeywell's weapons work was done solely for the U.S. government or for foreign governments working through U.S. authorities, Lavoie said.

"It occurred to us that this might really be going to Iraq or Iran," Lavoie said. "Quite candidly, we felt that it was bad enough that it was going to Egypt. Anything of that nature going to that part of the world is dangerous."

Lavoie's supervisor, John Beckmann, objected in a memo to his boss which said, "The proposition . . . has a malodorous quality about it, [is] immoral, violates Honeywell principles and is not in the best interests of Honeywell."

According to Lavoie, the complaints went up through three levels within Honeywell before the project was approved by "someone on Mahogany Row," a reference to the company's corporate executives. He said that he doesn't know which executive actually approved the project. "Someone up the chain at Honeywell said it was OK to do, and that's the point where everything becomes a mystery," he said.

Eich, the Honeywell spokeswoman, said that the outside lawyers are examining documents and interviewing current and former employees to determine how the project was approved.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION:

... Corporation's consolidated financial position.

As previously disclosed, during 1990, as the result of a Commercial Titan III malfunction, an INTELSAT VI communications satellite was not placed in its specified orbit. Following the launch, the Corporation filed a legal action seeking a declaratory order that the customer, International Telecommunications Satellite Organization (INTELSAT) , is not, under the contract, entitled to any compensatory remedy. INTELSAT filed an Answer and Counterclaim seeking compensatory damages related to the alleged loss of its satellite. During 1991, all of INTELSAT's claims were dismissed by the court. However, in 1992, INTELSAT filed an appeal for reversal with the Appeals Court, which affirmed part of the lower court's dismissal but reversed the dismissal of INTELSAT's counterclaims related to breach of contract and gross negligence. Subsequently, the Corporation has petitioned the Appeals Court for a rehearing in connection with the reversal of its dismissal of these counterclaims. The Appeals Court has since contacted INTELSAT's counsel and requested comment on the Corporation's petition. Management believes the Corporation has solid defenses against the claims of the appeal and will ...

INTELSAT

Despite the high cost of satellite launching, the movement towards the use of this system grew rapidly under the coordination of the International Telecommunication Satellite Consortium (Intelsat) as the demand for international telephone circuits grew rapidly.

With the placing of synchronous satellites in particular positions above the earth's surface, additional communications with most parts of the world have been achieved. Over 100 countries are now members of Intelsat which has about 14 satellites transmitting to around 200 earth stations with over 250 antennae. Differing Intelsat satellites in use have between 4,000 speech circuits and 2 television channels in the type IV to the latest type ...

DATELINE: ANN ARBOR, Mich.

BODY:

Patrick B. Long, chairman and chief executive officer of KMS Industries Inc. (NASDAQ: KMSI) Monday announced operating results for the quarter and year ended Dec. 31, 1991.

KMS Industries reported a net loss of 1991 of $2,373,000 (96 cents per share) on operating revenues of $16,710,000. This is compared to net earnings of $750,000 (30 cents per share) on operating revenues of $29,054,000 in 1990.

For the three months ended Dec. 31, 1991, the company had a net loss of $198,000 on operating revenues of $4,480,000. This compares to net income of $115,000 on operating revenues of $7,043,000 for the same period a year ago.

Operating revenues for the year ended Dec. 31, 1991, decreased primarily as a result of reduced activity on the inertial confinement fusion (ICF) contract with the Department of Energy (DOE). Also contributing to the reduction in revenue was a combination of reduced overall market demand for rugged computer products due to budget restrictions placed on the defense industry and the temporary interruption of manufacturing operations due to a fire the company experienced in July 1991. Losses resulted from lower operating margins and the company's inability to reduce other expenses at an appropriate rate to match reduced revenues.

As part of an on-going contractual dispute with DOE, the company has been served with a complaint, filed by the government in the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Michigan, asking for a court Order compelling the company to deliver some of the government-owned property currently in its possession. The company intends to vigorously defend this action.

BODY:

KMS Industries Inc said it was served with a complaint filed by the government as part of an ongoing contract dispute with the Department of Energy.

The suit seeks a court order forcing the company to deliver some government-owned property currently in its possession, KMS said in a statement.

KMS said it intends vigorously to defend this action.

KMS had been working for several years with the DOE on an inertial confinement fusion contract to develop a process to produce an alternate source of energy.

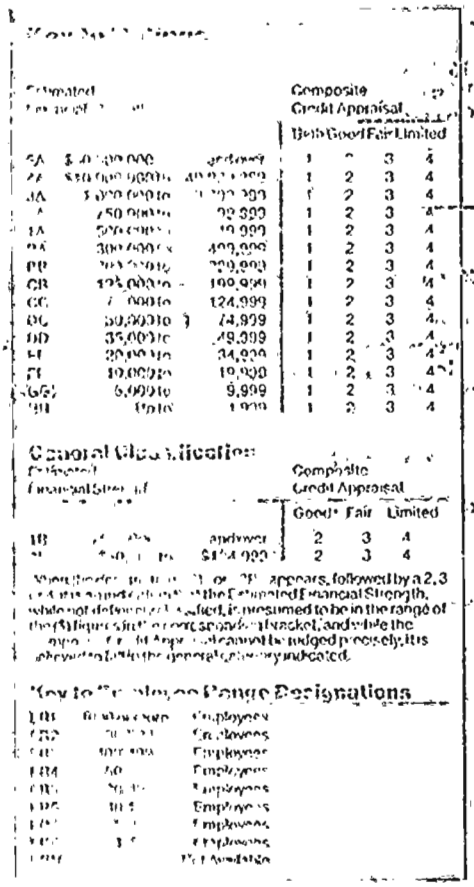
Business Information Report Glossary of Terms

Rating:

One of three designations is displayed:

1. Capital and Credit Rating—an overall appraisal of a firm's financial strength and credit worthiness, as determined by a D&B Analyst. Financial strength is based on tangible net worth. Credit worthiness is a composite evaluation of several factors, including payment performance, management experience, financial condition and banking record (see Rating Key below).
2. Employee Range (ER) designation—a designation based on number of employees, which is provided for certain lines of business for which D&B does not provide a Capital and Credit Rating (e.g., banks, insurance companies, hospitals).
3. -- (Dash symbol)—used when the information available to D&B either does not permit the classification of the firm within a condensed rating key or is insufficient to assign a Capital and Credit Rating. The presence of a -- does not mean that credit should be denied but, depending on the circumstances including the amount of credit requested, may suggest that further information be requested from this and other business and/or the credit applicant.



How to Read Ratings

Estimated Financial Strength		Composite Credit Appraisal
		High	Good	Fair	Limited
5A	$ 50,000,000 and over	1	2	3	4
4A	$ 10,000,000 to $ 49,999,999	1	2	3	4
3A	$ 1,000,000 to $ 9,999,999	1	2	3	4
2A	$ 750,000 to $ 999,999	1	2	3	4
1A	$ 500,000 to $ 749,999	1	2	3	4
BA	$ 300,000 to $ 499,999	1	2	3	4
BB	$ 200,000 to $ 299,999	1	2	3	4
CB	$ 125,000 to $ 199,999	1	2	3	4
CC	$ 75,000 to $ 124,999	1	2	3	4
DC	$ 50,000 to $ 74,999	1	2	3	4
DD	$ 35,000 to $ 49,999	1	2	3	4
EE	$ 20,000 to $ 34,999	1	2	3	4
FF	$ 10,000 to $ 19,999	1	2	3	4
GG	$ 5,000 to $ 9,999	1	2	3	4
HH	Under $ 5,000	1	2	3	4

General Classification:

Estimated Financial Strength		Composite Credit Appraisal
		Good	Fair	Limited
1R	$ 125,000 and over	2	3	4
2R	$ 50,000 to $124,999	2	3	4

When the designation 1R or 2R appears, followed by a 2, 3 or 4 in the Composite Credit Appraisal, while not definitely verified, is presumed to be in the range of the $ figures shown in the bracket, and while the appraisal of the Applicant cannot be judged precisely, its above to below the general category indicated.

Payments:

Payments Reported—the date the payment status is entered or updated from information provided to D&B by the firm's creditor.

Paying Record—shows how the firm paid a particular creditor during a 12 month period prior to the information being reported to D&B. The following manners of payment may appear in this section:

Antic—means the firm anticipates or makes payments prior to the date of invoice.
Disc—means the firm pays invoices on time to take advantage of discounts for early payment.
Ppt—means the firm pays promptly according to terms.
Slow—means the firm pays beyond terms. Slow xxx days reflects the number of days beyond terms invoices were paid.
Ppt-Slow—means the firm's manner of payment varies. Some invoices are paid on time while others are paid beyond terms.
Placed for Collection—means the account has been turned over to a third party for collection.
(#)—appears when a creditor has provided a trade experience without a manner of payment. The number represents the position of the experience in the Payments Reported section of the report (e.g., (4) means the 4th listed experience).

Amounts—paid accounts are shown with a zero balance. The absence of a dollar amount or a zero indicates the creditor did not provide a High Credit, Now Owes and/or Past Due amount.

High Credit—highest amount of credit provided to the firm by this creditor during the previous 12 months.

Past Due—amount under "Now Owes" which is overdue.

Selling Terms—credit terms provided to this firm by the creditor (e.g., N30 or Net 30 means full payment is due within 30 days. 2/10 N30 means a 2% discount may be deducted from an invoice if it is paid within 10 days; otherwise payment in full is due within 30 days).

Last Sale Within—number of months since last sale.

The information shown may not represent the full extent of the firm's trade relationships.

Special Events:

Highlights significant activities or changes in the business. May include bankruptcy details; changes in ownership, officers, partners or business location; fire or other disaster details; interim financial results, and other major events.

Update:

Reflects new or revised information obtained since the last time the report was fully revised.

Finance:

Contains financial data from audited or unaudited accountants' figures, from unaudited figures prepared from the books of management or from management's estimates of assets, liabilities, sales and profits. No audit is conducted by Dun & Bradstreet. Financial figures may also be obtained from public record and other reliable outside sources. Under certain conditions, some financial data may come from a D&B Analyst's estimates of certain assets and sales.

Banking:

May include checking/savings average account balances, previous and current borrowing history and a determination of whether the overall banking relations are satisfactory. This information is normally provided directly by a bank or banks. The information shown may not represent the full extent of the firm's banking relationships.

Public Filings:

May include public record information such as suits, judgments, tax liens and Uniform Commercial Code Filings. May also contain applicable releases and status updates of public record items.

History:

Provides background details on the company, including the year started, incorporation details, changes in control and ownership information. May also profile the business experience of the company's principals or owners. May contain year of birth, marital status, educational background and the names and business description of any affiliated companies. This information is generally provided to D&B by the company's management.

Operations:

Describes what the firm does, its number of employees, a description of its facilities, and its general locations. It may also provide name and location of branch operations, plus identify and describe any subsidiary businesses. This information is generally provided by the company's management.
